HALT PARLEY! BRITAIN TOLD

URGES COUNCIL OF WAR ON DRY ENFORCEMENT

Roper Asks 7 Year Test of Law.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—Daniel C. Roper, who, as internal revenue commissioner in 1920, was the first prohibition administrator, offered today the most drastic dry enforcement plan yet to be brought forward at the house judiciary committee's hearing on prohibition.

MRS. ELLA A. BOOLE. [A. P. Photo.]

Mr. Roper proposed the calling of a national council of governors and judges to enforce the dry law like war regulations for a seven year test period. Other drys have urged the use of unlimited men and funds for enforcement, but none on such a wholesale scale as Mr. Roper.

La Guardia Asks Question.

"Do you mean to say you would mobilize all the forces of government for the enforcement of this single law?" La Guardia asked.

"I would go to any extent to uphold the constitution of the United States." the witness countered.

"You think, then, the prohibition law is as important as wartime regulations?" La Guardia continued.

Again the witness replied in the affirmative. He added, however, that he would be willing to have the law changed "in seven years, if such a campaign was unavailing."

Mrs. Ella A. Boole Testifies.

The other prohibitionist witnesses who took the stand today were Mrs. Ella A. Boole of Evanston, Ill., president of the W. C. T. U.; Oliver W. Stewart of Chicago, president of the Flying Squadron foundation; Mrs. Martha Bensley Bruere of New York, representing the National Federation of Settlements, and Attorney James L. Kennedy of Greensburg, Pa.

The drys also presented a telegram from Coach Fielding H. "Hurry Up" Yost of the University of Michigan, declaring that American youths are drinking less than before prohibition.

Mrs. Boole told the committee that "so long as the 18th amendment for woman suffrage stays in the Constitution the 18th amendment also will remain."

Depends on Women Voters.

"Women with the ballot," she continued, "always will be the implacable foe of the liquor traffic, and no consideration of party lines, tariff or taxes will divert them from their convictions."

Moral suasion toward temperance has failed, she asserted, and her temperance organization has "changed its pledge, which always required total abstinence from intoxicating liquors, to include support of the 18th amendment."

Mrs. Boole, who, as head of the W. C. T. U. and president of the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment, is looked upon as the outstanding feminine dry leader of the country, was the first official spokesman testifying for any of the "big three" dry organizations—the W. C. T. U., Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals and the Anti-Saloon league. Superintendent F. Scott McBride of the latter group, although slated as a witness, has not testified.

Avoids Cross-Questioning.

To the disappointment of the wet committeemen, they were unable to cross-examine Mrs. Boole, having been requested not to do so because of her health. They permitted her to read her statement without interruptions or questions.

Mrs. Boole did not mention political activities of her organization, as such, confining herself largely to standard feminine arguments against the saloon and the liquor traffic and condemnation of modification in any form. She ignored the charge made by Mrs. Carroll Miller and other feminine wet witnesses that the W. C. T. U. has become an evil influence in politics.

Most of the measures pending before the judiciary committee for modification or repeal of the 18th amend-

City and Banks Agree on Car Plan

DROWNED OUT BY THE OLD STEAM CALLIOPE

THRICE ROBBED, HE IS SLAIN BY ROBBERS' BULLET

On three occasions Cicero Basile, 58 years old, proprietor of a small but profitable coal business, lost his entire capital by theft. Last night, defending $200 from armed robbers, he lost his life.

Basile, whose widow was treasurer of the small coal company, was robbed six years ago, when his wife was drugged during a visit to a spiritualist medium and $3,000 was taken from the woman's blouse.

A year later, when the husband was away, a man and woman came into the office and forced Mrs. Basile at the point of a gun to give them the $3,400 she had hidden in the chimney. And the last time, 18 months ago, two masked men had called and found $900 in a stocking in the bureau of her bedroom.

Since then Basile himself had been his own treasurer. He had $200 in his pockets last night when Mrs. Basile's sister, Mrs. Margaret Cantore, rose to return to her home around the corner after a visit. Basile escorted her.

That was at 10:30 p. m., and Basile having failed to return a half hour later, his wife set forth with her daughters, Mary, 29, and Mildred, 14 years old, two of her six children, to look for him. At the corner they found Basile slain by a bullet which had pierced his right temple. The $200 was missing.

TWO BOYS OF 13 HELD FOR PUSHING MAN FROM CAR

Two 13 year old boys—Sammy Izzo, 712 South Aberdeen street, and Casimir Botulinski, 7177 Irving Park boulevard—were in custody of juvenile authorities last night, charged with inflicting the injuries which may result in the death of James Soltis, 48 years old, 2425 West 47th street. After a collision at Keeler and Cullerton avenues with a car driven by a third lad, now being sought, Soltis jumped on the running board of the other car to prevent the driver's escape. Police said Izzo and Botulinski, who were riding in the car, pushed Soltis to the street. He was taken to the County hospital, where his skull was found to be fractured.

Sick Offered Drug Savings of 4 Million

Those mystic symbols which the physician scribbles upon a prescription blank and which often prove costly at the drug store are due for a revision which will save Chicago $4,000,000 a year. Dr. Charles B. Reed, president of the Chicago Medical society, made this announcement last night at a meeting of the Jackson park branch of the society in the Billings Memorial hospital of the University of Chicago.

Sick Chicagoans have 12,000,000 prescriptions filled each year, Dr. Reed said, and they have been paying $4,000,000 too much for them. Fully one-fourth of the prescriptions should be altered, he declared. The change should substitute drugs of equal therapeutic value, but costing 25 per cent less, Dr. Reed declared.

Cites Source of Saving.

"We have found that some doctors and some druggists are not making the full use they should of the three great sources of drug prescriptions, which are the United States Pharmacopoeia, the National Formulary, and the New and Nonofficial Remedies," he stated.

Where the average prescription now costs $1.25 it could be priced at 90 cents if other preparations of equal value are prescribed, Dr. Reed said.

"It is the purpose of the new plan to obtain the cooperation of physicians and pharmacists to file the major portion of prescriptions hereafter in terms of the three manuals named," he declared. "This saving will be passed along to the public as part of our campaign to reduce the costs of being sick.

Will Save in Overhead.

"It will help the druggist reduce the number of items he has to keep on his shelves and effect a saving in overhead; it will help to check the evils of so-called 'counter prescribing' by pharmacists and clerks.

"Only ethical and approved remedial preparations as recognized by medical authorities and prescribed by physicians will be considered, and a determined fight will be made against patent medicine quackery."

The meeting was held in honor of O. U. Sisson, south side druggist and chairman of the committee of the Chicago Retail Druggists' association, who presented the plan for the medical society's approval, and Dr. James H. Hutton, president elect of the medical society, who has been working on the new plan with Mr. Sisson.

WOMAN SAVES YOUTH ACCUSED BY A WOMAN

Should a youth go to jail for beating a horse? Otto Collins, 21 years old, a grocery wagon driver, was the center of a debate in Municipal Judge Erickson's court yesterday in which two women, both strangers to him, took the affirmative and negative of the question. The boy was finally saved from jail by the generosity of one of the women.

Mrs. Flora Ehlman, 724 Waveland avenue, secretary of the Chicago Humane Education society, had caused Collins' arrest for beating his horse. Judge Erickson imposed a $50 fine and Collins was about to be sent to the Bridewell for inability to pay the fine when a woman in the courtroom arose and declared that a boy "ought not to be made a jailbird" for such an offense. She paid the fine.

Collins refused to reveal the name of his benefactress, but declared that he would repay the loan from his wages.

Boy Finds Hand Grenade in Army Coat in Alley

A small boy playing with a hand grenade was noticed by an attendant at a gasoline filling station at 2319 Elston avenue last night. The attendant took the grenade from the boy, who said he had found it in the pocket of an old army coat left in an alley. The grenade was turned over to the police.

SENATE TO PASS TARIFF BILL BY SATURDAY NIGHT

Lumber Duty Voted; Recess Planned.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—Passage of the tariff bill in the senate by Saturday night was in prospect tonight following action on virtually the last of the controversies of major importance.

The senate, by a vote of 39 to 38, today approved a duty of $1.50 per 1,000 feet upon lumber of fir, spruce, pine, hemlock, and larch, now on the free list. It approved, by a vote of 41 to 34, the so-called anti-monopoly amendment of Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.]. It voted to reconsider the previous adverse action on proposed duties on hides, leather and shoes, and then again rejected the amendment to place the three related commodities on the dutiable list.

Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader, indicated that if the senate can pass the tariff bill by Saturday night, as he thinks possible, a week's recess will be taken to give senators a chance to rest up from the 11 hour daily sessions of recent weeks.

Lumber Action a Reversal.

The approval of the duty on lumber was a reversal of the action of Feb. 27, when the senate, by a vote of 34 to 39, rejected a duty of $2. The amendment was sponsored by Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], who accepted a proviso proposed by Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] under which lumber which is rough or planed on only one side will come in free of duty from contiguous countries which do not impose a duty on American lumber of the same kind. The effect is to permit this class of lumber to come in free from Canada.

Favorable action on the lumber duty represented another victory for the new combination which has figured in the vote trading centering around sugar, oil, lumber, and cement.

Illinois Senators Divided.

Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.] voted against a duty on lumber, while Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.] was paired in favor of it. The Wisconsin and Iowa senators voted against a duty. The Indiana and Michigan senators divided, Senators Watson and A. M. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] voting for it and Senators Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.] and James E. Couzens [Rep., Mich.] against it.

Senator Park Trammell [Dem., Fla.], in favoring a duty on lumber, asserted that if reflected in the price of lumber it would increase the cost of an eight room house by only $12 and the cost of a six room house by only $9.

Senator Norris, in an attack upon the lumber duty, asserted that congress is proposing to help the farmer by taxing everything he uses.

Norris Plan Likely to Die.

"We are going to tax the chairs, the table, the wooden bed, the shed, the chicken coop, the hog pen, the barn, the home, the wagon box," said Senator Norris. "We are going to increase the price that must be paid for the clothes the people wear, and in the name of labor and the American farmer!"

The Norris anti-monopoly amendment, which likely will fall by the wayside in conference, provides for hearings before the United States Customs court if charges are filed by a proposed "people's counsel" or by any citizen that domestic producers are controlling prices on commodities on which protective duties are in effect. If the charges are sustained the court would submit a report to the President, who then would issue an order placing the commodity on the free list.

Borah Changes Sides.

The senate, on the motion of Senator Felix Hebert [Rep., R. I.], voted, 34 to 33, to reconsider the Oddie amendment, recently defeated, imposing duties on hides, lumber, and shoes. The senate then again defeated the amendment, 36 to 35. Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], who had voted for the Hebert motion, voted against the Oddie amendment.

Reconsideration of the question of a duty on oil was assured tonight when the senate agreed to vote tomorrow on an amendment by Senator W. B. Pine [Rep., Okla.] to impose a duty of 40 cents per barrel on crude oil and 20 per cent on gasoline and other oil products. These are lower rates than were rejected yesterday.

3% of Merger Income to Go for a Subway

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The bankers' committee and the council local transportation committee reached a tentative agreement yesterday on most of the omissions and disputed points in the proposed transit franchise. The aldermanic attitude on these, adopted unanimously, was accepted by the bankers without protest. The points, and the position of the aldermen on them, are as follows:

1. Rate of return to new consolidated company shall be "reasonable" and fixed from time to time by local or state regulatory commission.

2. Present rates of fares shall remain in effect for a fixed period, and thereafter until changed by the commission.

3. Compensation to city shall be 3 per cent of gross annual income of consolidated company, but the payment of compensation shall be "junior to bond interest, the company's sinking fund requirements and dividends on preferred stock."

For Subway Construction.

4. The utilization of the city's compensation, together with the existing traction fund, shall be for construction of an initial subway, and thereafter will be used, as the ordinance may provide, for additional transportation facilities and for the amortization of the city's purchase price of the transportation properties.

5. For renewals and depreciation a fund of 7 per cent of the gross receipts is to be set aside at the beginning, but later the percentage may be changed by the regulatory commission.

6. The cost of paving the right of way of the surface lines shall be met by the company.

7. The cost of relocating tracks, due to street widening, is to be amortized over a reasonable period of time from money out of the city's compensation.

The question of paying for the cost of cleaning and sprinkling the right of way of the surface lines was not definitely decided. This cost to the surface lines at present is estimated at $354,000 a year. A decision is to be made on this matter as the negotiations on the franchise proceed.

Puts Question to Bankers.

"On the basis of the franchise ordinance as drafted to date and the decision of our committee on disputed points just announced, do you bankers believe you can raise the $200,000,000 necessary for extensions and improvements?" asked Ald. Joseph B. McDonough, chairman of the council's local transportation committee, at yesterday's gathering.

"If we can get an agreement on the financial plan we are shooting at," replied Frank O. Wetmore of the First National bank, "I do not think there is any question about it."

Eugene M. Stevens of the Continental Illinois bank and C. F. Clarke of Halsey, Stuart & Co., other members of the bankers committee, made no comment upon the Wetmore reply. Harry L. Stuart is to return from New York on Saturday, and the bankers' committee and the aldermanic subcommittee, headed by James B. Bowler, will confer next Monday on more specific wording of the omitted sections of the franchise.

According to Ald. Bowler, the aldermen hope to have the ordinance completed by May 1, so that it can be submitted to the voters in a referendum in June.

Farr Appeals for Action.

At the meeting yesterday there was read an appeal for action from Newton C. Farr, president of the Chicago Real Estate board. He said the building industry is "prostrate and that thousands of men ordinarily employed in the building trades are idle and have been for months." He added that the board believes the settlement of the transit problem will stimulate business and restore confidence in Chicago. He said:

"The spending of approximately $300,000,000 to provide for extensions and betterments necessary to give the city adequate transportation would alone restore prosperity to the city, but we confidently believe that that sum would be a small part of the money released for wages and materials once this problem is settled."

Watchdog Sounds Fire Alarm; Dies in Blaze

The frantic barking of a watchdog early yesterday warned Antioch residents of a fire in the plant of the Antioch Packing company. The dog's barking grew feebler as a volunteer fire company fought the blaze. When it was extinguished, with an estimated loss of $2,000, the firemen found the dog dead in the boiler room, suffocated by smoke.

CABINET CHIEFS ASK PREMIER TO ADMIT FAILURE

Snowden Opposes 3-Power Pact.

French Envoys Quit

PARIS, March 20.—France is to be no longer represented at London, it was learned here tonight when it was announced that the French delegates, Jacques-Louis Dumesnil and François Pietri, will return to Paris tomorrow night.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 20.—THE TRIBUNE is informed that a section of the British cabinet, headed by Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, is pressing Prime Minister MacDonald to acknowledge failure of the naval conference and adjourn it indefinitely. Mr. Snowden is opposed to a three-power pact, demanding that Great Britain, because of her geographical and political position, must keep herself free from any entanglement with either America or any European power.

Mr. MacDonald still hopes to secure some sort of a five power pact, and is working desperately to bring this about. Mr. Snowden told him that the majority of the British cabinet will not accept a three power pact, and that he believes the United States senate would also turn it down. He is urging Mr. MacDonald that the only wise policy is adjournment and the continuation of the work for disarmament through diplomatic channels.

May Adjourn Until June.

Adjournment of the conference until June, to meet at Geneva concurrently with the league of nations preparatory disarmament commission, was under consideration among certain delegations here today. The Japanese, French, and Italians agree that prolonging the crisis only threatens to embitter relations between the contending powers and to accentuate the deep seated differences, auspicions, jealousies, and mistrusts.

Even British circles are envisaging possible means of extricating themselves from the wrecked parley remains, but the prime minister is anxious to exhaust every means of reaching an accord before suggesting the alternative so hateful to the United States—that of turning over negotiations to the league of nations.

The departure of Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, at noon today with the cynical remark that he "might come back if there was anything for him to do," has cast the deepest gloom over the American and British delegations, which had been clinging to the hope that some means would be found for reconciling the French and Italian claims.

Tardieu to Stick to Paris.

The efforts have not been abandoned, however, and tonight Prime Minister MacDonald had a long conference with Dino Grandi of Italy in the house of commons. Both refused to talk after the session.

From Paris also comes the news that Premier André Tardieu has announced he will only come to London again if something worth while turns up. Another message from Paris says France regards the conference as over with, in view of the Fascist grand council's indorsement of the Italian demand for parity with France.

The sympathy of the British, at least, is entirely with Italy, which has only been claiming the same status awarded it at the Washington conference. Attention is also drawn to the fact that France has, at least twice, publicly indicated she looked on Italy as a possible enemy.

Briand's "Lack of Courtesy."

A three power pact is still envisaged by the British and Americans, and it is believed a final agreement will be reached with Japan. A four power pact, including Italy, is considered out of the question.

M. Briand's alleged lack of courtesy toward the other delegates has also been commented on. It was stated Mr. MacDonald accidentally learned last night that France's foreign minister was about to leave London. He immediately asked for a meeting. M. Briand then invited him to dinner, and the two men had a final talk over the dinner table.

One of the conference mathematicians calculates that so far the conference has cost the United States $350,000; France, $45,000; Italy, $60,000; Japan, $300,000; while the British empire has spent about $50,000 on its own delegations and about $20,000 on the entertainment of the visitors.

Mr. MacDonald today resisted efforts in the house of commons to draw him out on the state of the conference, declaring any statement at the present time was not of public interest.

U. S. DELEGATES YAWN

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 20.—The American delegation completely suspended work today. Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson went sight seeing at Windsor castle. Senator David A. Reed went to Aldershot to study British army training methods. Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow took a day off to nurse a severe cold. Ambassador Charles G. Dawes entertained Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Secretary of the Navy Adams and Ambassador Hugh Gibson with reminiscences of his varied career.

The only serious discussion of navy limitation was in connection with a three power treaty, which the Americans are prepared to fall back on in the event that the five power treaty proves to be an impossibility.

Japan Decision Today.

The Japanese cabinet will decide tomorrow whether to accept the agreement reached by the American and Japanese delegations. The Japanese admiralty is hostile to the agreement on the ground it fails to represent a full concession in the big cruiser strength demanded by Tokio. Both the British and American delegations are not disposed to make any further material concession to Japan in this respect, although it is possible they would allow Japan to replace her four 7,000 tons cruisers with three 10,000 ton ships.

Japan, however, wants in addition the right to lay down another 10,000 tonner in 1935. The Americans are discussing this with the British on the problem of tonnage levels for a three power treaty. The British have been asked to state what cruiser tonnage they will require in a treaty to which France is not a party. The British replied that they need 35,000 more tons of cruisers and 50,000 more tons of destroyers than was specified in the Rapidan conversations, in view of the French program providing for ten big cruisers and 90,000 tons of submarines.

As a means, however, of obviating this boost in the Rapidan figures, which would require America to build more cruisers and destroyers in order to maintain parity with Great Britain, the two English speaking delegations are considering a safety clause for the three power treaty.

This proposition is that the Rapidan tonnage levels be incorporated in the three power treaty, but with an added clause providing that any signatory would be absolved from the restrictions imposed on it if it found itself menaced by the building program of another power.

Briand Arrives in Paris.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 20.—It is evident here tonight that neither Aristide Briand nor Premier Tardieu intends to go back to the naval conference until the deadlock with Italy is broken by other instrumentalities than their own or until they are bidden by the other delegates to the parley's deathbed exercises.

Great care has been taken by the official world of Paris not to give the impression that M. Briand has deserted the ship.

Foreign Minister Briand arrived here tonight and blandly asserted that the conference is not wrecked yet, and that France is still disposed to consider "any acceptable combination." He said that he had returned to appear in the chamber of deputies.

MASON COUNTY G. O. P. INDORSES JUDGE SAMUELL

Havana, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—The Mason county Republican central committeemen today passed resolution endorsing the candidacy of Judge Paul Samuell for the nomination in the Supreme court race. Mason county will give Samuell its votes at the convention to be held at Monmouth on April 10.

Hancock Uninstructed.

Carthage, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—Republican delegates from Hancock county to the Supreme court judicial convention at Monmouth April 10 go uninstructed, but opinion prevails they will indorse any candidate favored by Gov. Emmerson.

Twenty-six Democratic delegates from Hancock county to the Democratic judicial convention to be held in Quincy April 11 are instructed for Warren H. Orr and he is expected to carry this county by an overwhelming majority.

RUTH McCORMICK PICTURES COURT AS LEAGUE TRAP

'Un-American,' She Says in Radio Address.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Taking "America for Americans" as her theme, Ruth Hanna McCormick over the air last night maintained that the world court is an adjunct of the league of nations and that adherence to it would spurn George Washington's counsel against foreign entanglements and "menace America's independence of action." The address was one of a series of radio addresses by notables over a nation-wide hook up sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. McCormick took the ground that The Hague peace court, to which America has submitted international disputes, is available for matters of arbitration, and that even without adhering to the league court protocol disputes may be referred to it. America, she argued, has nothing to gain, much to lose, by adherence to the protocol, which President Hoover has said he will submit to the senate, at some convenient time, for ratification.

Record Challenges Critics.

"Ten years ago," said Mrs. McCormick, "our national respect for Washington's advice was put to a crucial test. We were asked to sign a treaty of peace with Germany which Washington would have spurned. We repudiated both the treaty and the covenant of the league of nations. Our foreign policy, built upon the wisdom of Washington, was not thus to be marred by an act of emotional folly.

"But our love of independence has not obscured our sense of justice towards other nations. We hear it said we are out of step with the world, that we are selfish, provincial, isolated. But our record is a sharp challenge to these critics.

"Will China forget our American protest against the twenty-one demands made by Japan? Will a liberated Cuba say that the United States is selfish? Will Mexico remember that we cheerfully submitted our differences with her to The Hague court in 1902, the first arbitration brought to that tribunal? We took no territory from defeated nations after the world war victory, and we asked for only nominal reparations. We have cut down the billions in the principal on debts owed us by our allies and have canceled vast obligations in interest.

Sees No Need for Alliance.

"We sent shiploads of food to Germany, to Belgium, and to the Near East. We saved hundreds of lives in Siberia. Our gold has helped to finance vital industries in many distant countries.

"We are not isolated, and we had not then, nor do we have now, any need to entangle our destiny with that of any foreign nation or combination of nations in order to prove to mankind that we are sincere in our humane doctrine and our just practice.

"The United States not only declined to subscribe to the covenant of the league of nations, which plainly contemplated war as an instrument of enforcing its requirements, and the United States also refused to sign the treaty of Versailles and later made its own treaty of peace with Germany and the other central powers. In three national elections the American people have overwhelmingly shown their opposition to joining the league of nations.

Calls It League's Back Door.

"Not being able to induce this country to join the league, an effort was begun seven years ago to get us to adhere to the permanent Court of International Justice of the league. It is not a world court to which we are asked to adhere. I oppose the court now for the same reason that I was against it seven years ago.

"Nothing has been done to change the fact that the league court is a back door entrance into the league itself. The league created the court in Article XIV. of the covenant of the league. It not only created the court but it can terminate it. Statutes of the court are not changed without the official approval of the council and the assembly of the league of nations, as witnessed repeatedly in negotiations concerning our senate reservations. The league determines and pays the salaries of the judges of the court. The league elects the judges of the court. The league can increase the number of judges of the court. The league must be informed before the resignations of any of the judges of the court shall become effective. Article XIII. of the covenant of the league of nations specifies how the judgments and opinions of the court are to be enforced."

Reviews History of Effort.

"'But,' I am asked, 'what do you offer as a substitute for this court?' I would say simply that there is still available for the purposes of peace the same permanent court of arbitration at the Hague, which we used successfully in our dispute with Mexico in 1902, and which we have used repeatedly since that time.

"Even if we discard The Hague peace tribunal we may yet refer our international disputes to the so-called world court itself, for we have that privilege and have had the privilege since the establishment of the league's court. We could use the league's court without taking the further step of adhering to the protocol and entering upon those relationships with the league of nations which appear to be dangerously un-American."

Attends Polish Banquet.

After the radio speech Mrs. McCormick was guest of honor at a banquet of Polish business men at the Morrison hotel, given by N. L. Piotrowski, president of the Great Lakes Insurance company.

Indorsement of Mrs. McCormick's candidacy was announced last night by Thomas A. Brockmeyer's Republican organization in the Thirty-fourth ward and by Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney, in the Twenty-ninth ward. Before two woman's meetings, at the Golden Pumpkin and the Midwest Athletic club, attended by 4,500 women, in his ward, Mr. Crowe stated: "This is not a matter of personalities or politics but of anti-world court principle. Four years ago we notified Senator Deneen and Senator McKinley we opposed the world court. It was for that reason I opposed the late Senator McKinley in 1926. We are against the world court and that makes us for Mrs. McCormick."

Rift Seen in Deneen Ranks.

The Albert Johnson Republican organization in the 18th ward indorsed Mrs. McCormick last night, an indication of a rift in the Deneen group in the town of Lake. Johnson is an assistant state's attorney and for years was active in the Deneen organization. He is running for ward committeeman in a triangular race with the support of the followers of Howard W. Elmore, president of the sanitary district, and elected as a Deneen man, who developed the Elmore slate of candidates for drainage trustees.

Today Mrs. McCormick is to campaign in Will county, speaking at Joliet tonight. Kane county is to be covered tomorrow, with a night meeting at Aurora.

ENDS LIFE WITH GAS.

Deneen Lauds World Court as 'Moral Force' for Peace

Rockford, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—Enthusiastically supporting the present world court as it exists today and denouncing all efforts to form a substitute body, United States Senator Deneen, addressed a crowd of several hundred persons in Rockford tonight.

"If we are for a world court, we must adhere to the existing world court, and if we cannot, we should abandon all such plans and discuss other matters," the Illinois solon declared.

Favors Adequate Preparedness.

"I believe in preparation for self defense. I belive in adequate preparations on land, sea, the air and in economic structure to defend ourselves, but I also believe that one way to defend ourselves is to enter into a pact with other nations of the world so that all disputes can be settled in a peaceable manner.

"Some say the world court is too strong, that it will entangle us in European affairs. Some say that it is too weak and that it does not amount to anything.

Counts on Moral Force.

"The only thing that is and should be behind the court is moral force, for if there is too much power behind the court, the greater nations can overpower the weaker ones.

POLICE BREAK UP 'RED HOT' SHOW; 210 ARE SEIZED

"Red hot" entertainment as advertised, was in progress at the Kean inn, Kean avenue and 83d street, last night when Policemen J. H. Scherpring, William Casey, Leo Anderson, and James Zegar of the state's attorney's office bought $2 tickets at the door and walked in. The policemen, in plain clothes, found vacant chairs among 200 men in the place and sat down to watch the show.

The hours passed and the entertainment appeared to the plain clothes visitors to be getting hotter and hotter. Finally Policeman Scherpring stirred restively, whispered to his companions, arose, and stalked to the center of the floor, where a performing young woman was the focus of 200 pairs of eyes.

Beside her Scherpring paused, cleared his throat and then in a stentorian voice cried: "I am a police officer. Lady, you are under arrest."

The lady smiled and the audience, believing the interruption to be part of her act, cheered. But the delusion was brief. Scherpring held up a hand and in the silence that followed there came the crash of a falling door and fifteen other policemen, headed by Lieut. William Blaul, dashed into the room. "The house is pinched," shouted Blaul.

Early this morning 200 men and 10 young women were waiting at the Kean Inn for the 12 police patrols that were to take them to the detective bureau.

Woman Burned Fatally in Gasoline Explosion

Mrs. Louise Mauel, 40 years old, was burned fatally yesterday when a can of gasoline with which she was cleaning clothes in the basement of her home at 4718 North St. Louis avenue exploded and ignited her clothing. She died at Belmont hospital.

MILAN, March 20.—Negotiations begun some months ago by Henry Ford for acquiring control of the Isotta Fraschini automobile factory, which produces Italy's highest priced car, have been abandoned.

A draft agreement was concluded, but a stipulation contract was vetoed by the government because Isotta Fraschini, in addition to making automobiles, is one of the only two Italian firms producing airplane engines, and it was thought inadvisable to allow the control of this industry to pass into foreign hands.

Negotiations are now in progress to secure for Isotta Fraschini a contract to manufacture certain engine parts required by the Ford assembly plant in Trieste. Interest in this plan, however, is half-hearted, at least on the part of Ford, owing to the reluctance of the latter to use parts made by concerns he does not control.

MAN IDENTIFIED AS AUTHOR DIES IN PHONE BOOTH

A middle aged man who dropped dead while telephoning in a drug store booth at 4300 Drexel boulevard last night was tentatively identified from letters found in his pocket as Harold Morton Kramer, author and lecturer, who was noted some years ago as "the philosopher of life" on the chautauqua circuit.

The man, who apparently succumbed from heart disease, was about 55 years old and was well dressed. Letters in his pocket addressed to Kramer bore the business address of 1015 Auditorium building. Hyde Park police took the body to a morgue at 4227 Cottage Grove avenue, and efforts were made to get in touch with relatives.

Harold Morton Kramer was formerly a resident of Frankfort, Ind. He wrote several novels, a number of short stories and photoplays and gave many lectures.

FLORIDA RAIDS CAPONE'S RUM; SIX ARRESTED

Alphonse Capone, the vanished gang leader, got into trouble by proxy yesterday. This time it was in Florida, where a raid on his Palm island home at Miami Beach resulted in the seizure of eight sacks of whisky and champagne and other wines.

A dispatch from Miami Beach said the county prosecutor, the sheriff, and several deputies took part in the raid, which was authorized by the issuance of a search warrant. Six men were arrested, including two who gave the names of John and Albert Capone and were reported by the Florida authorities to be brothers of Alphonse.

The Chicago home of Capone, who became an ex-convict last Monday when he was released from a Philadelphia penitentiary after ten months of imprisonment for gun toting, was still under a police guard awaiting Capone's return here, but for the third day he failed to appear. His home is at 7244 Prairie avenue.

Six Men are Arrested.

The report from Miami Beach was that when the raiding party arrived only a caretaker was present at the mansion where Capone has played and entertained for several winters. The caretaker, who gave his name as Frank Newton, bade the raiders good evening and swung open the heavy gate. The liquor, dispatches said, was found in an upstairs room, the door of which was broken open when Newton said it was the only room in the house for which he did not have a key.

When asked by the raiders how many persons were occupying the house and where they were, Newton replied that there were five and that they had gone swimming. The deputies waited until the five bathers returned, according to the reports, and then took all into custody, including the two supposed Capones and Newton.

All Released on Bonds.

The three others arrested gave their names as Louis Cowen of Cicero and James Vincent and L. J. Brennan, who said they were from Miami and were paying a social call at the Capone home. All were arraigned at a special court session in Miami last night and were released under bonds to appear at a habeas corpus hearing this morning.

"John" Capone and Newton were charged with illegal possession of liquor and were freed under bonds of $500 each. "Albert" Capone, Cowen, Vincent, and Brennan were released under bonds of $250 each on charges of vagrancy.

The Chicago police said that Capone's wife is still in Chicago. Capone, they said, has a brother John, who is 21 years old, and a brother Albert, also known as Bottles, as well as a third brother, Ralph, and a fourth named Matthew Faces Maximum Term of Seven Years.

GEORGE HUCKINS OF 26 PER CENT FAME CONVICTED

Cedar Rapids, Ia., March 20.—[Special.]—George E. Huckins of "26 per cent" renown was found guilty in District court here this afternoon of obtaining money under false pretenses. The jury was out twenty-five hours.

Six ballots had been taken up to 11 o'clock today, and the jury stood ten to two for conviction. The jurors then requested that testimony of Verne Marshall, Earl Coughlin, newspaper men, and Emil Levsen, one of the Huckins' alleged victims, be reread to them. Before the reading was concluded the jurors said they had heard enough and retired. An hour later the verdict was returned.

Attorney Walter J. Barngrover filed a motion for a new trial.

Seven Years Is Maximum.

Huckins faces a maximum of seven years in prison and a fine of $5,000 or both.

The case had been on trial for a week and it furnished many dramatic incidents. The state charged that Huckins had obtained about $72,000 from local investors on promises to pay anywhere from 26 to 133 per cent interest.

Accused of Getting Millions.

Huckins and his father, Elmer S. Huckins of Wisconsin, are alleged to have obtained more than three million dollars in the midwest in the last three years in an alleged cigar business. There was testimony to indicate that Huckins was not engaged in any business and the state charged that he merely took in millions and paid out interest from his receipts.

Mother of Actors

Mrs. Helen Harrington, owner of a beauty shop at 2000 Humboldt boulevard, was granted a divorce from Joseph Harrington before Superior Judge Sabath. She charged cruelty and was granted the custody of two children, Paul, 14 years old, and Lillian, both of whom have appeared in vaudeville. The Harringtons were married Jan. 20, 1914, and separated last Jan. 22.

GIRL, 19, GETS WRIT TO REGAIN ADOPTED BABY

Mother 'Heartless,' Says Cradle Official.

Vilma Doris, 6 months old, will be the center of a lively legal fight in the court of Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski on Monday when her mother, Mrs. Vivian Ward, is expected to claim that the Cradle Society hospital of Evanston disposed of her baby without her consent.

Mrs. Ward, who is 19 years old and lives at 4444 Altgold street, said that she was deserted by her husband, William, on Jan. 1, their second wedding anniversary, and she took Vilma Doris to the Evanston institution the same day. Last month, she said, she was financially able to take care of her baby, but was told at the hospital that the child was not there.

Denies Money Involved.

When told that Mrs. Ward had suggested that her baby may have been "sold," Mrs. Florence Walrath, 1918 Orrington avenue, managing director of the Crade Society hospital, expressed her horror.

"'Sold!' Why, there isn't a suggestion of money in adoption transactions at the Cradle!" she cried. "Ours is purely a work of love.

"Of course, the Cradle places no babies in homes except those given us for adoption. This baby's mother, and the mother's mother, signed legal papers consenting to the adoption of the child. There are always a few weeks which elapse before the baby is placed, and the girl had her chance then to say whether she wanted her child. But she said she couldn't care for her.

"Then, just before we gave the baby away, the mother called and said she wanted her, but later called and said that she had changed her mind, and that she could not care for her baby. We asked her if she was sure, if there were no question in her mind, and she said there was not.

Baby Placed in Home.

"So, of course, we gave the baby to the family that wanted it—a lovely family, well able to give Vilma Doris all she will need or want. They have legally adopted the baby now and have had her for the greater part of two months, I should say.

"Then, after all that," continued Mrs. Walrath, "the baby's mother came to the Cradle and said that she wanted the baby back. 'Why, my dear girl,' I told her, 'it would be the cruelest thing, the wickedest thing in the world to take that baby from those people now!'

"She asked if they couldn't get another. I just told her that we shouldn't have placed the baby with them if they hadn't loved it just as if it had been born to them, and that it would be too cruel to take it away when that was the case.

"Really," said Mrs. Walrath, "the girl and her mother both seemed to me perfectly heartless. And when we have such a long list of ideal homes waiting for babies, too! There are more homes than there are babies to be had. It would be such a shame for those ideal families to lose faith in the process of adopting babies!"

Mrs. Ward yesterday obtained a writ of habeas corpus requiring officials of the home to appear on Monday before Judge Klarkowski in the Circuit court to tell what has become of the baby and what the terms of its adoption were.

ELECTRIC EYE SHOOTS AND RINGS BELL IF PRISON WALL IS SCALED

Boston, Mass., March 20.—(AP)—A model of a prisoner crept up a model prison wall here tonight, and as it came within range of an "electric eye" a revolver trained on the prisoner was fired and a bell on the prison wall set up a furious clangor.

It was the first demonstration of how science may thus curb prison breaks. It was given by Edwin M. Vedder of the Westinghouse company before the Illuminating Engineering society of Boston.

This use of the electric eye, Mr. Vedder explained, is only one of many possible applications. It could set off a battery of machine guns and turn on flood lights.

The mechanism involved, he added, is relatively simple. Parallel to the prison wall, near its top, a small and scarcely noticeable ray of light shone steadily into the "electric eye," mounted on the other end of the wall.

The "electric eye" is a photo-electric cell coupled to a grid glow tube. So long as the light shines upon the photo-electric cell an electric current flows steadily through the cell. The moment anything interrupts the ray of light the flow of current ceases.

The impulse thus created is amplified and actuates relays. These in turn pull the trigger of the revolver and set off the electric bell.

Fuchs Wins First Round in $500,000 Love Suit

Albert Fuchs, wealthy Chicago real estate dealer, yesterday won the first round in the $500,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by Miss Martha Gulickson, 4833 Eddy street, his former secretary, in Los Angeles. Judge Myron Westover of the Los Angeles court sustained a defense demurrer, holding that Miss Gulickson must be more specific in asserting her grounds for damages and must explain in more detail how Fuchs informed her that he did not intend to marry her after he had already obtained a license.

FINES 3 COUPLES SEIZED IN RAID.

Three unmarried couples, alleged by state's attorney's police to have been living together in a single room of the Roxy hotel, 1310 Jackson boulevard, which was raided last Tuesday, were fined $5 each yesterday when arraigned before Judge Schulman in Morals court.

WINTER RUSHES IN TO THWART SPRING'S ENTRY

But Cold Spell Will Be Brief, Forecaster Says.

Heralded by a temperature drop, Old Man Winter was advancing upon Chicago and the central states last night, timing his return for the precise date when his successor, spring, was officially due.

Spring was to arrive at 2:30 o'clock this morning, the instant the sun crossed the equator towards the northern hemisphere. But the performance of the thermometer last evening and the prediction of the weather man, C. A. Donnel, for today, set all astronomical computations at naught.

Drops Below Freezing.

From a comparatively seasonable mark of 56 degrees at 1 p. m., yesterday, the temperature in Chicago dropped rapidly and was near the freezing point by evening. Mr. Donnel predicted for this morning a reading between 15 and 20 degrees, a range more suitable to January than to middle March, he conceded.

Forecaster Donnel predicted that the cold snap here would be brief, with the skies clearing tomorrow morning and sunshine bringing slightly warmer weather tomorrow evening. A rising temperature is due on Sunday.

11 Below in Minnesota.

The lowest mark in the northwest was 11 below zero at Thief River Falls, Minn. Moorhead, in the same state, made a bid for recognition with a 60 degree drop to zero within 24 hours. At Pipestone, in southern Minnesota, a stiff northwest wind drove more than an inch of snow into town. North Dakota temperatures ranged from 4 below at Dickinson and Minot to 6 above at Valley City. All of South Dakota was under a snow blanket.

Police Commissioner Russell issued a safety bulletin yesterday which, in view of the weather outlook, seemed somewhat ill timed. The bulletin warned parents to keep their children from roller skating on crowded thoroughfares and from riding bicycles on the boulevards.

Robert Horwitz, 3350 Evergreen avenue, collector for a chain of grocery stores, reported to police last night that two men had kidnaped him in his automobile in front of 3635 Roosevelt road and taken $240 in cash and $216 in checks from him. The men thrust him out of the car at 14th street and Lawndale avenue, he said, and drove away.

TRIAL DELAYED BY STATE'S TALK TO VENIREMEN

Jury Panel Is Barred in Bender Case.

An entire jury panel in Judge E. I. Frankhauser's Criminal court was excluded from service yesterday in the trial of Andrew Bender, former employé of the state's attorney's office under the Crowe régime, because assistant state's attorneys assigned to the court have discussed with the veniremen the verdicts given in various cases.

Attorneys Benedict Short and George Guenther, representing Bender, charged that the tactics of the assistant prosecutors—not those now engaged in the Bender prosecution—were unfair and should not be tolerated in the courts.

Lawyer Raps Prosecutors.

"The prosecutors have no more right to discuss cases with jurors than has a defending lawyer," said Attorney Short. "If a defense lawyer talked to a juror who was still in active service, it would be considered unethical, to say the least. It might even call for indictment or contempt proceedings.

"The practice of prosecutors discussing cases with jurors has become prevalent recently in the courts and should be stopped."

Attorney Short said he had heard of the practice from other lawyers practicing regularly in the Criminal courts, and yesterday when he examined the veniremen as to their qualifications he asked them if they had discussed their jury service with any one or had discussed verdicts rendered in other cases. Several of the men told of talking to prosecutors and the defense attorney then made a motion to challenge the entire panel in the courtroom.

Trial Is Delayed.

Judge Frankhauser allowed the motion and the trial was delayed for a time while a search was made through the other courtrooms in the building for veniremen who had not talked to assistant prosecutors. When the trial adjourned last night four such jurors had been found and sworn.

Bender is charged with bribery. He is alleged to have accepted $500 from Joseph and Emil Klein to release property owned by them which was tied up in a bond forfeiture in the case of Frank Knefel, alleged burglar. Bender at the time was in charge of the bond forfeiture department of the prosecutor's office.

ONE KILLED, FOUR HURT IN CRASH ON ROAD CURVE

One man was killed and four others were injured, one seriously, yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a truck on Waukegan road at the north limits of Deerfield. John Kosakowski, 43 years old, 1029 Jackson street, North Chicago, was the man killed. Everett Anderson, 39, of 340 Helmholtz avenue, Waukegan, driver of the automobile, suffered two broken ribs and possible internal injuries. William Jakaitis of 1034 Victoria street, North Chicago; Rudolph Koppelman, 229 South Jackson street, Waukegan, and John Rogalla, Lenox avenue, Waukegan, sustained cuts and bruises.

Anderson turned out to pass a milk truck on a curve, when he discovered a truck approaching in the opposite direction. He then applied his brakes, but his machine skidded and hit the truck he was trying to pass.

Two deaths in Cook county raised the 1930 county motor toll to 193. The victims:

Mrs. Rose Kimon, 35 years old, 3610 Clinton street, Berwyn. Killed early this morning when the automobile in which she was riding with John Krech, 37 years old, 2810 Lawndale avenue, a Chicago fireman, collided with another car at Ogden and Home avenues, Berwyn. Joseph Domonagala, 28 years old, 3620 Gunderson avenue, Berwyn, driver of the second automobile, told the police that Krech was speeding. Krech was held.

Mrs. Eleanor Thomas, 50 years old, 8143 Bernard avenue. Died in St. Luke's hospital of injuries received Tuesday, when she was struck by an automobile at Michigan avenue and Madison street. The driver, George Knight, 5728 Wentworth avenue, was not held.

Charges of speeding against George Craig Stewart Jr., 1045 Judson avenue, son of the pastor of St. Luke's Episcopal church, Evanston, and a student at Northwestern university, were not pressed by Justice of the Peace James Corcoran of Evanston. Stewart did not appear in court, but was represented by Justice of the Peace Harry H. Porter.

WOMAN, 51, KILLED BY AUTO.

Quincy, Ill., March 20.—(Special.)—Mrs. William Nash, 51, was killed in front of her home, near Bowen, Ill., last night when she was struck by an automobile driven by Maurice Klett, a traveling salesman of Springfield, Ill. Mrs. Nash stepped from an automobile driven by her husband directly in the path of the oncoming car. A coroner's jury absolved Klett of blame.

GIRL IS RESCUED FROM FIERY BED IN TEXAS HOTEL

Business Man Accused of Murder Attempt.

Fairfield, Tex., March 20.—(AP)—Alleged to have been tied to a bed which was set afire, Miss Wilma Jones was rescued from her smoke filled hotel room here early today, and a few hours later G. S. Moore, prominent business men of Oakwood, was arrested and charged with assault with intent to murder.

Hotel guests who rushed to the girl's room, attracted by the smoke, found the bed in flames, but Miss Jones had rolled off it in time to escape being burned. Her feet are alleged to have been tied to the bed with a lace curtain stripped from a window. She did not suffer greatly from the experience.

Accused of Forgery.

Miss Jones, 23 year old petite brunette, came here yesterday to answer charges of forgery in connection with the attempted cashing of a $250 check bearing the purported signature of Moore, who is a ginner, druggist and land owner. He is married and the father of one child.

She collapsed in the Freestone county courthouse and was taken to the Cook hotel, where she was treated by a physician. The attack occurred around midnight and a few hours later Moore was arrested at his home at Oakwood. Officers reported they pursued an automobile towards Oakwood shortly after the alleged attempt to burn Miss Jones, but were distanced.

Denies Charge at Hearing.

Moore denied any connection with the fire. Taken to Groesbeck, in Limestone county, adjoining Freestone county, because Freestone was without a county judge, Moore was released on $1,000 bond at a hearing at which no evidence was presented. Bond was set at the suggestion of the district attorney. The charge was filed against Moore by W. V. Geppert, county attorney.

Miss Jones was described as the housekeeper for her father and one brother at their home in Buffalo, Leon county. Buffalo and Oakwood are stations on the International and Great Northern railway, ten miles apart.

Wounded in Street Fight; Brother and Friend Held

'COL. J. M.' GUFFEY, ONCE POLITICAL LEADER, IS DEAD

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 20.—[Special.]—Col. James M. Guffey, a pioneer in the oil and gas development of Pennsylvania and for fifty years active Democratic leader in the state, died at his home here early this morning. He was born on a farm near Madison, Pa., in 1839. At the age of 13 he became a clerk for the Louisville and Nashville railroad at Louisville.

He returned to Pennsylvania in 1865 and became interested in the Pennsylvania oil boom. He amassed a considerable fortune in oil and gas properties and turned to politics.

After coming to Pittsburgh he became active in Democratic councils. He played a conspicuous part in Grover Cleveland's three campaigns.

In 1896 he supported William Jennings Bryan, running as the Democratic nominee for the presidency. Mr. Guffey then was elected Pennsylvania's member of the Democratic national committee, a position carrying with it the Democratic leadership in the state, which he held sixteen years.

In 1908 he broke with Bryan, candidate for the third time that year, and Bryan's friends unseated Guffey delegates from Pennsylvania to the Democratic national convention in Denver. At this time much publicity was given to the fact that Guffey had made Bryan a present of some stained glass windows for his home in Lincoln, Neb. This greatly embarrassed Bryan, who, with the window already installed, was unable to send it back to Guffey.

In 1910 Guffey went into the hands of a receiver, listing his liabilities as $6,700,000 and his assets at $17,000,000.

MALONE WARS ON TAX FRAUDS AS WORK IS SPEEDED

Three Reported Indicted on Fixing Charges.

Plans for increased vigilance to guard against last minute tax fixing were announced yesterday by William E. Malone, chairman of the state tax commission, as Cook county tax officials were speeding up the reassessment in order to avert a second financial crisis for the local governments. While Mr. Malone was making his announcement indictments charging tax fixing were reported to have been voted by the grand jury against three men.

The steps to be taken by Chairman Malone will safeguard but not delay the tax collection program, he said. Haste is necessary in obtaining the tax revenue, it was pointed out, because the $74,000,000 rescue fund raised by the Strawn citizens' committee will be exhausted on July 1.

Close Scrutiny Promised.

"We will not have the work of many months wiped away in a last minute rush, however," Chairman Malone said. "The sanctity of the reassessment must be preserved. All work done under the pressure of the approaching deadline will be subjected to close scrutiny so that the old evil of inequality may not crop up in new forms.

"Pickpockets are fond of rushes, for it is then that their trade is most lucrative. The same applies to tax fixers. In a hurry and rush they can slip over fixes to line their pockets in the splendor of the late lamented days of wholesale corruption. Now is the time for us to watch and enforce the rules that have scotched the fixers."

Mr. Malone said that the work of the auditors, engaged to scan the books for evidence of fraud and fixing, will cause no delay in the work of the taxing officials. If a halt is impending due to their examination the auditing staff will be increased, he said.

Fairweather Urges Speed.

George O. Fairweather, chairman of the joint commission on real estate valuations, pointed to the danger of further delay in the reassessment in an address before the Men's Club of Hyde Park last night. He charged the present delay to failure of taxing officials to perform their duties and to the pressure brought by politicians.

"Because of unwarranted and criminal delay in the completion of this reassessment it became necessary for a voluntary committee to gather $74,000,000 to meet essential pay rolls until the work is completed," Mr. Fairweather said. "It is hoped that tax collection will occur by July 1, when rescue funds will be exhausted. If this should not happen I believe the community will find itself in a far more desperate situation than that in which it appeared to be a month ago.

Assails Tax Officials.

"The necessity for the rescue committee is a deep scar on the political intelligence of this community and an irreparable stain on our present political leadership. These conditions were forecast months ago by the joint commission and were met by no interest or action in quarters where cooperation was prayed for. The tax officials of this county and the present political leadership have assumed a tremendous responsibility for their failure in the conduct of their offices."

Earlier in the day Mr. Fairweather conferred for several hours with State's Attorney Swanson. The prosecutor said that Mr. Fairweather had turned over to him other information on alleged tax fixing cases. These will be investigated by Assistant State's Attorneys Homer Dodge and Robert Blackwood.

Three Reported Indicted.

Robert Wall and Herman J. Goldberg, real estate tax experts, and Charles Mead, employé of the board of review, are the three men reported named in the first true bills voted by the grand jury as a result of the so-called tax fixing investigation. The three are charged with conspiracy to reduce assessments illegally on a block of near north side property. Mead was reported named alone in a second true bill charging forgery. It is alleged that he changed the tax records to make the reductions possible.

Lawrence Hoffman, youthful clerk in the board of review offices, who, prosecutors said, confessed to evolving the plan by which it was made possible to change the records and reduce valuations, testified before the grand jury. He was not indicted, but will be used as a state's witness, it was said.

TITLED STAR PUT IN ASYLUM

CANNES, France, March 20.—(AP)—Reliable reports here today said that Lady de Freece, known in the United States as Vesta Tilley, former music hall star, had been committed to an asylum for the insane. Lady de Freece is said to have been suffering from a mental disorder for some months and nine weeks ago was taken from her home in Monaco to a private sanitarium in Menton.

"BEST DRESSED CHICAGOAN."

Vesta Tilley, who as a male impersonator was the highest paid vaudeville performer of her time, was born at Worcester, England. Disinclined to reveal her age, she always said that she was born "on the thirteenth of some month, some time ago. She rarely appeared in other than men's clothes. For a time she even set the style for men's clothes in England.

Vesta Tilley made several tours in America. In 1903, when she played in Chicago, she was called the "best dressed man in Chicago." She made her farewell tour in 1919. Her husband, Harry de Freece, was knighted for government services in 1919, was managing director of a string of vaudeville houses in England, and was also member of parliament.

EAST CHICAGO NEGRO SLAYER DIES IN CHAIR

James Britt, a Negro convicted of murder by a jury at East Chicago three months ago, walked calmly to his death in the electric chair in the Indiana penitentiary at Michigan City early this morning.

The death march began at 12:02 a. m. Britt was strapped in the chair at 12:03, the current was applied one minute later, and prison physicians pronounced him dead at 12:10. It was the first state electrocution in Indiana since 1926.

Britt was tried for the murder of Sam Goldberg, who had testified before the federal grand jury investigating vice and graft in Lake county, Ind. Convicted just 103 days ago, his electrocution was declared illegal by observers, who cited the mandate in the sentence declaring that sentence must be executed within 100 days. Fifteen hundred petitioners signed a paper asking Gov. Harry G. Leslie to commute the sentence to life imprisonment. No word came from the governor, who is aboard the yacht of Norman Perry, Indianapolis utilities magnate, in Florida waters.

GOVERNOR SAYS TAXING SYSTEM IS OUT OF DATE

Addresses Utility Men and Farmers.

Springfield, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—Gov. Emmerson, appearing before the joint conference of utility men and farmers, today discussed the taxing situation with reference to the future prosperity of the state.

"The state," he said, "is operating with a tax system that is hopelessly out of date. Our revenue structure is as anachronistic as would be a team of oxen in these days of rapid transportation.

"The uniform rule is the basis of Illinois' taxing system. Theoretically it should operate so that each person's taxes would be in proportion to the value of his property. Practically it does not, because it is extremely difficult under the present system to tax intangibles."

Constitution Change First.

"As I view the situation, Illinois' present tax problems are constitutional and administrative. A solution of the first would not affect the second. With a constitutional amendment, however, that would enable the state to impose, as nearly as possible, the proper share of the cost of government upon intangibles, a part of our tax trouble would be solved. Then we could turn to solutions of the administrative problems.

"Without question our assessment machinery should be reorganized and modernized. In its present form it is too decentralized and cumbersome to expect fair and equitable assessments. Because it is cumbersome, because authority and responsibility are so divided, are two of the reasons why the farms of our state, the homes and business property are paying an unjust port of the expense of government."

The governor's address was the feature of an unusual gathering. Representatives of the Illinois Agricultural society, electric railway, and gas and electric associations, the Farmers institute, and home bureau association participated.

Earl Smith Among Speakers.

The speakers included Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association; B. J. Mullaney, president of the Gas association, and J. Paulton, vice president of the Central Illinois Public Service company; Mrs. Henry J. Miles, Pontiac, president of Illinois Home Bureau Federation, and Lee J. Quasey, of the Illinois Agricultural association.

URGES SPEAKING GROUND FOR REDS AS 11 GO ON TRIAL

Trial of eleven radical agitators, who were taken into custody after they attempted to storm the city hall on Feb. 21, began yesterday before Judge Freeman L. Fairbanks, who is presiding in the jury branch of the Municipal court.

"Chicago should set aside some semi-public playground or park to allow these men and women of radical tendencies to meet and discuss their ills and wrongs of the workingmen," said Martin Durkin, the vice president of the building trades council.

"London has this arrangement. The Bug club at Washington park holds its meetings unmolested. Such action would stop the manipulations of a group of racketeers who prey upon these folk. Labor pays no attention to them any more, and they would be getting a break if given public protection in the way of affording them a meeting place in open spaces."

Woman Seeks Seat Held by Lloyd George 40 Years

LONDON, March 20.—(AP)—David Lloyd George will not be returned by acclamation at the next election. Mrs. Mary William Hamilton, Liverpool Labor councilor, has consented to run against the former prime minister. She had an invitation some days ago from the Laborites to Carnarvon, Mr. Lloyd George's constituency for the last 40 years.

FARM MEN BACK U. S. RELIEF, BUT HINT AT CHANGES

Equalizing Fee Discussed by Federation Chiefs.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Some indications that governmental attempt at farm relief are not wholly satisfactory to all farmers were reported to have developed in a discussion by members of the board of directors of the American Farm Bureau federation at their quarterly business meeting in Chicago yesterday.

The federal agricultural marketing act and the federal farm loan board administering it are too new yet to judge their effectiveness, the farm bureau leaders declared. Yet sentiment is still strong among the federation's membership of nearly a million farmers that there may come a time when the act may need modifying, it was said.

Sentiment for Equalization Fee.

"In a general way," said A. J. Olsen of Renville, Minn., farmer and president of his state farm bureau organization, "the farmers back home feel that before this marketing act will work satisfactorily we shall have to apply the equalization fee. That sentiment prevails among the people of my own organization, and among other groups in Minnesota as well. Some groups that were not previously favorable to the old McNary-Haugen bill are now out for the equalization fee. We're hearing on every hand that it ought to be tried out."

The equalization fee was described as a means of disposing of crop surplus in world markets outside the United States and thus enabling the farmer to sell his products at a better price inside the tariff barriers. In operation, according to its advocates, the plan would assess the loss in selling the surplus at reduced price directly against the farmer, but the latter would be able to meet this levy from the increased price of his products within the country and still retain a profit.

Thompson Tells Position.

S. H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, explained that months ago his organization pledged itself to support the federal farm board. He added that the federation is still wholeheartedly behind Chairman Alexander Legge and the other board members in their endeavors to administer the agricultural marketing act.

"In the few months that the farm board has been in existence it has scarcely had time to give a thorough test to the marketing act," Mr. Thompson said. "This the board is entitled to."

At the close of the directors' meeting last night the federation announced the selection of Boston for the 14th annual meeting of the organization, to be held on Dec. 8, 9, and 10.

Teacher and Pupil Hurt When Test Tube Bursts

Miss Goldie Robbins of Lombard, a teacher at Kelvyn Park Junior High school, and Donald Steinhaus, 16 year old pupil of 2210 North Kildare avenue, were cut by glass fragments in the school laboratory when a test tube burst as the pupil was performing a chemistry experiment. Both were taken to the Keystone hospital.

GAS STATION OWNER ROBBED.

DR. COOK IS GIVEN DIRECTOR'S POST BY BOYS' REPUBLIC

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the former arctic explorer recently released from a five year stay in Leavenworth penitentiary, last night accepted an offer to become permanent physical director of the Boys' Brotherhood Republic, 1532 South Hamlin avenue, and to direct the organization's summer camp at Burlington, Wis.

This expression of confidence in the 65 year old man was surpassed a moment later when, to the cheers of 900 boys, he was made a life member of the republic, a distinction shared by but two persons before him—Mrs. Marshall Field and the late President Theodore Roosevelt. Dr. Cook wept as he stuffed the membership certificate in his pocket.

Spokesmen for the boys say they believe the doctor "has not had a square deal" and offered him the position with the stipulation that he can always make the republic his headquarters. He plans to establish a health center there, and will probably serve as chemistry instructor in addition. His past troubles included his "discovery" of the north pole over twenty years ago and his later use of the mails to defraud in connection with sale of oil lands.

Twelve members of the Executives' club of Chicago yesterday took their first flight in an airplane. In the cabin of a tri-motored plane of the Universal Air Lines the executives flew from the municipal airport to Curtiss field near Glenview to view the site of the 1930 national air races.

The party was led by Maj. Reed Landis. While in the air the group passed a resolution favoring the Watrus bill which is designed to stimulate the growth of air lines. Besides Maj. Landis those who made the trip are R. E. P. Kline, president of the club; Lucius E. Wilson, C. E. Duval, Harry E. Eldridge, Bert L. Parsons, Dr. A. J. Pacini, Jay M. Wainwright, George A. Morren, Willard R. Rhoden, A. W. Merrifield and William Bethke.

RUSSIA TO WAGE WAR ON GOD WITH SILK GLOVE ARMY

Peaceful Persuasion Will Succeed Force.

MOSCOW, March 20.—(AP)—Russian atheists at the opening of the all-union congress of atheists tonight declared that their propagandists must abandon the idea that religion can be exterminated in Russia overnight.

Successive speakers told the delegates to the congress, the proceedings of which were broadcast all over the country, that excesses committed by atheistic workers and village officials in the soviet war on religion must fortwith cease.

They warned their hearers that no attempt must be made to close churches by force, to remove church bells, to coerce peasants into joining the league of the godless, or to proclaim whole districts as "atheistic regions."

Urges Peaceful Persuasion.

Only by peaceful argument, persuasion, and propaganda, and by scientific explanation, said Emelyan Yaroslavsky, chairman of the Society of Militant Atheists, should members of the society attempt to remove God and religion from the hearts of the people.

Throughout the proceedings it was apparent the speakers had been instructed by government authorities to call atheist propagandists to account for the extremes to which they had gone in trying to convert the soviet union all at once into a land without God, religion, or church.

At the same time the speakers lashed out at Pope Pius for his recent denunciation of the anti-religious campaign, and for his prayers and yesterday's service at St. Peter's. They said there must be no slackening in the communist war on the church by legal and peaceful means.

Special Attention to Women.

Discussing the atheist society's five year plan for activities against religion, Yaroslavsky declared that propaganda must be particularly intensified among women, who, he said, were more ignorant and superstitious than men. Special attention was also to be given to children.

The games, the play, the books, and in short all the activities of children must be "permeated with atheistic and materialistic principles."

"Quality rather than quantity must be the watchword in our activities," he said. "We must not strive for big figures in the number of churches closed, but rather for the progressive conversion of the peasants and the workers into atheists by rational, scientific and enlightened work.

"No Excesses or Force."

"Nor must the closing of the churches be considered the first problem in collective farm areas. We must first make atheists of the peasants, and then the peasants will close the churches themselves. Any excesses or force in this direction will only make them more fanatical and religious."

Under the caption, "Your blood-stained hands are too short to strangle soviet workers," the official atheist organ, the Godless One, today printed a drawing of the pope sitting on a throne while victim after victim of religious inquisition was hanged and tortured before him.

EUROPA SAILS TO U. S.; SEEKS BLUE RIBBON OF SPEED

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. EUROPA, SOUTHAMPTON, England, March 20.—At a steady average speed of 22 knots the steamer Europa, christened by Jacot Gould Schurman, former American ambassador to Germany, forged ahead in the North sea channel, covering the sea distance from Bremerhaven to Southampton in 16 hours 5 minutes, and stands a fair chance to win the blue ribbon of the Atlantic from her sister ship, the Bremen, which holds the record with 4 days 17 hours and 24 minutes.

But the main goal of the Europa's commodore, Capt. Nicualaus Johnsen is to prove, through a smooth, unspectacular crossing, that the foolish superstitions which tried to stamp the Europa as a hoodoo ship are unfounded. The superstitions resulted from the spectacular fire aboard the Europa at Hamburg last March after which she had to be entirely refitted.

Runs Into Atlantic Gales.

CHERBOURG, France, March 20.—(AP)—Off for New York on her first Atlantic crossing, the Europa steamed out of port into headwinds and westerly gales tonight. She remained in the roads only 65 minutes, a call record breaking for its shortness. A hundred miles out the big liner wirelessed that she had run into violent headwinds.

Pig Jumps on Carolina Farmer; He Dies of Injuries

Monroe, N. C. March 20.—(AP)—S. B. Thompson, 50, farmer, died today from injuries received yesterday when a pig resisted his efforts to take it to a slaughter pen.

Thompson had placed the pig in a truck and was tying it when it broke loose, knocked him from the truck and fell on him. The farmer was injured internally.

CHICAGO AREA IS INCLUDED IN ROAD PROGRAM

Widening Contracts Will Be Let in April.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—State Highway Engineer Sheets today ordered widening of radial routes in the metropolitan area included in the contracts to be let on April 11, inaugurating the state's 1930 road building program.

Action was made possible by Director Cleaveland of the department of public works in announcing a paving policy to care for the immediate needs of traffic, as well as to anticipate the future.

Mr. Cleaveland's decision, following a conference with Cook County Highway Engineer Quinlan, will permit work this spring which otherwise would have been delayed two or three years.

Milwaukee Road Included.

Projects likely to be included in the April 11 contracts are: The widening of Milwaukee road from Dempster street to Devon avenue, 2.7 miles; the widening of Northwest highway from Des Plaines to Palatine, 6 miles; the widening of South Halsted street from 127th street to Chicago Heights, 5 miles, and completion of route 64, the North avenue 40 foot highway to St. Charles.

The state highway department had requested the counties to furnish 100 foot rights of way for roads on which the state planned to add 20 feet of concrete to existing 20 foot pavements. The 100 feet was required to accommodate parking space and sidewalks in addition to four lanes of traffic.

Cook county was unable to procure the 100 feet through villages around Chicago, so the state highway department yesterday announced its first 1930 projects without including any widening.

Seeks to Avoid Delay.

Mr. Quinlan produced evidence today that to await the acquisition of additional width would delay urgently needed projects for two or three years.

"I agree with you," said Mr. Cleaveland. "The governor's desires are the same as yours. All of us want to give prompt relief to traffic congestion in the metropolitan area.

"However, we would be remiss of our duty if we did not plan for the future, when a four lane pavement will be considered a narrow road. We'll continue to insist upon a hundred foot right of way wherever it can be obtained."

"We'll make exceptions of those places where there is now room for 40 feet of concrete and where existing buildings prohibit the purchase of additional width at a reasonable cost. For these exceptions the state will demand that building lines be established to permit the acquisition of wider right of way gradually so that the future generation will be assured of at least 100 feet for the entire length of the state's highways."

Many Contracts to Be Let.

"We'll get to the other improvements in the state's $19,000,000 biennial program for the metropolitan area just as quickly as possible," said Mr. Cleaveland. "We're devoting every effort to the preliminary work. We'll soon be awarding contracts every two or three weeks."

Mr. Sheets pointed out that Dupage county, just west of Cook, wants 160 and 200 foot rights of way on wide arterial highways to permit landscaped esplanades between 20 foot strips of concrete.

A second development of today's meeting of highway officials was granting of a request for the county to erect markers on state highways to guide traffic into and through Chicago.

FINED $100 ON GIRL'S CHARGE.

Charged with making improper advances to a 13 year old girl, George Laurion, 65 years old, 331 Center street, who had been placed on probation for the same offense last September, was fined $100 yesterday by Judge Erickson in Chicago avenue court.

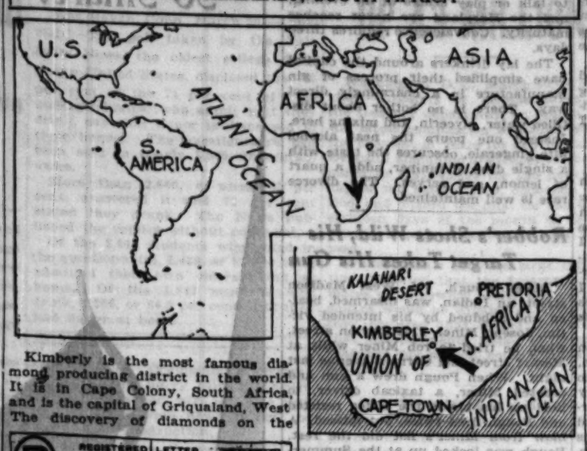
FROM KIMBERLY, SOUTH AFRICA



Kimberly is the most famous diamond producing district in the world. It is in Cape Colony, South Africa, and is the capital of Griqualand, West. The discovery of diamonds on the land of the Dutch farmers dates back to 1867 and since then has produced 95 per cent of the world's output of these precious stones. Cecil Rhodes' fortune and his dreams of a British South African dominion had their source in the Kimberly diamond mines. "Barney" Barnato was another famous diamond king whose interests were amalgamated with Rhodes' interests in 1889. During the Boer war, 1899-1900, Kimberly, led by Cecil Rhodes, withstood a four month siege.

73 BOMBERS AND 50 ATTACK PLANES ARE ORDERED BY U. S. ARMY

Washington, D. C., March 20.—(AP)—Contracts for fifty new attack planes and seventy-three bombing planes at a cost of $2,909,500 were awarded today by the war department.

The attack planes will be built by the Curtiss Airplane and Motor company. They will be of the model A-3B. When delivered, the army will have a total of seventy-eight planes of this type.

The Keystone Aircraft corporation was awarded the contract for the bombardment planes at a cost of $2,208,100.

Each of these giant bombers will be powered with two Pratt & Whitney 525 horsepower air cooled engines.

At the same time the department announced that procurement of new army airplanes from funds which may become available for the fiscal year 1931 was being held up until the appropriation bill now before congress has been passed.

ENGAGEMENT TO MAJ. SHEPARD DENIED BY GIRL

San Antonio, Tex., March 20.—(AP)—Denial that she is engaged to Maj. Charles A. Shepard, army surgeon under arrest at Denver for the alleged poison murder of his wife, is contained in a report of an interview with Miss Grace Brandon, stenographer at Brooks field here, forwarded to Denver today by department of justice agents.

Gust Jones, agent in charge, said Miss Brandon admitted that Maj. Shepard was a friend, but denied any closer relationship. She said Maj. Shepard had sent her flowers and candy.

The couple will make their home in Yorkville.

SAYS WOMAN WAS SLAIN, BODY PUT ON TRACKS

Belief that Miss Bonnie Norvydis, 40 years old, a divorcée, formerly of Chicago, had been murdered and her body placed on the Monon railroad tracks near Lowell, Ind., was expressed by Coroner Allan W. Kenoyer of Newton county, Indiana, last night.

The body was carried 190 feet by the train which struck it. A search of the tracks disclosed a carving knife with stains thought to be blood near where the body had apparently been placed. Two handkerchiefs saturated with blood, and two bottles containing Paris green also were found.

"The woman's body was so mangled that it was impossible to determine if she had been killed by the knife," said the coroner. "For the same reason it was impossible to determine if there was Paris green in her stomach. But there undoubtedly was foul play in causing her death."

The coroner was investigating a report that Miss Norvydis was carrying $1,000, her life's savings, when she left the farm where she was employed shortly before she was killed. She was employed as a cook.

After an inquest, at which the jurors returned a verdict of "death by causes unknown," the body was sent to Chicago at the request of the woman's former husband, John Shimalus, 4634 South Whipple street.

Sheriff J. D. Bartholomew said he would question four men who had been living at the farm of A. Jonikas, where the woman worked.

CHARGES SPOUSE FORCED HER TO GO TO SPEAKEASIES

Mrs. Mary Alice Trumbull, 4626 Lake Park avenue, yesterday filed a bill for divorce in the Superior court against her husband, George Borden Trumbull, insurance broker. She charged cruelty and habitual drunkenness and alleges that her husband caused her to be confined in the psychopathic hospital on Feb. 26 when she suffered a nervous breakdown because of his cruelty. She was discharged on Wednesday. The Trumbulls were married on July 2, 1924. Mrs. Trumbull avers that her husband forced her to drink and to frequent speakeasies. She estimates his holdings at $500,000 and asks for alimony.

RENEW DREDGING OF SEAWAY ROUTE IN ILLINOIS RIVER

U. S. May Extend Barge Line to Peoria.

Dredging in the Illinois waterway below Starved Rock and at several other points has been resumed, according to an announcement yesterday from the state waterways department. The statement revealed that the government's barge service may be extended up the Illinois river from the Mississippi as far as Peoria immediately.

Moreover, if the government were to appropriate sufficient funds to complete its part of the channel work from Lockport to Utica, barge service would be ready for extension to Chicago by July 1, 1932, the statement said. The long awaited dream of fleets of barges towed by tugs, transporting materials from New Orleans to Lake Michigan can be realized in little more than two years, it was pointed out.

Seven-Foot Channel Open.

"There now is a seven-foot channel from the mouth of the Illinois up to Peoria," the statement said. "That is deeper than the upper Mississippi, where government barges now ply. There is only a six-foot channel there."

An engineer gave it as his opinion that immediate extension of the barge service, as least as far as Peoria, would prove profitable. In addition, the middle west would have an opportunity of observing the benefits of waterway transportation, he explained.

Sounding of the river last summer by E. H. Heilbron, Illinois valley engineer for the sanitary district, showed how little work is needed to make the 43¼ mile stretch between Dresden Heights and Utica navigable. Mr. Heilbron at that time found a minimum depth of seven feet.

Little Work Unfinished.

Thus, with the necessary appropriation from the government, now before congress, the only work remaining to be completed is certain concrete work at the Dresden Island dam, the construction of a dam at Marseilles, a small amount of dredging, and a little other unfinished construction, it was asserted.

"The state is ready, and has the money, to rebuild the bridges over the waterway if the government does its part," a waterway engineer declared. "The first fleet of tugs could cruise over the waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi by July 1, 1932, if the government cooperates."

Two Women, Baby Killed by Falls in Their Homes

Three persons were killed in Chicago by falls yesterday. Thomas Garde, 10 months old, 326 South Oakley avenue, rolled from a bed and fell to the floor, receiving fatal injuries. Mrs. Louise Christensen, 38 years old, 4136 West Lake street, died of injuries suffered when she fell from a window of her second floor flat as she was washing a window. Miss Anna Daly, 70 years old, died in the St. Francis hospital in Evanston of injuries received on Jan. 15 when she fell on the stairs at the home of Miss Alice J. Comstock, 1302 Asbury avenue, where she was employed as a maid.

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—The Literary Digest prohibition poll—a poll that represents 20,000,000 ballots sent out and $200,000 in 1 cent stamps—continues strongly "wet" and "very moist."

The second week's returns, announced by the Literary Digest today, show that those who have favored either absolute repeal of the eighteenth amendment or modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of light wines and beer far surpass those who advocate strict enforcement.

703,935 Votes Polled.

Of the 703,935 returns received and tabulated thus far, 287,888, or slightly more than 40 per cent, are against the eighteenth amendment, while 234,141 want light wines and beer. In comparison, only 191,909, representing the balance, are for strict enforcement.

These returns are based on twenty states and the District of Columbia, while last week's returns, the first to be announced, were based on ten states and totaled 291,588 votes. There is just one state that so far prefers strict enforcement. It is Kansas. Tabulation there is: For enforcement, 11,963; for modification, 4,721, and for repeal, 2,843.

Washington City Wet.

The District of Columbia, the district which was to be converted into a model example of law enforcement some time ago, wishes repeal by a vote of more than two to one, and this does not include its "moderation" vote. The exact figures are: Repeal, 2,227; modification, 1,326; enforcement, 1,022.

The first solid south state to be recorded by the Literary Digest is Georgia, and there the vote is fairly equally divided in the three categories, but add the two wet votes and you have virtually a 2 to 1 vote against present conditions. The Georgia vote is: Enforcement, 2,529; moderation, 2,054; repeal, 2,024.

Here's Vote by States.

N. Y. BAPTISTS TO BUILD 16 STORY CHURCH-HOTEL

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—The Madison Avenue Baptist church, which has stood at Madison avenue and 31st street since 1858, will be torn down to make way for a $2,000,000 church and apartment hotel building, C. A. Braider, chairman of the board of trustees, said today that the new building will be sixteen stories high and contain an auditorium 40x100 feet.

Evanston to Fire Employes Who Live Outside the Town

Evanston city employes will be discharged unless they live inside the city limits, Mayor Charles H. Bartlett announced last night. Many clerks and laborers were notified last fall that if they lived outside Evanston they must move into the city, he said, but most of them failed to obey the order. Mayor Bartlett declared he was giving a final warning before discharging the nonresidents.

STREET CAR JAM BRINGS 20 POLICE OUT ON RIOT CALL

Nearly 100 Negroes and a few whites, seeking to board a street car en masse at 55th street and University avenue last night after a championship basketball game at Bartlett gymnasium on the University of Chicago campus, started a commotion which brought 20 policemen on a riot call.

The Negroes, who had stood outside the gymnasium receiving reports of the victory of Calumet High school over Wendell Phillips High from an announcer at a window, left the campus before the gymnasium crowd of 5,000 started for the doors. About 30 boarded the street car, which was already half filled, and there was an outcry when the conductor signaled for a start.

Some one jerked the trolley from the wire. In the confusion within the darkened car, several passengers shoved their elbows through windows. The trolley was so twisted as to be useless and the disabled car stood stranded for twenty minutes while traffic was held up for three blocks.

URGES COUNCIL OF WAR ON DRY ENFORCEMENT

ment, Mrs. Boole attacked as unsatisfactory, arguing that the American people want absolute prohibition and nothing but prohibition. She emphasized the point that it was wise and logical for the temperance movement to turn to prohibition by law.

"There is no place in America for a traffic which refuses, or even a group of people who refuse to obey the laws of the country," she concluded. "The prohibition of the beverage traffic is incorporated in the constitution and is binding on all the people. Neither greed nor appetite is an excuse for violating it."

Sees Little Drinking in Chicago.

Mr. Stewart, who spoke extemporaneously for only a few minutes, agreed with Mrs. Boole that "the temperance movement failed in that drunkards were victims of appetites and not free moral agents."

Under prohibition in Chicago, he said, he has seen very little drinking, while in downstate Illinois cities there is hardly any at all.

"Before God," Stewart asserted, "the liquor traffic is wrong and more than half the people of this country think government participation in it is wrong. They will never see government control substituted."

Read Yost's Statement.

The statement sent by Coach Yost of Michigan followed the testimony last week of Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago, also a dry. Coach Yost is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Lenna Yost, generalissimo of the dry testimony.

"In my opinion the college youth of America are not drinking as much as they did in pre-prohibition days,' Yost said. "No one is entirely satisfied with present conditions. Our government tried to control and regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors for a hundred years and made a miserable failure of it. Every one states he is opposed to the return of the saloon. However, any legalized place to sell liquor will serve the same purpose. It is unfortunate that certain people of standing by example furnish a leadership to youth in law violations."

Although the drys today completed the seventh day of their testimony, giving them the same amount of time awarded previously to the wets, Chairman George S. Graham [Rep., Pa.] announced this evening that the hearings will continue next Wednesday with the drys still presenting witnesses. He said he was inclined to be liberal and give them all the time they want, and, later, the wets will return for rebuttal. Indications are that the drys will wind up in one or two more days next week.

DIPLOMATS IN CAPITAL BOON TO THE THIRSTY

Their Social Teas Are Staggering Affairs.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—It was a bit of a surprise to your correspondent to read in the paper on the arrival here of Sir Ronald Lindsay, the new British ambassador, that he had purchased the personal liquor surplus which Sir Esme Howard, the retiring ambassador, left behind when he returned to England a short time ago.

That is to say, it was surprising to learn that Sir Esme had any personal supply at all, much less enough to permit of his leaving a surplus, because he was the one who became fed up with the bother and indignity of importing the stuff and proposed that the diplomats in Washington waive the importing privilege altogether.

That was many months ago, and now Sir Esme has gone home, leaving a surplus. Quite naturally this has been causing some talk among the chaps around town, who figure that Sir Esme must have been sitting over a cellar full of goods when he made the proposition, and doubtless knew that he would be going home before his supply could be exhausted.

A Briton Muddles Through.

Some of the chaps tell your correspondent that this is characteristic of the British diplomats. They are always muddling through somehow. The other ambassadors and ministers in the corps didn't think very well of Sir Esme's idea and, as he didn't press the matter, the foreign legations still remain the only places in Washington where a famished American gent or lady may obtain a decent drink regularly.

In respect to the importation of stimulants the legations are something like the east coast of Florida, save that there is less formality in Florida. Down there, one phones to one's purveyor, who drives up in his car within fifteen minutes. But when a foreign ambassador finds the supply in the bins down cellar running a bit low, he must write or cable to his dealer back home, attend to the clearance of the shipment through the customs up at Baltimore and detail some junior member of his staff, who enjoys diplomatic immunity, to sit on the van with the driver until the goods are unloaded at the kitchen door in Washington.

Extends to Traffic Lights.

Diplomatic immunity permits one to trifle with most of the regulations laid down for the conduct of natives in the capital, including the ordinance against murder. Just at present there is some local agitation for the abrogation of the diplomatic privilege as to the traffic signal, because some young man from one of the South American legations drove past a red light the other evening and climbed through the windshield of a modest chaise driven by a local citizen. The American lad was very badly scuffed up and the sense of the community appears to be that the attaches of foreign legations should drive around the cars of the local residents, and not through them.

But Diplomats are Popular.

However, your correspondent would not wish to create an impression that there is any general hostility toward the members of the diplomatic corps. On the contrary a relation of social cordiality with embassies and legations is the local resident's sole hope of occasional relief from the two standard varieties of sheep dip which constitute the wines of the country, and a man with a fairly wide acquaintance among the ministers or the secretaries may enjoy a fairly consistent round of alcoholic occasions in the afternoons and evenings.

There are fifty or more of these safety zones in Washington, including those of the little banana and cayenne republics, each with its shield bearing the national coat of arms placed over the door, and one with social entrée at all of them, naturally may lay his plans so as to provide for at least one fairly respectable katzenjammer each week.

It Must Be a Bore.

The private opinions which the foreign diplomats entertain regarding the average genteel American must be rather sardonic. They are quite polite at all times, of course, as this is one of the routine obligations of persons in the diplomatic service, but in the legations at night, as the diplomats are kicking off their shoes and muttering, "Thank God, that's over," they must indulge in cracks to the effect that the American born are born bar-flies.

Embassy teas are distinguished by the absence of tea, but there is always a very decorative table of food and, of course, a bar. Traffic around the bars is heavy, but traffic around the sandwich tables is negligible, and one imagines the minister standing at the window on the afternoon of a tea and exclaiming as the guests arrive, "Break out Scotch; here come the Americans."

Everything Is Genteel.

Of course there is never any fighting or stein throwing at these occasions, although the gents and ladies always look forward to them as opportunities to get tight without fear of total and permanent disablement. But the diplomatic tea is a predicament. The American guests, on the whole, are people of quite respectable social instincts and habits, who do not like to be regarded as moochers coming to the parties with their tongues hanging out like red necktiles. And yet it is hard to remain away and, once arrived at a legation, it is beyond human possibility to dissemble the eagerness with which they plunge into the mêlée at the punch bowl.

Foreign diplomats are human, and thus one hears of their performing humanitarian services for their American friends, including congressmen, I suppose, every now and again.

Bottled Good Will.

A bottle or half a case of Scotch appears in an American home and the American, on his part, can never again believe any evil of the land whose minister did this kindly thing. If I were a foreign ambassador, with instructions to hook an influential American business man or politician, I should try him with a half dozen cases of champagne quietly delivered at his home.

After some inquiry, undertaken strictly in the interests of journalism, your correspondent is quite able to report that the wines of the country in these parts are unusually pernicious, consisting mainly of Maryland moonshine distilled on the farms around about the District of Columbia and reclaimed alcohol, both purveyed by the familiar American household bootlegger.

The Maryland rye is delivered raw, no more than one week old, and the theoretical procedure is to age it for at least three months in a charred barrel in some clothes closet. But, of course, people are always popping in to talk or play bridge of an evening, and the Maryland rye never reaches maturity. Convalescence requires three days.

The lay drinkers around the capital have simplified their process of gin manufacture in a charmingly direct way. There is no bother about distilled water, glycerin, and mixing here. Instead one pours the neat alcohol into gingerale, obscures the taste with a single drop of juniper, adds a quart of lemon, and serves. The divorce rate is well maintained.

PROHIBITION PARTY, 11 STRONG, MEETS AND ADOPTS ITS PLATFORM

Indianapolis, Ind., March 20.—[Special.]—The Indiana Prohibition party assembled here today to go through the empty routine of adopting a state platform and nominating a complete state ticket. There were only eleven representatives present.

Casual mention was made to the national prohibition straw vote now being conducted, but the subject was turned aside with a jest. Finally the eleven adopted a platform presented by B. L. Allen, Indianapolis, state chairman and head of the platform committee. Salient points in the platform were:

A declaration that the liquor traffic continues as the curse of the age; that the laws are not being enforced to their fullest extent; that the two dominant parties are divided on the prohibition question to a point that operates to the detriment of the cause, and that many prohibition enforcement officials are derelict in their duty and should be discharged. It also was set forth that prohibition has "long since passed the experimental stage," is a "blessing" where thoroughly enforced and observed, and that it can be enforced anywhere if placed in the hands of a party pledged to its enforcement.

Robber's Shots Wild, His Target Takes His Gun

James Pough, 945 West Madison street, an Indian, was disarmed, beaten and subdued by his intended victim, Joseph Miner, 2101 Dayton street, when he tried to rob Miner while at Mozart street and Carmen avenue last night. When Pough drew a gun and ordered Miner, a taxicab driver, to hold up his hands the latter resisted and Pough fired twice, but missed. A blow from Miner's fist did the rest. Pough was locked up at the Summerdale police station.

New Kind of Salts Taking Country By Storm

They Revitalize the System—Induce Youthful Activity —Keep Body in Splendid Condition— Free From Fat.

It doesn't take long for Americans to wake up to a good thing—only a few months ago Kruschen Salts were introduced into this country and the welcome news of their superior goodness and swift rejuvenating power traveled so fast that at one time the supply was many carloads behind the demand.

All of which goes to prove that Americans know good salts when they take them and want their friends to benefit also.

Kruschen Salts are taken for their health building value all over the world—they are the largest selling medicinal salts in Great Britain today.

Kruschen Salts are different from other salts—Kruschen is six salts in one—the very same six salts that nature put into the human body at the beginning of creation and demands you keep them there or your health won't be as good as it should be.

Unlike most salts Kruschen isn't simply a laxative—if that's all you want any old kind of salts with any kind of a label will do—but is that all you want?

When you take Kruschen Salts you not only stimulate your bowels, liver and kidneys to function naturally and perfectly, but you supply every internal organ, gland, nerve and fibre in the body with nature's own revitalizing and rejuvenating minerals.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85c at any drug store in America—take one half a teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—in just a few days indolence changes to activity and life grows brighter.

Before the bottle is empty you'll feel years younger—eyes will brighten—step grow sprightlier—nerves steadier—you'll sleep sound, enjoy your meals and after a hard day's work you'll be ready for wholesome recreation—one million Americans know all this—ask your druggist.

SEIZE 40 MEN, 7,000 BARRELS OF BEER IN RAID

Agents Also Get Five Truckloads of Brew.

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—Forty men, 7,000 barrels of beer and five truckloads of the same beverage were convoyed over to the federal prohibition headquarters in Newark, N. J., today by thirteen agents, following a spectacular raid on a garage some blocks away.

They stormed in with rifles and pistols, smashed down the dropdoor of the garage by the simple and direct method of driving a heavy truck through it, and caught nine men filling barrels with beer which flowed out of five taps from a 500 foot pipeline leading to the old Hensler brewery down the street.

Mop Up Garage.

The agents mopped up in the garage, left a man on guard, then pushed through a wildly excited crowd to corral thirty-one men and the rest of the beer in the brewery. When they got through, it was officially announced the seizure was probably the biggest ever made in New Jersey.

Most of the excitement in the crowd was the result of a misinterpretation of the raid. Occupants of nearby buildings sent hurry calls for police, reporting hijackers with machine guns had appeared from nowhere bent on murder and destruction.

Threaten Cameramen.

Newspaper cameramen were jostled and threatened by hard featured guards who were believed to be employés of the beer makers. As prisoners and contraband were loaded into trucks for removal, the crowd booed the agents and remained in the neighborhood until police shooed them off.

LIQUOR IS SERVED IN HOMES OF 65 PER CENT OF YALE DRINKERS

New Haven, Conn., March 20.—[Special.]—The poll taken by the Yale Daily News, the oldest college daily in the United States, disclosed that 65 per cent of the 71 per cent of Yale undergraduates, who admit that they drink, say that liquor is dispensed in their homes. The questionnaire had been sent to nearly 3,000 undergraduates.

More than 2,600, or about 85 per cent, answered it and 71 per cent stated they drank. The News published the replies without comment.

Of the 2,648 students who voted in the questionnaire, 1,439, or 58 per cent, admitted their own elders drink at home. Of the 1,847 students who drink, 1,206, or 64.5 per cent, said they had liquor at home.

MARCH INCOME TAX RECEIPTS UP 43 MILLIONS

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—Receipts of income taxes at the treasury department on March 18, the latest compilation available, were the heaviest in years for any one day. Deposits amounted to $214,534,548, compared to $161,743,890 for the heaviest day of the March, 1929, collection period, and pushed the total for the first eighteen days of the month to $314,200,555, a gain of $43,000,000 over last year.

While officials said the large collection indicated that the treasury estimates of somewhat under 550 million dollars would be equaled or exceeded, they declared that it did not mean that the payments would be greater than the 601 million dollars taken in last March.

ADD TWO MILLION HERE.

More than $2,000,000 in income tax payments were tabulated yesterday, bringing the total collections since Jan. 1 for the first district of Illinois to $52,752,728 as compared with $59,150,803.93 for the same period last year.

As the total collections for the first quarter last year were only $59,563,115, and checks are still arriving at the internal revenue office, the final first quarter figures for this year are expected to be within $5,000,000 of those for 1929. A $10,000,000 drop because of the reduced tax rate had been expected by Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, collector.

"Change the lapel, and you've changed the style"! A wise old saying—and true—that suddenly pops into the fashion headlines with renewed vigor. For after three seasons of more or less "sameness," it's a joy to greet these three new lapels—and the three new sack coats they introduce.

We men don't often get the chance to change our lines with such decided advantage to our appearance. That's why we're taking the new lines of our lapels so seriously this Spring. They completely change the "set" of the shoulders by making them appear broader. And they produce a jaunty, deep-chested effect that's flattering to us all; and that will quickly erase any lingering memories of drab Winter.

At Bond's, these newcomers are faultlessly reproduced from the original models brought from London (we'll cross more than an ocean, if necessary, to get complete "style assurance").

And at Bond's you'll see these newcomers developed in the proudest fabrics of our American looms — woolens that have withstood the most punishing tests for wear, before we accept them for you to wear. FASHION— LIKE TIME AND TIDE WAITS FOR NO ONE!

Fashion and time go hand-in-hand these days. . . . Your last season's hat is just as out-of-date as last month's love affair. You must take fashion by the forelock, and buy your tomorrow's dress today. That's why so many people of intelligence shop at Mandel's . . . for we've made it our business to know in advance what's what in fashion.

We've alert representatives in the fashion centers of the world . . . at the Paris showings, on the beach at Deauville and Miami, at Long Island Hunts . . . everywhere that fashions first begin. These keen young people are all eyes and ears—they never miss a fraction of an inch in cut, the slightest shade of color, or a difference of detail. So when we get to market we're forewarned for fashion . . . we're able to secure exclusive fashions at most democratic prices.

For our 75th Anniversary we've seen to it that our fashions are on their very best behavior. Alert young-minded Chicagoans of all ages will approve—for they know that Mandel's is

• a store of youth
• a store of fashion
• a store of . . . . moderate price!

MANDEL'S 75th YEAR

6 FOOT IRISH COP MIMICS ACTORS IN MAE'S SEX SHOW

Takes Off Falsettos and Dainty Dances.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—"When the curtain went up it shewed a back stage scene with three old scrubladies at work. Then this female impersonator that called himself the 'Bird of Paradise' walked on the stage. He was dressed like a man at first and wore a derby hat, but the next time I saw him he was stripped to the waist and had on what I call silk panties."

Police Capt. James J. Coy, chief drama critic of the force, looked expectantly at a thoroughly attentive jury of middle aged business men. Judge Amedeo Bertini drew the folds of his black robe close about his shoulders. Mae West, the author-actress, flashed one of her infrequent smiles at the witness, and those of the fifty-five other defendants recruited from the cast of that dramatic masterpiece, "Pleasure Man," who were in the courtroom stirred eagerly in their seats.

"Go on," boomed James Garrett Wallace, assistant district attorney, who is prosecuting Broadway Mae and her actors for giving an "indecent and immoral" play.

Opens Garbage Pail.

Right then and there this afternoon a six foot Irish police captain, who is as masculine as a Bull Durham cigaret, kicked the lid squarely off the garbage pail and began to drag out a lot of things that do not thrive in sunlight.

The policeman without evidence of embarrassment, mocked the "high falsetto" of the female impersonators, wiggled his shoulders just as they had wiggled their shoulders, and repeated a half dozen jokes that were old on Broadway when they were told in horse cars.

In addition to the "bold of paradise," the cop-critic described in detail the antics of an actor known as "Pork Chops," recounted the petting ability of one "Suga Foot," and told of the gent who sang "Queen of the Peaches," the theme song, with an east side falsetto accent.

Dances a Step or Two.

He lapsed into police court adjectives to describe how the "Jolsen mammy singer" of the show put over his songs and got down from the witness chair to demonstrate a few steps of a ballet he saw in the second act danced by actors clad in women's garments.

Coy made his big hit of the day when he described in graphic detail an acrobatic act that the rawest burlesque house would forbid. It does not lend itself to newspaper repetition.

"After the third act got going," said Coy, "I knew we would have to break it up. The scene was at a sort of a party in the apartment of a character called 'Toto.' There was a murder by mutilation and five of us went back stage and ordered the curtain down. I asked the manager for the manuscript of the play and he said there wasn't any. He said he did not have a prompting book."

"A Great Lover."

Mr. Wallace put on the curtain raiser this morning. The rotund prosecutor did not mince words in describing the show he says Mae West authored.

"The chief character in this play," said Wallace, "is known as Henry Tyrrell and he is shown as a man whose main object in life is to have as many love affairs as possible with as many women as possible. The play is a cross section of a cheap theatrical troupe. There are men in the cast who dress as women and talk like women, giving the effect they are degenerates. They sing songs and engage in dialogue using words that convey double meanings.

"The scene in the first act is a stage of a vaudeville house in a small midwestern city. The second act shows the dressing rooms where men dressed in women's underclothing sit making up. The third and final act sees the murder of the 'Bird of Paradise,' in order to protect womanhood.

"We expect to prove the words of the songs, the motion of the actors, and the dialogue have double meaning and that the play is indecent, immoral and obscene within the meaning of the law."

Just Family Folk.

Nathan Burkan, attorney for Mae West and the members of the cast, defended the play and the actors before the jury.

"We will show you these men and women on trial are respectable men and women, some of them married and with families.

"As to the subject of female impersonators—they do it in all college shows and at the Lambs gambol. The acrobatic stunt referred to is an old vaudeville act. This show, 'Pleasure Man,' played in September, 1928, in the Bronx Opera house, later on Long Island. There was no objection then. The good people of the Bronx approved this play."

Washington, D. C., March 20. —[Special.]—Fred H. Haggerson, president of the Union Carbide company, from whom Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, solicited a contribution for the Muscle Shoals lobby, and W. E. Moore, in whose name the money was deposited with a New York stock brokerage firm, will appear before the senate's lobby committee tomorrow.

Summonses were issued after Huston emphatically denied any intention of resigning the Republican party chairmanship as long as the affairs of the Tennessee River Improvement association and his activities as its president for many years are under fire of the coalition-controlled senate committee.

Meanwhile it is reliably reported that a number of anxious Republican senators have dicussed with President Hoover the disclosures before the lobby committee.

Moses Confers with Hoover.

Senator G. H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, refused to affirm or deny reports that he and the President discussed Huston's testimony today when the New Hampshire senator was a White House visitor.

Huston relinquished the presidency of the Tennessee River Improvement association, an avowed lobby, in behalf of the American Cyanamid company's bid for the Muscle Shoals power and fertilizer plant, last August, when he accepted the national committee post.

In another two hour grilling today Huston insisted to the senators that both he and Haggerson understood that the Carbide company's $36,100 contribution to the Tennessee River Improvement association was intended to defray some of the cost of maps, charts, and surveys of southern power possibilities made by the association.

J. W. Worthington, chairman of the association's executive committee, has been ill for years, and, Huston explained, it was agreed that if he died the Carbide company, in consideration of its substantial contribution, would be allowed to take over the maps, charts, and surveys.

Huston Again Questioned.

"But what right did you have to sell the association's property?" Senator T. H. Caraway [Dem., Ark.], chairman of the committee, asked several times.

"I was president of the association," Huston retorted each time.

When confronted by Senator Hugo Black [Dem., Ala.] with discrepancies between his own testimony and that of C. H. Krickl, member of Blyth & Bonner, the New York stock brokers, Huston asserted that he had not authorized Moore to use the Carbide company's contribution as margin in market purchases and did not know it was so used until he heard Krickl testify yesterday. The money, Huston insisted, was turned over to Moore, his confidential agent, as a matter of convenience only, and, he added, records before the committee prove that whether or not the brokerage firm used the Carbide company checks as margins, the amount was "promptly and properly disbursed" to the improvement association for which it was intended.

MELLON FLAYED AND DEFENDED ON TAX REFUNDS

Hawley Answers Charge of Garner in House.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon was defended in the house today for the treasury department's method of handling tax refund cases and assailed for "estimating the revenue of the country according to the way the treasury wants legislation to go."

Chairman Hawley of the joint committee on internal revenue legislation, which passes upon tax refunds of more than $75,000 proposed by the internal revenue bureau, replied to recent criticism of the $33,000,000 refund to the United States Steel corporation with the statement that the refund was just and was awarded only after careful study.

Garner Renews Charge.

Representative Garner of Texas, the Democratic leader, renewed his charges that the refund had not been scrutinized sufficiently and added to this the accusation that treasury estimates of the country's revenue were "intentionally incorrect."

Hawley, in referring to Garner's demand last week for a house committee to investigate the treasury's policy in refund cases, said the "yen of the gentleman from Texas for information on the refunds is appealing and the way he neglects to satisfy it is appalling."

Two rooms at the treasury department, he added, were filled with data on the steel corporation case, and the "doors of these rooms have been yawning open to the gentlemen from Texas, but he has been yawning back at them."

Again Attacks Mellon.

As Hawley concluded, Garner was on his feet to launch a biter attack on Mellon and Undersecretary Mills for "making settlements according to what they want the treasury balance to be." Asserting he had lost confidence in the department, the Texan said that on one occasion it "made a mistake of $900,000,000 in nine days, a mistake of $100,000,000 a day."

"They can make a deficit of $100,000,000 or a surplus of $100,000,000. It all depends upon what legislation they want," he said.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Washington, D. C., March 20.—(AP)—Payment of $25,000 each to William S. Vare and William B. Wilson was authorized by the senate today to cover expenses of their contest for a seat in the senate from Pennsylvania.

The Merchant Fleet corporation directed its president, J. R. Gordon, to proceed with negotiations with Philadelphia regarding the purchase of Hog Island, wartime shipyard, near that city.

Young Mother, Once Thin, Weak, Gains 5 Pounds and New Strength

Don't be "Skinny," Washed-Out, Unattractive

New Combination of Yeast and Iron Changes Hollows to Curves in 3 Weeks—or pay nothing

"I gained 5 lbs. while taking IRONIZED YEAST. That means quite a bit, as my folks are both thin. What I prize most is the difference in the way I feel and the pep I have. Before I took IRONIZED YEAST I had to hire a girl to help me with any hard work. But now I do all my housecleaning alone and help my mother with hers too.

I went through taking care of two cases of whooping-cough in which I lost one of my little girls. I am sure I would have been down sick in bed if I had not been taking IRONIZED YEAST at that time, as I was caring for the baby I lost almost night and day for 3 weeks. IRONIZED YEAST I am sure helped me to be here to write this now."

Mrs Margie Blocher

for CHICAGO and COOK COUNTY

Candidates for Congress from Cook County for the two places at large must campaign the entire 102 counties of Illinois. They are not running against the candidate for Congress who seeks the nomination from a single district. You can vote for your favorite district candidate and for two at large.

There are 23 candidates in the race. In order for Cook county (comprising one-half the population of the state) to get fair representation, Cook County voters must center their votes. The two Congressmen at Large now in office are from down state.

Cook County has always managed to have one Congressman at Large. This year Cook County has a candidate—STEPHEN A. DAY—who has carried Cook County twice for Congressman at Large, losing the entire state by 2,046 the second time. Cook County must give him a large enough margin this time to insure his victory.

STEPHEN A. DAY is worthy of your vote. He is a lawyer of national reputation, son of Justice Day of the U. S. Supreme Court, member of the Advertising Men's Post, American Legion, No. 381. Trained in government affairs, he is a true humanitarian, vigorous and unafraid. Chicago needs a man in Congress who will work for her and defend her fair name. The World's Fair of 1933 is but one of the achievements which must be Chicago's. Let us awaken to the call and support a man who has Cook County and Chicago at heart.

ASSAIL DOHENY'S PATRIOTISM AS TRIAL NEARS END

Case Will Not Reach Jury Before Tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—Prospects of the Doheny bribery case would be given to the jury for its decision late tomorrow afternoon virtually were abandoned tonight when opposing counsel declared the entire day would be required to complete the closing arguments begun today.

Matching the eloquence of A. B. Pomerene, who opened the government's final argument this morning, T. J. Hogan, chief defense counsel, held forth two and one half hours in a last effort to convince the jury the $100,000 passed by E. L. Doheny, California oil magnate, to A. B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, was not a bribe to secure a lease on the navy's Elk Hills, Cal., oil reserves, but an innocent loan.

Another two hours or more will be used by Hogan tomorrow and Owen J. Roberts, chief of government special counsel, will take two hours, he indicated tonight, to close for the prosecution.

Scoffs at Patriotism Plea.

At the offset of his appeal for a guilty verdict, Pomerene scoffed at the defense contention it was patriotism which inspired Doheny to offer to build oil storage tanks for the navy at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, under a contract carrying with it the preferential right to drill the navy's oil reserves. He ridiculed Doheny's alleged fear of a "Japanese war scare" and denounced the "moral obliquity" of Doheny, "who makes a loan and then seeks to rob the government of its best oil lands."

"Patriotism!" shouted Pomerene, "Doheny, Fall and Robison! My God, what will happen to this country when this triumvirate of patriots shuffle off!"

Recalls Missing Note.

Pomerene recalled to the jury that Doheny, testifying before the senate's oil scandal investigation committee, was unable to produce a promissory note from Fall, but subsequently found a mutilated document which he said was his evidence the $100,000 was "a loan."

"Can you believe anything a man like that says?" asked the former senator. "One hundred thousand dollars in a bribe and one hundred million dollars in expected profits! If transactions of this kind are to meet the approval of courts and juries, then God save the nation."

"Slur the senate," said Hogan scathingly, referring to Pomerene's indignation over defense mentions of the senate committee. "Slur the senate—its the best pastime I can indulge in! Slur a band of men who bound witnesses like they do."

French Decree Cuts Wedding Knot of Monacan Royalty

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 20.—The high court of revision of Monaco sitting in the Monegasque legation in Paris today decided a question of gravest importance to the dynasty when Princess Charlotte, daughter of the ruler of Monaco, was declared legally separated from her husband, Prince Pierre, and the prince shorn of any possible status either as regent or heir to the throne. Princess Charlotte's next move, it is said, will be to seek annulment of her marriage by the Roman rota so as to be free to marry again.

The learned French jurists have solved knottier legal matters for this little country eight miles square. They convened with great dignity in the legation today and heard the report of former Premier Raymond Poincaré, whom the warring couple had chosen as a referee. Most of M. Poincaré's recommendations were accepted.

They were: first, that a legal separation be decreed; second, that the custody of the children be divided between the father and mother with six months apiece; third, that Prince Pierre will not only be separated from his wife, but he will be divorced definitely from the dynasty and that in the future he will neither enjoy political prerogatives nor, in the delicate phrasing of the court, "be constrained to live at Monte Carlo."

The last recommendation amounts to an invitation to the former Comte de Polignac to go back to his own country, France, just across the Monacan border. It is understood that, though custody of the children is divided, the prince is to have control of their education.

Another important point is that Prince Pierre keeps a share of the community property which the generous Prince Louis bestowed on the couple when they were married on March 20, 1920. Though Prince Pierre loses all chance of becoming regent in the event of the death of his father-in-law, Prince Louis, the succession still goes to his son, Rainier, now 7 years old. And as long as Prince Louis is in good health the regency will not be decided upon until a later date. Prince Pierre's other child is the nine year old Princess Antoinette.

Chicago Amateurs Take Golden Gloves Tournament from New York by Score of 10-6 Before Record Crowd

(Kaufmann-Fabry Photo)

On Wednesday night, March 19, 1930, the largest crowd that ever watched an indoor boxing program in America packed the Chicago Stadium from skylights to ring.

Nearly 23,000 persons paid admission to see sixteen bouts between amateur fighters from the Chicago territory and New York.

It was the greatest crowd the Stadium had ever accommodated.

Every seat in the huge structure was occupied.

Every reserved seat had been bought and paid for—a week before the event.

Hours before the opening bell a line four blocks long had formed to grab up the 1,200 general admission tickets which were to be placed on sale.

Other thousands who had been unable to buy admission stayed at home and listened in to the three and a half hour W-G-N broadcast from the ringside.

All because the sport-loving public of Chicago and the Chicago territory had learned through the Chicago Tribune that 32 young fellows, who fight for the love of fighting, were going to put on a superlative show.

The medium for selling this product was the Chicago Tribune.

The Stadium couldn't hold the scores of thousands who wanted to be there—the Tribune's overwhelming circulation had sold this tournament to everybody in the Chicago territory who possibly could be interested.

Have you a product to sell in this rich, responsive market?

Put hotboxes on your own turnstiles and cash registers! Smash over your own selling messages to the largest, most eager-to-buy audience in this great market—readers of the Chicago Tribune!

FLIP OF A COIN DELAYS SUICIDE PACT; MAN SHOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Eau Claire, Wis., March 20.—[Special.]—How they flipped a coin to determine whether they should carry out a suicide pact immediately or spend one more hour on earth before ending it all, how the coin gave them the one hour's respite, and how the man lost his nerve at the last moment and shot himself instead of first shooting his wife, as had been agreed upon, was the story told authorities here today by Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Chatterton, the couple involved.

Chatterton, who until last Saturday was manager of a chain shoe store here, told his story from a hospital bed where he lay with a bullet wound through his head from which he is expected to recover. Mrs. Chatterton, a pretty little woman of 21, related a similar story.

Two Notes Tell Story.

Two short notes addressed to their mothers, found on Chatterton's person and held by District Attorney W. C. Crocker, who is investigating the strange affair, tend to corroborate the suicide pact plans.

"Dear mother and all," one note said. "Forgive us, but this is the only way out. We want to be buried side by side. Bud and Burdette."

"I've been a cheat. Now I am going to pay up," Chatterton had written in one note. Explaining his reference to "cheat," the note mentioned relations he had had with certain girls and women here, giving names of those involved.

Drive to Death Spot.

The couple hired a car late yesterday and drove 12 miles up the Eau Claire river to a spot where they planned to carry out the pact.

They told the authorities that after they got there they flipped a coin to determine whether to end their lives immediately or spend one more hour on earth. The coin gave them an hour more.

When the time came to go through with the pact, Chatterton declared, he could not bear to shoot his wife, so turned the gun on himself and shot. The bullet struck near the eye and passed downward through the neck. He did not lose consciousness, the wife asserted, and both lost the suicide notion and determined to hurry back to town.

They could not start their car, however, and finally were forced to walk two miles to a farmhouse to get a farmer to bring them in late last night.

Although the suicide story appears to be substantiated in essential details, the authorities said they are investigating the possibility Mrs. Chatterton may have shot her husband, the path of the bullet in his head leaving some doubt as to whether he could have inflicted the wound.

Mrs. Ed Chappel, at whose home the couple roomed, said she saw a pistol in Mrs. Chatterton's purse when she left the house yesterday after handing her all the money she had, with the remark she would need it no longer.

GETS SECOND JAIL SENTENCE.

Frank Puis, 35 years old, who, upon his discharge from the bridewell Wednesday evening, broke into his wife's home at 1725 Fremont street and threatened her, was arraigned before Judge Erickson in Chicago avenue court yesterday and resentenced to the bridewell to serve out a $200 fine.

JOSEPHUS SAYS SO.

Josephus Daniels of North Carolina, former secretary of the navy, supporting prohibition in the house judiciary committee hearings, said that any one was deceiving himself who did not know that the abandonment of prohibition meant the re-enthronement of the saloon just as surely as night follows day. If any one were to ask Mr. Daniels why so, he wouldn't have any more reasonable answer than that is his story and he is going to stick to it.

Every Canadian province except Quebec followed the United States into the noble experiment, and now all but one of the smaller provinces have abandoned it, and the saloon has not been re-enthroned in any of them. There are more saloons in New York City under prohibition than there are in all Canada. The only countries which are finding the control of liquor impossible are the United States and Finland, which are the only countries having prohibition.

The assertion that a nation must have prohibition or must have the old uncontrolled saloons, or even any kind of public drinking places, is denied by the experience of other countries, and its untruth is particularly striking in the case of our neighbor to the north.

The prohibitionists are vainly experimenting, and more with fury than in hope. Canada has tried the scheme and dropped it, and is getting satisfactory results from a reasonable plan of liquor control. Furthermore, absolute prohibition had ten chances of success in Canada to one it ever will have in this country. If Ontario couldn't make prohibition work, no American state will do so.

The moderates who are regaining ground against fanaticism are no more in favor of the saloon than Mr. Daniels or any other dry. They want a restoration not of the saloon but of constitutional government. They ask that the control of liquor be taken from the federal government, where it does not belong, and restored to the states, where it does. The American states which cannot make prohibition work should be as competent as the Canadian provinces to make a rational plan of regulation effective.

The hoodlum liquor traffic of today is about the only intelligent support the Volstead act has. It knows why and how it makes its money.

RESTRICT MEXICAN IMMIGRATION.

The number of Mexicans in the United States is not approximately known. Estimates are from one million to three. A student of the subject, Jay S. Stowell, thinks 1,200,000 a conservative estimate. In a population of 120,000,000 this may not seem a large proportion, but it is far from negligible. The Japanese, over whom there has been so much controversy, number only about 140,000. The Mexicans are concentrated in the states of the southwest, and in three of these—Texas, Arizona, and California—Mr. Stowell says their sudden withdrawal would paralyze the industrial life of large areas. The limitation of Mexican immigration is therefore powerfully resisted. In Texas they raise Bermuda onions, and they pick cotton wherever it is grown in the southwest and in Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee. They work in the sugar beet fields even in Michigan and in the varied agriculture of the desert regions where white labor will not go. They are railroad workers, and thousands are in the north, as Chicagoans observe. As far north as the Red River valley of North Dakota there is a colony, and they work in mines in Colorado and Illinois. Mr. Stowell says they tend to settle rather than wander, though there is a large seasonal movement in the southwest back and forth from Mexico.

Organizations like the California Cattle Raisers' association and large scale agriculturists of the southwest resist limitation because it will reduce production. Mr. Bixby of the former organization says restriction would stop half of the farming on the other side of the Missouri river because it is large scale farming. "We have 8,700 acres of beets," he said at a congressional hearing. "If I do not get Mexicans to thin those beets and to hoe those beets and to top those beets I am through with the beet business. We have no Chinamen or Japs. The Hindu is worthless, the Filipino is nothing, and the white man will not do the work." The general counsel of the railroad executives at this hearing opposed restriction on the ground that there is no unemployment in agricultural and domestic service, but a shortage of such labor, and that restriction would raise the cost of production, the cost of transportation, and therefore the cost of living.

But these arguments, in the opinion of THE TRIBUNE, are those of special interests and should yield to larger considerations. The southwest itself is far from agreed upon the subject. The bill to put Mexican immigration on the quota basis was introduced by Representative Box of Texas, who is convinced that for social and political reasons the Mexican influx should be checked without further delay. "The protection of the American farmer against the increasing danger of establishing a system of peasantry, which the importation of peon labor tends to promote, alone justifies my bill," says Representative Box, and he cites the report of the California commission of immigration and housing to show that the Mexicans "drain our charities, become a large part of our jail population, affect the health of our communities, create a problem in labor camps, require special attention at schools, and are of low mentality, diminish the percentage of white population and remain foreign."

The general reasons against an influx of Mexicans into the United States are suggested by these points, but without stressing them particularly it may be said that if we are to take our present immigration policy seriously the failure to put restrictions upon Mexicans is inexcusable. It is not only incompatible with the doctrine of national origins, but is a serious breach of the economic principle which is a vital consideration in any restrictive legislation. Unlimited Mexican immigration is bound in time to lower the American standard of living and introduce into the social composition of the American population a large element unready historically and racially to be assimilated.

EUROPE GAINS SOME PYRRHIC VICTORIES.

Since the armistice the United States has sat in international conferences to which it was previously a stranger. It had taken a part in the establishment of The Hague court and it had been in concerted action with other nations in the far east for the protection and conservation of its interests. It had offered its good offices, as in the Russian-Japanese war, but was unaccustomed to parleys which negotiated European boundaries and redistributed colonial possessions, which defined conditions of occupation, extensions of sovereignty and subjection, and which involved terms of war indemnities, the extent of armament, rules of international legislation and administration and association with other nations in prearranged action.

This experience was new and from the beginning the American representatives in such affairs have overstepped their bounds and have bungled their mission. There have been exceptions, but that has been the rule. The United States senate withdrew the country from the extreme commitments with which Mr. Wilson began the new experience, but even that did not change the pliability of American delegates in international conferences in which American interests were involved and slighted.

A foreign diplomat expects to obtain concessions beneficial to his country when American conferees are brought into a committee room. If this fails to be the result, as it did at the Geneva conference, the conference itself fails, but it will be renewed later, as it has been at London. If other nations fail at first to obtain the acceptance of the world court by the United States upon terms desired by them the attempt is renewed, as it has been in the Root formula.

This persistent will to mold the foreign affairs of the United States into a form desired by other nations meets with less and less government resistance, but there is no evidence that it meets with any general popular approval in the United States. Foreign pressure is backed by a small organized minority in this country, but elections have not given administrations any authority for the international associations and agreements they have proposed or accepted. There has been the unusual thing of elections going one way and administrations going the other.

Foreign diplomacy seems to be able largely to work its will with the Americans it encounters, but if it were really wise diplomacy it would question its own successes. They may be the worst of Pyrrhic victories. In the end it will not do any good for any of these foreign interests to outwit or overpersuade the representatives of a people only to arouse the opposition of the people themselves. If the offended nation is one of growing power and wealth temporary advantages gained over it in this fashion will be small compared with the disadvantages arising from the suspicion or ill will of its people.

Such successes have been paid for in the past when the good will of another people would have been a valuable aid. The temporary gain may be a costly injury in the end. A really wise and prudent diplomacy would understand that even more in international affairs than anything else a good bargain is a good bargain on both sides.

WHY JUSTICE DID NOT FAIL.

The brutal assault upon the late Dr. George W. Thilo, which resulted in his death, would have gone without punishment but for the persistence of his widow and the pressure she was able to direct through the Chicago Medical society and the crime commission, with the support of the press. The shelving of the murder charge and disappearance of the mittimus for several months have never been explained. The culprits responsible for robbery and murderous assault have at last felt the lash of adequate punishment, but the official carelessness, or worse, which nearly resulted in a gross failure of justice ought not to be overlooked. It may have been merely the result of general slackness in the machinery of criminal justice, but some individuals were directly and concretely at fault. In private enterprise responsibility for bad service is run down and punished by reprimand or discharge of the individuals at fault. There is no pull to save them. In public office we cannot expect so strict an accountability, but the Thilo case is a reminder of our need for independent, nonpolitical, nonofficial agencies of observation and criticism such as the crime commission.

Editorial of the Day

THE MISSISSIPPI SCHEME.

[Toronto Globe.]

As far as Canada is concerned, and probably as far as the great lakes states are concerned, there is no objection to the Mississippi river being deepened nine feet or ninety feet for navigaton or any other purposes, and if the contiguous states and municipalities become more prosperous as a result none will rejoice more than Canadians.

But the Mississippi river does not originate in the great lakes. It is by no means part of the great lakes system, and it cannot be argued on a moral or legal basis that the great lakes can be tapped to provide for the Mississippi channel.

When the Mississippi Valley association can take water from the great lakes to help out its supply, St. Louis can tap the reservoir in Kansas City to meet its needs, and Memphis can drain the reservoir at Nashville.

The Mississippi river is fed from a watershed which has nothing to do with the sources of supply of the great lakes, and it is to that watershed it should look for further flow if it must be had.

In the meantime the current on the Niagara frontier belongs where nature put it.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WE'RE GLAD WE LIVE IN CHICAGO—

right now instead of Washington. Of course, in Washington it's probably much warmer than it is in Chicago, and you could go over and sit in the gallery and watch the funny senate or the still more comical house if you didn't feel like wasting money on a movie-talkie But if we lived in Washington now we'd be like everybody else—almost dead with anxiety. People walk around down there with haggard faces saying to each other, "Oh, do you suppose he will?" or "How soon ought we to know?"

Yessir, they're fairly sitting up all night wondering, waiting, hoping against hope. It's horrible to be under a strain like that. Yet that's the way we'd be if we lived down in Washington today. Everybody down there is. Poor, harassed, anxious souls. They're trying to find out if the new British ambassador who's just arrived is going to dispense hospitality with a cherry in it.

An embassy is foreign soil and the 18th amendment doesn't go inside the front gate. But the last British ambassador said just before he went away that he wasn't going to import any more likker. Of course he had enough to last as long as he did, and it would have been silly to import any more; but the drys cheered their heads off just the same and the wets were scared stiff.

And then he went away. And the new ambassador won't say what he's going to do. Of course, he bought all the things that the old ambassador left in barrels and bottles in the cellar. And that looks fairly encouraging. But they won't last long. After they're gone, what? The suspense is terrible. Washington is running around with its tongue hanging out. We would hate to be running around with our tongue hanging out. That's why we would rather live in Chicago right now than in Washington. Worry is an awful thing.

THE PASSPORT PICTURE.

"Whadduh want," asked the artist standing by the side of the camera, "plice card er passport?" Then he turned to a crowd in the corner of the room. "I told you shuffers you'd have to wait twenty-five minits fer yer plice cards. Pipe down an' wait." The chauffeurs ceased an earnest argument regarding Mr. Capone's whereabouts and the artist turned to us. "Next!" he said. It sounded like either a hair cut or a shave. We sat down in a chair under a sputtering green light. "Keep yer eye on this card and doan move." We kept our eye on the card and didn't move. The camera clicked. There was a moment's breathless suspense and it clicked again. "Next," shouted the artist. "One dollar!" The next was for a chauffeur at the head of the line, the "one dollar" was for us. We got a white ticket, waited twenty-five minutes and received three small photographs. They made us feel as though we were wanted in at least five states for safe blowing, chicken stealing and assault and battery. We said as much to a chauffeur who was waiting for his police card picture. "Whada ya want for one buck," asked the chauffeur, "a oil paintin' with the gold frame trun in? The pitcher looks like yuh, don't it? Well, that's the main idea." We buried the photographs deep in our deepest pocket. We didn't want a policeman to see them. He would have us taken right over to the station to find how much reward was offered for us.

THE PER CAPITA debt for Chicago is $117.45. In New York City it is $410.79. While in St. Louis each person owes only $56.35. And that solves it. We always knew there must be some reason why people live in St. Louis.

LAGNIAPPE.

A WILLIAM ELLIS of Seattle won a divorce yesterday when he told the court that his wife hurled an alarm clock in his face and knocked out one of his teeth because he had trumped her ace in a bridge game. It was very wrong to hit William with the alarm clock and knock out his tooth. A lady should always be a lady. Again we repeat, it was wrong for the wife to throw the alarm clock because her husband trumped her ace; she should have used an ax.

A NEW TEST FOR PREGNANCY

NONE of the older tests for pregnancy is very much worth while until the state has progressed for more than one month. There are women who can tell they are pregnant by the way they feel. Some have a sense of well-being that they do not readily mistake; on the other hand, some have disturbed appetite and other irritabilities which they recognize from the very start. Beyond these vague feelings there is not much to go by. The signs upon which physicians depend are not very reliable and they are not easily interpreted. As a rule we expect physicians to ask for time when called upon for diagnosis during the first weeks.

Some years ago Abderhalden offered a delicate biologic test from which much was expected. It did not sustain itself in general use. Since then other efforts to find a diagnostic test of somewhat the general character of the Abderhalden test have been made, one proposed by Ascheim and Zondek being favorably reported on. It is claimed for the Ascheim-Zondek test that it is most dependable within the first three or four weeks of pregnancy, just the time when most of the diagnostic signs are absent or not definite. From the standpoint of the woman the test is very simple; all she has to do is to supply a specimen of fresh, unspoiled urine to a laboratory equipped for the test. The laboratory workers inject several portions of this urine into young, immature female mice. This is continued over a few days. The mice are then killed and autopsied. The ovaries are examined with the unaided eye and microscopically. If the woman is pregnant there will be changes in the ovaries of the mouse somewhat similar to those found in the same organ in a pregnant woman.

The test is not one which requires great technical skill on the part of the laboratory worker, but it does require a large stock of mice. None can be used except young, immature females. This will make the test impossible for practicing physicians, and obtainable only in laboratories well stocked with test mice.

VARICOSE VEINS.

Mrs. F. J. writes: I have been bothered with varicose veins in the left leg below the knee and around the ankle for years and I am 51 years of age. I wonder if treatment by injection will cure it after all these years? I have worn elastic stockings, but in this day of thin stockings it is annoying. Is there any danger of infecting other parts?

REPLY.

Operation on varicose veins by the injection method is about displacing method by removal. Statistics show the method to be safer than the other one. There is very little danger of embolus.

Nothing in your letter indicates that cure for you would be difficult or dangerous.

CANNED AND UNCANNED.

M. L. H. writes: 1. Are canned fruits and vegetables of different caloric value than the fresh ones? If so, kindly state the difference. 2. What does a basal metabolism test prove?

REPLY.

1. There is practically no intrinsic difference between the calories of fresh and canned fruits per ounce. Canned fruits are generally higher in calories because of the syrup used in canning. Fresh fruit is richer in vitamin C but not in other vitamins.

2. It proves the presence or absence of goiter or other disorders of the thyroid gland.

HOW TO CLEANSE HAIR.

A reader writes: What can I do for vermin in the hair. I had my hair cut and bought some medicine in the drug store, but I still have some nits.

REPLY.

Wash the hair and scalp with kerosene. Leave on a few minutes. Remove. Wash with warm vinegar. Comb with a fine tooth comb. Wash. Dry.

If you have nits only, all you need to do is to wash the hair with warm vinegar. Comb. Remove vinegar. Wash. Dry.

EXERCISE AFTER EATING.

J. V. L. writes: 1. Is it good to exercise strenuously about a half hour after eating? 2. If not, when is a good time?

REPLY.

1. No. You would not feed a horse a half hour before you put him in a race.
2. When the stomach is empty.

UNREASONABLE NEIGHBOR.

Morrison, Ill., March 15. — [Legal Friend of the People.]—Can A compel B to build a more hog tight fence on their dividing line than A himself builds? R. W.

The statute makes no express exception to cover such a case but its seems probable that your fence viewers would be reluctant to support him in such an unreasonable demand.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SEWERS NORTH OF BELMONT.

Chicago, March 17.—[Friend of the People.]—Kindly let me know when we may expect sewer and water on 79th avenue north of Belmont avenue. E. J.

The city council on March 6 passed an ordinance for the construction of a sewer in Forest Preserve road and other streets from the Des Plaines river to Harlem avenue, etc., system. This system when constructed will provide an outlet for local sewers in the entire area west of Harlem avenue and between Belmont avenue and Irving Park boulevard within the city limits. There have been several delays in getting this proceeding started, and it will take a considerable time yet before the assessment roll will be confirmed in court so that a contract can be let. I think it is possible, however, that the construction work can be carried out in the summer of 1931. After this system of outlet sewers is built the local sewers can be constructed in the various streets as desired by the owners and residents. This can be done on an order of the city council, an order by the board of local improvements, or in response to a petition of the property owners or residents. The latter method is preferable.

If the people on your street wish to have the sewer and water proceedings started it would be advisable to submit a petition for the same. The proceedings can then be going on in anticipation of the construction of the outlet sewer system.

A. J. SCHAFMAYER, Engineer.
Board of Local Improvements.

DESERTED CARS.

Chicago, March 15.—[Friend of the People.]—On the rear of a vacant lot on the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Greenleaf avenue in Rogers Park is an eyesore to the neighborhood. There are two cars, a roadster and a touring car, which have been there for months. Boys who play in the lot have demolished them, throwing the pieces all over the sidewalk, menacing pedestrians who walk on the north side of Greenleaf avenue. H. W. L.

Report is made that abandoned automobiles have been removed from the vacant lot at the northwest corner of Sheridan road and Greenleaf avenue.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 21, 1865.

WASHINGTON.—Information from the Army of the Potomac says that cannonading was heard all day on March 18 in front of the 9th corps, without any other object, apparently, than to advise our troops that they still have an enemy before them. The Times correspondent, writing from White House, says: "Sheridan has destroyed more property than was ever before destroyed in one expedition. In one day he destroyed $2,000,000 worth on the Kanawha and John's River canal."

NEW YORK.—Richmond papers show that an effort to raise Negro regiments for the rebel armies has commenced in earnest. Gen. Lee, in a letter dated March 10, urges on the work of raising and organizing Negro troops, and says he is anxious to witness their first experiment in fighting for the rebel cause.

CHICAGO.—Isaac Nelson and Miss Emma Thersk were married at the residence of the bride's father in Highland Park on March 16 by the Rev. Robert Laird Collier.

CHICAGO.—Digby V. Bell of this city has been reappointed special agent of the postoffice department for the state of Illinois.

CHICAGO.—St. Joseph's church, a large and magnificent structure recently erected at Cass street and Chicago avenue, was dedicated, the various Catholic societies of the city uniting in the ceremonies.

CHICAGO.—At a largely attended meeting of the Young Men's association an opposition ticket to be voted on at the approaching election was nominated as follows: President, D. B. Cooke; vice presidents, C. H. Reed and R. M. Guilford; corresponding secretary, D. Goodwin Jr.; recording secretary, A. W. Street, and treasurer, Ira Holmes.

MARCH 21, 1900.

LONDON.—Apparently the only movement of consequence reported in South Africa is the arrival of Lord Kitchener at Prieska, the center of the Griqualand West rebellion. The town was taken without firing a shot. With a strong British force at Prieska and another north of Carnarvon the rebels still out find themselves between two forces.

LEADVILLE, Col.—Two prospectors came to town from "Two Bit" Gulch, 15 miles east of Leadville, with the results of assays made from a strike in a claim owned by John King. The assays show nothing less than 13 ounces and as high as 44 ounces of gold to the ton.

CHICAGO.—Schlesinger & Mayer announce that their new corset section, third floor, new building, is now showing all the new models in extreme straight front, hand made Sappho and Classique corsets. Corsets altered while you wait.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Controller Dawes granted authority to organize a national bank at Highland Park, Ill., with a capital of $25,000.

CHICAGO.—William J. Chalmers, president of the Commercial club, appeared before the industrial subcommission and pronounced trades unions the most gigantic and arrogant trust in the world. He declared Chicago is the hotbed of trade unionism, scored the police for failure to protect manufacturers and predicted that unless unions recede from their demands Chicago as an industrial center will be doomed.

BERLIN.—Berlin is under rigid martial law and troops are preventing a renewal of the last few days' battles, but there is much fighting in other places in Germany. It is reported that the communists hold Dortmund, Duesberg, Muehleheim, Dusseldorf, Gotha, and Cottbas. Severe measures, amounting to a state of siege, were placed in effect by President Ebert. All persons are ordered off the streets after sundown, and any one carrying arms will be shot without further parley.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—Truman H. Newberry, junior United States senator from Michigan, was convicted by a jury of having conspired criminally in 1918 to violate the election laws. He was sentenced by Judge Clarence W. Sessions to two years' imprisonment and fined $10,000, and released on bond pending an appeal. Convicted with the senator were his brother, John S. Newberry, and fifteen campaign managers, including Frederick Cody of New York and Paul H. King of Detroit. Cody and King received the same sentence as their chief. John S. Newberry was fined $10,000, but was one of four found guilty who were not sentenced to Leavenworth.

CHICAGO.—The first fashionable spring wedding took place yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Crerar, 1901 Prairie avenue, when their daughter, Marie, became the bride of Robert Henry Reid, son of Mrs. Morris S. Rosenfield, 2807 Prairie avenue.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and his manager, Jack Kearns, pleaded not guilty before Judge Robert S. Bean in United States District court when arraigned on charges of conspiracy to evade the selective draft act, and their preliminary trial was set for April 3.

CENSORSHIP.

Chicago, March 19.—The literary world was struck another serious blow yesterday as the result of some rather playful antics engaged in by the schoolboys in Washington.

We elect these gentlemen to guide our political destinies and they are no sooner in office than they spend their precious hours selecting our books, pictures and magazines, to say nothing of our beverages. It is all very sad.

If lovers of literature must have their reading matter sifted and burned they would much prefer that a committee of English professors do the job. It is so much more in their line. After all, we would not think of going to Senator Smoot to have a nasty decayed tooth removed or a pair of muddy boots cleaned. We should prefer the services of those who have been professionally trained for the work.

Citizens of the United States who must have their literature censored would do better to select an appropriate committee to do the job. Those senators who so glibly passed the censorship amendment yesterday have certainly proved their inability to cope with the problem. For the benefit of those who vote in Illinois it might be well to recall that Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep.] voted for the amendment.

THOMAS H. MULLEN.

THE LONG VIEW.

Chicago, March 19.—Now that the senatorial blushes have faded, have not the conscript fathers, strangely confusing themselves with the vestal virgins, adopted an aid to national virtue that is the best known among many failures? Whatever else will be effective, censorship is not.

The Romans had an official censor, and witness Publius Ovidius Naso, Lucius Apulius, and Gaius Petronius, not to mention others. The French tried to have the police control publications and witness François Rabelais, Voltaire and a host of others.

The most powerful church organization the world ever saw at one time had Milton's "Paradise Lost" on its forbidden list. Now it's in every high school English course.

The German empire was a classic example of "verbotens," and now it is verboten itself.

The senate idea will, in the course of time, call for a court definition or a legislative definition that may be as unintelligent as the Volstead ½ of 1 per cent.

It used to be said of the Bourbons, "They learn nothing and they forget nothing." So the only one on a throne today is in Spain, where learning is conveniently slow.

The recent classic of censorship is "Jurgen." Forbidden, it bootlegged at $20 a copy; free to be sold, it is offered at $1 with relatively few takers. Probably it never sold as well as Will Durant's "Story of Philosophy." If the patres conscripti at Washington must take a classical pose, to wear their togas becomingly, why pick the most futile and ridiculous to be found in history? J. C. C.

A PINK EDITION.

Chicago, March 19.—The American public as a whole may well feel edified by the spectacle of its senators strutting in the august rôles of custodians of morals and publicists for pornography. It is to be regretted, however, that there will be no pink edition of the Congressional Record. TERRY.

STATE RIGHTS.

Chicago, March 18. — Whenever the pocketbooks of the people are affected, the latter like to take refuge behind "state rights." During the civil war, which wiped out the blackest stigma of our history, certain people slapped their breasts and shouted, "We are fighting for state rights." When the 16-year-olds were taken out of the factories in some states, the child slave drivers were eloquent about state rights. When prohibition put the saloon income upon the backs of women and children, some people raved about personal liberty and state rights. Now the Jones-Cooper bill pending in congress is treated the same way. Let us hope that it will pass and bring relief to the deserving poor, even though it may step upon the purses of the practicing physicians. We hear "state rights" again. E. F.

ON THE TRAIL OF THE SQUICKER.

Chicago, March 18.—The article about squickers by Raymond S. Kelly is not correct. The shamrock was used by St. Patrick to show the people that there are three persons in one God just as there are three leaves on one stem. O'Regan was not the Luther Burbank of his time. As for the Swedes and Norwegians, they are a different nation entirely. One who has heard Swedish and Irish will tell you the accent and meaning are entirely different. Norwegian is different, too.

Spanish, Italian and French are somewhat similar, but are not the same nations. Why, then, does Mr. Kelly insist that the others are one? His story is impossible.

No one knows what nationality St. Patrick was. But he adopted Ireland as his country after reaching her shores as a slave. We, the Irish, know all about him and we do him honor on March 17, the day of his death, not the day of his birth.

We have a history of Ireland at hand and there is nothing mentioned about O'Regan. Nor are the squickets mentioned. Surely if such a story as Mr. Kelly's was true it would be in the history, which is many years old.

KAY GODFREY.

AN EXCEPTION.

Chicago, March 18.—Sure, it was great the way they all respected our hero St. Patrick by closing up and going out to—I was almost going to say drown the shamrock, till I bethought me that this country is dry. The count employées were an exception. They were all working. They will get no holiday with pay this year, but they will get two months' holidays without pay. And that is not all. They will get no sick pay and no paid vacation. All this when totaled up is equivalent to a 25 per cent reduction in salary. I know, for I happen to be a county employé.

PATRICK MURPHY.

WHAT HOLIDAY!

Chicago, March 18.—No wonder the city is broke! Yesterday upon entering the city hall and inquiring of the man at the information desk where the vehicle tax plates could be obtained I was informed that that department was closed because of the holiday. When I asked, "What holiday?" the answer came, "St. Patrick's day." Now, please tell me what St. Pat did for the city hall? It might be well to dock those employés for the holiday and reimburse the treasury; it might help to pay some of the bills. J. J. ARNOLD.

JACKASSISM, WILD AND TAME.

Chicago, March 4.—Insurance of bank deposits by the state is "the acme of wild jackassism" in the opinion of your editor, because it tempts bankers to be careless in making loans. Can your editor explain why fire insurance or life insurance is any more of a tax jackass of an idea, or wherein it furnishes less of a so-called temptation?

The Ace of Spades

By WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Jim Rutledge, accompanied by Sim Hart, is sent out with a herd of cattle to fulfill a contract made by his father, Chandler Rutledge. On the trail they are overtaken by some men from the Moss outfit, enemies of Rutledge. The Moss men start a stampede and drive off some of the Rutledge cattle. Jim recovers them, but in doing so shoots and injures one of the Moss raiders. The men of the Moss outfit swear to be revenged for the injury and pursue Jim. Jim takes refuge in a ranch house where he finds Ellen Lawson alone in the house. She hides him when the Moss gang comes to the house inquiring for him and sends them off on another trail, even though she learns that he has injured her brother. Jim rides on into the town, after saving Ellen from the unwelcome attentions of Pete Moss. Shear, the town marshal, threatens to arrest him for the attack on Steve Lawson, but Harrison Pendleton, an old trail driver, arrives on the scene in time to save him from arrest. Shortly afterwards Sheriff Bill Doc Brown, who he claimed had threatened his life. This causes a great deal of excitement in the little cattle town. Jim goes into the local gambling den and is astonished to find Ellen Lawson there. She tells him she has come to speak to her brother Steve. Jim guides her to where Steve is sitting in a poker game with Shear, Buck Roe and others. As they reach the table the lights go out, and when the room is again lighted Shear is found crumpled in his chair dead with Jim's knife in him. Ellen's right hand is covered with blood. She had become separated from Jim in the dark and some one had jostled her. In putting out her hand for support she had touched the crumpled figure. Jim and Ellen are questioned by the sheriff, Mandera, and Jim is arrested, but is later released. Jim is determined to find the murderer to clear himself. Ellen arranges a meeting to warn him against Dave Moss, and Jim learns that Moss is trying to force her to marry his son Pete. He suggests that she marry him. They are quietly married and Jim goes on with his investigation. He receives a note from Mamie Dugan, an entertainer in the town and Sam Moss' girl, asking him to meet her in the cottonwoods behind the town. He finds her lifeless body hanging to a tree. The Moss gang appears, including the old man. They tell him they are going to kill him, too.

INSTALLMENT XLVII.

PLAYING FOR TIME.

Jim spoke as though to himself. "I'd have expected it of the old man, for he's a cold blooded murderer, a Comanche at heart. But I didn't think it of them, even if they have Moss blood in their veins."

"Nor I," his brother said.

They hated Jim Rutledge. Within a few minutes they meant to destroy him, but they could not let him go to his death thinking they had killed a woman in cold blood.

"I did it, if you want to know," the old man spoke up with his terrible inhuman smile. "Man or woman neither can betray me and get away with it. Knowin' the boys are thin skinned, I had the little jug corked before they got here. Maybe it will interest you to know that you're going to get the credit for it."

"I?" Jim said.

"Yes. Reckon you don't know it, but you're going to commit suicide in about five minutes."

"What do you mean?"

"You're going to shoot yourself through the heart."

"You mean you're going to shoot me."

"Have it yore own way." Devil Dave grinned, "but when they find you the gun will be in yore hand with yore elbow crooked."

Buck Roe explained. "You killed the lady first, an' then got scared an' shot yoreself."

"Nobody will believe any such story," Jim said scornfully.

"Now I wonder about that," old Moss murmured. "Most people in this town think you killed Joe Shear. They know how you shot my boy Sam and assaulted Buck here, when they were going peaceable about their business. You've got a nice start for a reputation as a bad man. I've a notion this atrocious murder you've just committed will fit in with the rest of the story. The town is going to hold up its hands in horror at you. Here you are, just married to a real nice girl, and all the time carryin' on an intrigue with another woman you have deceived. You're afraid it's going to get out, so you put the poor girl out of yore way. Seems terrible you're so young an' such a criminal. You'd ought to thank me for helping you to commit suicide, for you'd certainly be lynched by popular indignation."

"If you were sure of that you'd leave me to be hanged," Jim said hardily.

"Right you," Dave agreed. "But I've got no real confidence in the citizens of this town. I gave them one chance to do it when Joe Shear was found killed by yore knife. An' they lay down on the job. Fact is, I'd like to hang you myself, but that wouldn't fit in with my plans so well. A man can't hardly hang himself convincingly. So I reckon you've got to blow out what brains you have."

"You're a black hearted villain," Jim told him hardily. "You can shoot me, but you can't make folks believe I killed that poor girl. They'll know better. Why, I've never seen her but twice."

He spoke with apparent confidence, but his assurance was of manner only. This old fox-wolf would have evidence to back his charges, most of it manufactured for the occasion.

"So you say," Devil Dave tittered. "Shows what a slick young scoundrel you were that you all the time met her under cover. Don't worry. I'll have witnesses. Why, you called on her hardly an hour after yore marriage. Why? To square it with her if you could. You were so crazy about her you went to the show at the Elkhorn theater that same night an' left yore poor deceived bride at home. A dozen witnesses can swear to that. You sure must be a wicked young hellhound. I've got here in my pocket a letter written by Mamie Dugan to you, on pink paper, beggin' you not to desert her after she's been to you all she has. She says she hears you're makin' up to another girl but she can't believe it true, seeing how you swore to love her always when you betrayed her. It's a right touching letter, if I do say it myself. I'm proud of it. Did I mention that it will be found in yore pocket when the body of deceased is discovered?"

"Meaning me?" Jim asked casually. He was afraid, to the marrow, but he did not mean to let this man know it.

"Who else but you?"

"Every one will know it's a forgery."

"My bets are laid the other way. O' course, Chan Rutledge will claim it's forged, but I don't reckon he'll hardly believe it himself. This whole business is liable to be some shock to Chan." The cachinnations of the old villain's evil mirth sent a shiver through the blood of his young enemy. There was a note of the abnormal about that glee, such as might have come from one of the creatures of the inferno. "Seems he's raised a viper in his bosom. He he! Being so chock full of pride as he is, it'll hurt him consid'rable. Findin' yore knife in Joe Shear wasn't so bad. He was yore uncle, though maybe you don't know it, and it was all in the family. But sheathing it in popular young ladies is some different."

Jim shifted unhappily on his feet. He was sick at heart over the horrible thing his father had done and he did not want to listen to scurrilous jests.

"Since we finished him an' lit out," he said in a low voice.

One more dig his father lashed out angrily. "Keep yore trap shut. I'll tell my own story."

"I ain't so stuck on this job I want to stay all night on it," Roe cut in. "You didn't tell us about—about the young lady when we started in on it. No personal, Buck Roe, I'm aimin' to light out muy pronto for somewheres pronto. I don't like being mixed up in it."

"Would you want me to sit still and let the girl squawk? That yore notion, Buck?" the old man wanted to know, bleak eyes fixed on the other.

"I ain't sayin' what I'd want to do, Dave. Point is, this town is gonna stand on the head about Mamie Dugan. I hadn't a thing to do with it, so I reckon I'll slide out kinda inconspicuous soon as I can."

"You poor fool, don't you see you've got to stick around an' sit tight? If you run off, you might as well print it in the newspapers that you did it. Soon as the other job—I'll be ready in a minute. Just a word more with Mr. Rutledge before he leaves us." Dave turned to Jim, exuding exultation. "Reckon you've noticed the young lady's writing. You know she was right flirty and fond of me. It wasn't the only affair she had going. My boy Sam was waitin' on her, too. But her intentions were honorable, not like yours. So, like I say, I've seen some of her notes to him. If she didn't write this letter begging you to be out with her, it's a dead ringer for one she might have written. Wish I had time to show you how the letters are made exactly like she always made them. But the boys are in a hurry, and I can't keep 'em waitin'."

Jim looked steadily at him. If his heart had died in his breast he did not mean to give Devil Dave the satisfaction of knowing it. But he played for time, to give himself the benefit of that millionth chance of rescue.

"So you killed Joe Shear, too? I thought it all the time. Do it yourself," he asked quietly.

"No harm telling you," Dave laughed. "You'll never spread the story. We're shy of time to go into particulars. Hang on to his arm, boys. I want the bullet to go just right. Doc Aubrey has got to be satisfied he fired it himself."

"My father will settle with you for this," Jim said quietly.

Lamont Calls Census Vital Picture of U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—A warning that the people must cooperate with the government frankly and truthfully in the taking of the 1930 census, if the results are to be of value in charting the nation's economic future, was broadcast tonight by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont.

The commerce secretary asserted that the statistics gathered by the census enumerators will be of the utmost importance and value if the American people respond unanimously "with zeal, vigor, precision, and typical American frankness" to the scores of questions propounded to them. Viewed aright, Mr. Lamont said, this April census will not be composed of dry statistics but of vital facts.

"The statistics will be tremendously vital—pulsating with life—presenting a vivid and arresting picture of human activity in the United States today," the secretary said. "It is this national census that enables us to 'know ourselves' as a people. It is a truly marvelous instrument of self-appraisal. As a gauge, a test, a medium of diagnosis, it is unique and unapproached.

"By it the results of ambition may be measured. The success of local energy and enthusiasm may be ascertained. The advance of enterprise may be definitely judged. The basic economic trends should be made crystal clear.

"What forces are at work in this America of ours? What transformations are taking place? Where are the currents carrying us? Where are the perils, if any—and what are the causes for congratulation? How is our particular community faring? The census should disclose the answers to nearly all these questions in the economic field. And such answers will provide the basis for prudent action. If we are to take sound, effective measures to keep our nation on the upward path we cannot guess about conditions—we must know! The facts at our command must be both pertinent and exact."

11 GOVERNORS OPPOSE CHANGE IN PICKING OF RHODES SCHOLARS

The protests of 11 governors and former Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg against the proposed change in the method of selecting Rhodes scholars for Oxford, have been forwarded to the trustees of Cecil Rhodes' will in London, it was learned yesterday. Mr. Kellogg addressed his protest to former Premier Stanley Baldwin, who is one of the trustees.

Some Rhodes scholars have suggested that the standard of the scholars would be raised if the United States were divided into eight sections of six states each and the representatives picked from the districts, instead of two from each state, as was provided in Rhodes' will. Small states are thus likely to lose part of their representation, opponents of the plan believe.

The governors whose protests have been forwarded to London by Vice President George F. Spaulding of the Northern Trust company, a former Rhodes scholar, are: R. C. Dillon, New Mexico; F. B. Balzer, Nevada; G. H. Dern, Utah; M. Y. Cooper, O.; F. W. Green, Mich., H. G. Leslie, Ind.; F. D. Sampson, Kentucky; Harvey Parnell, Ark.; Huey P. Long, La.; D. H. Moody, Tex., and W. J. Holloway, Okla.

Women Voters Here to Honor Veteran Suffrage Workers

Illinois women who were active suffragists before the 19th amendment to the constitution and who since have taken an active part in politics, will be the guests of honor Wednesday at a luncheon. This will celebrate the tenth anniversary of that amendment and the organization of the League of Women Voters. The Cook County League of Women Voters will sponsor the luncheon at the Palmer house.

Among the guests of honor will be: Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, first woman state senator; Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, state representative; Mrs. Murry Nelson, president of the Woman's City club; Judge Mary Bartelme of the Juvenile court; Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, former Democratic national committeewoman; and Mrs. Winifred Mason Huck, member of congress.

The Chicago luncheon will be part of a nation wide celebration of the League of Women Voters, which was founded in Chicago in 1920.

Miss Julia Lathrop of Rockford, former president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, and former chief of the children's bureau in Washington, will speak on "The League of the Future. Mrs. Catharine Waugh McCulloch, one of the first women lawyers in the state, and former legislative secretary and president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association when the limited suffrage bill was passed in Illinois in 1913, will speak on "Our Debt to the Suffrage Workers."

Nina May McKinney, 18 year old star of "Hallelujah," a talking picture with an all-Negro cast which won acclaim as an artistic production, arrived in Chicago yesterday. She was met at the La Salle street station by more than 200 persons, who showered her with four dozen roses.

She will appear each night next week at an indoor carnival in the 8th infantry I. N. G. armory, sponsored by the Association for Working Mothers with Children, composed of women leaders of Negroes of the south side. The proceeds will go toward the purchase of a home at 5627 Michigan avenue, to be used as a home and day nursery for working mothers and their children. Six thousand dollars of the $10,000 needed has been raised. Mrs. H. Reginald Smith, 5428 South Park way, heads the association.

After her appearance here the young actress, who last year was a chorine in "Black Birds," will return to New York to play in "Iron Widow," to be produced by Al Woods. She will be the only woman in a cast of 29, she said.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

Would you marry an actor or actress?

The Answers.

James R. Walker, 1535 Lake avenue, Wilmette, office manager—I would marry an actress whether beautiful or not if she could keep me in the luxuries to which I am accustomed. I think an actress would make just as good a wife as any other woman.

Miss Katherine Porzel, 6340 South Keeler avenue, typist—No, because an actor's time is never his own. They are always in the public eye, no privacy, always on the go. It is the exceptional woman who does not want an established home, the husband to be a staple and important factor in it. I think an actor would be too conscious of self and place too much importance upon himself.

Edward Carney, 6230 Dorchester avenue, insurance broker—I would, providing she were developed mentally as well as physically. Notwithstanding the possibility of her being temperamental, I think we could make a success of our married life. But she would have to understand that she must be a sensible woman and that mine would be the controlling interest in our life.

Mrs. Elsie Verville, 5537 Justine street, housewife — I don't believe I would care for an actor for a husband, though I scarcely know why. I know from experience that I like to have my husband at home. When he is away, particularly at hours at which he is in the habit of being there, there is a vacant chair there and the place is dull and lifeless.

E. M. Lewy, 5503 Everett avenue, theatrical manager—I wouldn't care to marry a nomad. I would want a real companion, and that's something very difficult to find among people who are forced by profession to travel. A theatrical career, in my mind, undoubtedly conflicts with domestic tranquillity.

Nebraska Choir Sings at Orchestra Hall; Its Work Praised

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Having come from Fremont, Nebraska, on an automobile trip to this part of the country, the A Cappella choir of Midland college paused at Orchestra Hall last night to sing one of the concerts on its spring tour.

In appearance, manner, and style of singing this chorus bears considerable resemblance to the St. Olaf choir which has also appeared at Orchestra hall. In fact its director, Oscar Lyders, is said to have been at one time a member of that choir.

The singers, about sixty in number, are garbed in long, while collared, black gowns, they group themselves in a semi-circle in the center of the stage, and at a signal from the director, without audible preliminary note of pitchpipe or tuning fork, they begin to sing with no apprehension about the pitch.

Like the St. Olaf choir, too, the voices would seem to be chosen for sturdy, resonant quality rather than trained accomplishment. Accomplishment is developed by choral singing, which last night was generally interesting and at times exquisite. The program was entirely of sacred music, though including, as it did, a Negro spiritual and a song of the Zuni Indians, the latter in Clarence Loomis' arrangement. It began with the complex anthem, "Blessing, Glory and Wisdom," written for double choir, included a work of Gretchaninoff and a selection from the old Scotch psalter, and ended with a group arranged by F. Melius Christiansen, director of the St. Olaf choir.

Director Lyders would seem to have planned his musical effects along the lines of broad, sustained singing rather than swiftly moving figurations or sudden contrasts. As such, the choir delivered itself of much stately, dignified, well balanced song. Occasionally the singers dropped down to softly expressed phrases or humming without words, at which times they evolved effects of much beauty. The audience was unexpectedly small, but rightfully enthusiastic.

National and state officers of the Woman's Relief corps, auxiliary of the G. A. R., representing 200,000 women of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, and Kentucky, will hold a conference today in Memorial hall, Michigan avenue at Randolph street. Officers of the Illinois department are: President, Katherine Selms of Urbana; secretary, Mae G. Lincoln of Aurora; and treasurer, Elnora Arps Foster of Palatine.

THE STAGE

THE actors' fund benefit entertainment, an annual event of spring theatricals for more than a generation, will be given in the Erlanger theater this afternoon. The performance will begin at 2 o'clock, and the program will be generously long. It offers an opportunity to see practically every stage personality of note in Chicago, and its box office takings will go into the treasury of the well managed institution which cares for aged and incapacitated players.

The performance will have an excellent master of ceremonies in Herbert Rawlinson, who leads the cast of "The City Haul," at the Cort. His return to the stage deprived Hollywood of its cleverest raconteur and extempore wit. If he is half as lively this afternoon as he is every evening in his comedy, the show will move merrily.

Among the players whom Mr. Rawlinson will introduce for their contributions to this mixed bill are: Otis Skinner, star of "Papa Juan"; Francine Larrimore, star of "Let Us Be Gay"; Queenie Smith, star of "The Street Singer"; Mrs. Jacques Martin of "Your Uncle Dudley"; Lynne Overman of "She's No Lady"; Guy Robertson and Berna Deane of "Nina Rosa"; Gladys Hanson and Edward Rigby of "Dear Old England"; Willie and Eugene Howard and Frances Williams of George White's "Scandals."

The titles of twelve plays from which the Theater Guild will select its schedule for next year were announced yesterday. Maxwell Anderson's play concerning Queen Elizabeth and the Earl of Essex probably will open the Guild's New York season in the fall with Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt in the leading rôles.

Of the other plays considered Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" and "Hamlet" and a dramatization of Jaroslav Hascheck's humorous novel, "The Good Soldier Schweik," are newly listed for possible production."

The remaining plays on the list, most of which have been announced previously, are "The Genius and His Brother," by Sil-Vara; "Green Grow the Lilacs," by Lynn Riggs; "Roar China!" by S. Tretiakow; Aristophane's "Lysistrata," in a modern version by Maurice Donnay; "The House of Connolly," by Paul Green; "Spiegelmensch," by Franz Werfel; "The Coward," by H. R. Lenormand, and "The Lonely Man," by Arthur Schnitzler.

The Guild touring companies and the organizations playing engagements in subscription cities outside New York will be continued next season. The newly organized Theater Guild Studio will also give several productions during the coming year.

The next new play to be staged at the Goodman theater will bear the curious title of "Kolpak Must Dance." It is of Hungarian origin; its author is named Helmuth Unger, and its premiere at the Goodman will be its first American performance. Tuesday, April 8, will be the date, as the Goodman's calendar is now arranged.

"The Rivals" has one more week at the Goodman, and "Holiday" will be revived for a week, beginning April 1, while the Hungarian play is in rehearsal. The Goodman executive staff reports satisfactory progress in its drive for 10,000 season subscribers.

Gus Edwards, who hasn't been in Chicago for three years, will lead the new program of vaudeville at the Palace, beginning tomorrow. His juvenile and adolescent entertainers now bear the title of "Hollywood Protégés," and if they follow the Edwards' tradition, a few of them will be stars some day. Other contributors to the bill will be Jack Osterman, who has wise cracked in the musical shows; Adelaide Hall, who was prominent in "Blackbirds"; and the Original Brown Brothers, famous as pioneers of the saxophone.

Tomorrow's change of bill at the State-Lake will bring Esther Ralston off the screen for a "personal appearance" in songs and dances. Among the other items of diversion will be Frank Gaby, a well known comedian of the revues; Hal Neiman, who is compared to that old timer, Nat Wills; Frank Sylvester and "His Nephews," in an act from the European music halls, and "Speedy Feet," a dancing skit.

British Experts Doubt Finding Newest World

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

OXFORD, England, March 20.—Doubts that a new major planet had been discovered at Lowell observatory as announced were expressed to the New York Times correspondent today. Such views were given by Dr. Harold Knox Shaw of the Radcliffe observatory, Prof. Edward Arthur Milne, Rouse Ball, professor of mathematics at Oxford, formerly assistant director of the solar physics observatory at Cambridge, and Dr. J. Jackson of the royal observatory at Greenwich.

In the famous Radcliffe observatory the correspondent was a privileged auditor at a three sided Socratic dialogue.

Dr. Jackson, a canny Scotsman, had a special article in the London Times Monday. In the course of it he said:

"We have as yet little details of the discovery, but the fact that the observations extend over seven weeks should make sure that the object is really a very distant planet, and not merely a faint minor planet of which a score or more are discovered annually."

Dr. Jackson said today: "Last Friday, when the first news of the discovery of a new planet came, I was all excited, and believed it possible, but after carefully examining Prof. Lowell's own memoir on the trans-Neptunian planet I am no longer sure about it.

"First of all, it wasn't found in the place Prof. Lowell predicted for it. Secondly, the new object hasn't the brightness predicted for it. But the thing that seems strangest of all to me [in this the other two astronomers expressed assent] is the fact that the Americans have given out to the world scarcely any details beyond the bare announcement. In other words, we have nothing tangible to go on, have we?"

He turned to the other two, who nodded.

"After all, only twice before in the annals of human history has such a discovery been made," Dr. Jackson continued. "I also wonder why, during the period of the Lowell observations, there was no announcement of finding any new minor planets, which it would seem they certainly must have done.

"This object might be a minor planet, or it might be a comet. Every year we have been given much more immediate information on the discovery of a new comet than in the case of this far more important discovery, if, indeed, it is what the Lowell observatory claims."

"Don't you think the fact that the statement of discovery issued by Prof. Shapley at Copenhagen might confirm it?" asked Dr. Knox-Shaw.

"Rather I would say it confirms my belief in the sincerity of the American observers," Dr. Jackson replied.

Turning to the correspondent, he added:

"Mind you, that's something I am distinctly not questioning. I have been to Flagstaff, spent a night there, and know their instruments and how the men work. Although I know the Americans sometimes work quietly, keeping things to themselves. No, I am not doubting the Americans' observations, but doubting that what they found is what they claim. In brightness the new object must resemble the majority of known planets—that's what makes it hard to believe it is a major planet."

Harvard Locates Planet.

Cambridge, Mass., March 20.—(AP)—Harvard observatory today announced the first officially recorded position of the newly discovered trans-Neptunian planet, or "Planet X," as it is temporarily known. The announcement follows:

"On a plate on 90 minutes exposure, made March 19, with the 16 inch Metcalf refractor at Harvard, the photographic magnitude of the trans-Neptunian plant is estimated 14.8 on the international magnitude scale.

"From measures on plates taken on a 24 inch reflector at Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., Prof. Van Biesbroeck has reduced the following position of the planet, March 17: .075 right assension, 7 hours 15 minutes 41 seconds, declination, plus 23 degrees, 7 minutes 18 seconds."

Club Luncheon Parties Profit by Deft Touch

Table Settings Can Be Artistic Triumphs.

BY SALLY LUNN.

When organizations entertain, the function of hostess is divided, and the various detailed tasks of making the arrangements are parceled out to committees and chairmen. It is quite a formidable task to coördinate the numerous aspects of a large affair so that it runs smoothly and successfully, and the table decorations are, it seems, considered a minor feature. I have often wondered why this is, because in every organization there are bound to be individuals who are gifted to some degree with artistic ability and who could be called upon to contrive some effective and distinctive decorative arrangement that will contribute atmosphere to the party.

Large luncheons and banquets usually have a guest of honor or principal speaker as a raison d'être, and he or she is customarily seated at the center of a long speakers' table. This is placed at one side or one end of the room, and is sometimes elevated so that the others present may have a good view of the lion of the occasion. Round tables seating four, six, eight, or more accommodate those who do not sit at the speakers' table.

Correct Seating.

The president of the club sits at the left of the guest of honor, and any other special guests or officers of the club are seated also at the speakers' table. The speakers' table occupants sit along the side of the table that faces the others. For a smaller affair, the horseshoe or fork type of table arrangement may be used, with long tables extending away from the speakers' table. After the meal has been served, the chairs may be turned sidewise so that all may see and hear the speaker.

The extent to which table decoration has been carried for this sort of affair has, as far as my observation goes, been limited to providing bouquets of seasonable flowers. Inasmuch as there is so much more interest in table decoration these days, I should think some enterprising souls might give more thought to the possibilities of table decorating on a large scale.

The decoration for the long speakers' table should be the same as, but on a larger scale than, that of the smaller tables. It is a mistake to use a center floral or decorative piece for the speakers' table, as it impedes the view, and usually has to be removed when the speaker rises to talk.

An Artistic Arrangement.

The accompanying illustration shows one of the exceptional occasions whereon effort and thought were expended to create a decorative effect. The settings were designed and arranged by Charles P. Killgore, the Chicago painter, for a dinner given by the Chicago Association of Painters and Sculptors on March 13. The speakers' table was laid with a long strip of tangerine sateen on which were placed at either end of the table black lacquered octagonal standards, pyramided to hold several rows of pale green candles. Inexpensive bowls, painted black, filled with bunches of narcissi, flanked the candle arrangements.

The smaller tables were set with similar arrangements on a smaller scale; a center square of the sateen, four candles in black holders, and bowls of the narcissi. The candles provided practically all the light, as only one chandelier was illuminated.

Preacher Positive He's Seen a White Blackbird

Charlotte, N. C., March 20.—(AP)—You may believe it or not, but the Rev. W. D. McIlwaine today said he saw a white blackbird here. The pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church here, who has a reputation as an ornithologist, said: "There was no mistaking him. He had the wedge-shaped tail and the same yellow eyes."

SETTING DESIGNED BY AN ARTIST

The table settings designed for the dinner held recently by the Chicago Association of Painters and Sculptors, by Charles P. Killgore, Chicago painter, carried out a brilliant and effective color scheme of tangerine, black, pale green, and white.

Supplying the fireplace with coal is a dirty task. My man of the house solved it by filling large, empty paper bags, saved for the purpose, with small pieces of coal. I can easily lay the full bag on the fire, placing the coal exactly where I want it, and emerge with clean hands and hearth.

To make a small, high icebox cake use a box the size of the cake desired. Slit the corners and put a rubber band around the box to keep them up. Line the box with waxed paper and fill with the cake. When done, take off the rubber band, press down sides of the box, and the cake can be easily lifted out.

Evaporated Milk Makers Plan Research for Year

Members of the Evaporated Milk association met yesterday at the Palmer house to discuss plans for research and educational work for the coming year. In 1929 the organization gave 15 research scholarships to universities throughout the country, including two to the University of Chicago and one to Northwestern university. Last year members of the association manufactured 91 per cent of the 1,250,000 pounds of evaporated milk sold in the United States, an increase of 9 per cent over the production figure of 1928, officials said.

MINERS' MEETING ENDS; DIRECTORS CALL INSURGENTS

Indianapolis, Ind., March 20.—[Special.]—The convention of the United Mine Workers of America, which had been in session for ten days, closed tonight with an ovation by the delegates for President John L. Lewis. Indianapolis was selected as the site of the next meeting which it was said will probably be held in 1932.

Members of the international executive board of the union will remain in this city until next Tuesday when the leaders of the recent convention of insurgent miners at Springfield, Ill., will be given an opportunity to appear before the board. Lewis has announced that the twenty-one leaders of the insurgent group will be afforded a chance to show cause why they should not be expelled from the ranks of the regular union.

Among those summoned are John H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor; Frank Farrington, Harry Fishwick and Walter Nesbit, the president and secretary of the Illinois district, which has been suspended by the regular union. The insurgent organization has also adopted the name of United Mine Workers of America.

Prussian Bank Repays 5 Million U. S. Loan in Cash

BERLIN, March 20.—(AP)—The East Prussian Land bank, which in 1927 borrowed $7,000,000 in the United States, has repaid the loan in cash—the first post-war German-American loan paid in cash instead of by refunding or converting.

Scientist Finds Germ, Cause of Fowl's Disease

Robert Graham Isolates Laryngial Coccus.

BY PAUL POTTER.

In the realm of scientific research no field, so far as the production of the world's foodstuffs is concerned, needs more attention than that of the poultry industry, one of the chief sources of farm income and deeply concerned in the daily diet of consumers.

This need has been expressed frequently by leaders in the widespread practice of poultry production, as well as those who have known for years of the trials confronting egg producers in strenuous attempts to hold down the handicaps of disease.

That scientists at the University of Illinois have this week announced the results of seven years of search for the cause of one serious poultry disease comes, therefore, with hearty approval of both farmers and consumers of poultry products. Dr. Robert Graham, with his associates, has at last isolated the pathogenic organism which causes at least one type of infectious fowl bronchitis.

Deadly in Action.

This disease has long been the most destructive menace to the extensive poultry fattening industry of the corn belt, and is so deadly that it has been known to wipe out 500 fowls in one poultry fattening plant in a single night. But the most serious economic loss, running into inestimable figures, suffered by the thousands of fattening stations of the middle west is that the forced period of fattening has been of necessity cut in half to check possible infection. This has resulted in producing a lower quality of dressed poultry product, in which the feeder and the consumer have both been penalized.

And one ambigious, elusive germ has been at the root of all this trouble! It is described by the scientists at Urbana as "a pleomorphic, or changing coccus, or pearl-shaped germ" that has never been described before, so far as the investigators know.

Other Factors Involved.

They do not claim that this organism, which has taken so long to isolate, much as one might discover a new race of people or a hitherto unknown planet, is the only factor involved in the disease. Environmental conditions under which the malady occurs naturally have not been reproduced artificially to the point where the acute type can be reproduced consistently.

But the newest find in the bacterial world does produce an inflammation of the larynx and upper trachea accompanied by profound symptoms of toxemia and depression and difficult respiration that results in death, in most cases. Not only has the germ been isolated, but the investigators also have found that the disease is not a bronchitis, after all. It is, in reality, laryngitis.

Herein may lie a dual value of the discovery, even though the men who have done this work are yet reluctant to admit it. There may be a direct relationship between this germ causing fowl disease and the germ that causes laryngitis in humans. No serums or vaccines have yet been prepared to combat the organism, but this and other phases of the problem still engage Dr. Graham and his coworkers. These men are I. B. Boughton, E. A. Tunnicliff, and E. C. McCulloch, former members of the university's animal pathology and hygiene division, and Frank Thorp Jr., and W. A. James, assistants.

Sense of Taste Can Be Made a Fine Attribute

Enhances Pleasures of Eating.

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

There are more ways than one of making each and every meal we eat a more or less absorbing game. This may be a game which, if well played, will increase our powers of discrimination, our ability to express ourselves, and increase our ways of securing delight, and so make life altogether more livable. In other words, instead of each eating period being a dull and inevitable necessity, it may be both entertaining and productive, because we may thereat exercise our mental agility as well as secure a wholesome nap for our physical powers.

For instance, taste is a necessary sense, but it can also be a fine attribute. And cooking which caters to this sense, while it is considered a service, can also be an art. When this necessary sense of taste is abused it works for vulgarity, but when it is reasonably fostered, it may contribute even to fineness of soul. Just because it contributes the keenest immediate feelings of pleasure and delight, it has seemed to transitory a thing for the professors of esthetics to give much attention to. In fact, two learned professors or scientists who have written a book on "The Sense of Taste," say that "skill in the compounding of tastes and flavors or discrimination in their relish, brings the expert neither artistic recognition nor social eminence."

Importance of Taste.

These authors, H. L. Hollingworth, Ph. D., and A. T. Poffenberger Jr., Ph. D., of Columbia, say that the sensations of taste are "the initial stimulus to the whole series of digestive and assimilative processes on which the well being of the organism depends. In much the same way the dulling or perversion of the taste sensations is often seen to constitute an early warning of grave disorder in the system as a whole and their restoration to presage the return to normal health."

And elsewhere they say: "The pleasurable sensations of taste and thus the initial stimulus to the whole series of digestive processes. These facts are of fundamental importance in the serving of food, especially when, through illness, the appetite is fickle. The degree of daintiness with which nourishment is served, the little attentions to esthetic details—the arrangement of the dishes . . . all may help to render food pleasing to the eye and savory to the nostrils and may be the deciding factors in determining whether the restoration of strength is to begin or not."

The authors of this book quoted this from Cannon, and they might have mentioned in this connection a well known fact about how the mouth waters at the sight of attractive food. They do quote from Carlson—who has done the greatest work on the stomach—and say, "There is no question but the mastication of a palatable dessert at the end of a meal serves to augment and prolong the appetite secretion of the gastric juice." People who lose their appetite secretions are destined to suffer many a pain.

Gourmet and Gourmand.

A fine taste in food makes the gourmet and epicure. A coarse taste makes the gourmand and glutton. A refined taste, as the above quotations perhaps suggest, will make for health as well as refinement. It protects as well as gives pleasure and delight. An unsafe food will repel us by its odor. The odor in relation to taste is half of it, at least.

To make the odors and flavors of food attractive has been the work of all fine cookery, and in some recent novel describing the education of a girl there was a list of the sorts of teaching she was getting, while the cook of the family was consciously teaching her to live, and as expressed, this meant something more than merely physical attainment. A cultivated taste for food is truly cultural, although culture is an undefinable thing whose results are nevertheless undeniably agreeable and advantageous in all human relations.

It's probably only, the people who have never had the advantages of a cultivated taste in foods who imagine that to be a gourmet is about the same thing as being a pervert. We can find many a common sense argument against such an idea. A Harvard professor, in introducing the book we have quoted from, says: "The sense of taste is a wholly respectable and dignified mode of obtaining satisfaction." The sense of taste does afford a clear sense especially of a tingling sort, and in this book there is listed those who get this first and foremost, the chefs, the cooks, the epicures, and in connection with this it says: "Taste is perhaps one of the most important of all mortal experiences, and of all scientific themes, and to the children how much it is!"

Interesting Experiments.

The game of eating may center around the different tastes like sweet and bitter, and acid and astringent, and spicy and oily and dry. The scientists blindfold those who are helping in experiments, or some will hold their noses, and learn an infinite number of things about what will change a taste or emphasize it. In one case a woman housekeeper of long experience could not recognize raw turnip, raw potato, boiled pumpkin, cranberry sauce, fresh pear when she was blindfolded. And of the list of experiments carried on by the authors of the book in question many curious, unexpected and entertaining facts were disclosed.

It was my intention to take up one subject alone, that of the taste of salt, which is so universally used to correct the sweetness of overripe melon and sometimes, unfortunately, to take out the sweetness from meat. If we salt a piece of lamb before we put it into the oven we are most likely to destroy the sweetness of the meat.

Our toleration of salt may increase to such a degree that we half destroy the pleasure of the foods we eat by lessening their native tastes. The medicinal use of salt, mostly in connection with the foods we eat, is a highly interesting topic.

Children, perhaps, usually do not care for salt and once after I had just seen a small boy object when his mother shook salt indiscriminately over his watermelon, I ran across the anecdote of Dick and his mother and the melon: "It brings out the taste," said the mother.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

A Sweet Dough.

This is a season when the bun is triumphant, and for the bun we need a sweet dough. There are many formulas for such doughs, but fundamentally they are simply the bread formula plus more butter than we use in an ordinary bread, a considerable amount of sugar and some eggs.

The following formula can be manipulated in many ways to make either a bun, coffee cake, or rusk. We may add currants to it if we have the idea that no bun is a bun without currants. It is: One cup milk, about three cups flour, one yeast cake, one-fourth pound butter [one half cup], three-fourth cup sugar, two eggs, one teaspoon salt. Make a sponge of the milk, yeast and two cups of the flour. Let this rise about two hours, add the beaten eggs and most of the other cup of flour, saving a little for the kneading. The principle is, however, to use as little flour as possible for the kneading.

After the dough is kneaded, let it rise and do not knead it, in the slightest, but put it into shape and roll it out in a one inch sheet. Cut out the little biscuit shapes or buns with the cutter or just cut it into oblongs with the knife. The pieces cut out may be baked individually, or we can make them into a sheet of rolls by fitting them close together in a small baking pan. Let them rise until doubled and then, if we want that sort of a finish, we rub the tops with sugar and water and sugar and milk and sprinkle them with dry sugar. Bake for one half hour if in a sheet at about 350 degrees temperature. The oven should not be so hot as to turn the top of these, which burn the easier because of the sugar on them.

Without any glazing on these buns they will have a good surface if perfectly baked, because the sugar in the dough tends to form a glaze for the crust.

The hot cross bun is often made so as to have its own natural glaze, and then when it is baked a cross of icing is piped onto it. Lately people, instead of making a cross with equal arms, have been piping one on with the lower part of the cross long.

GANDHI ORDERS WATER STRIKE ON TAX COLLECTORS

KARELI, Bombay Presidency, India, March 20.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, arriving here with his volunteer marchers in the civil disobedience campaign, today gave further instructions for carrying out his policy of nonviolent resistance to the Indian government.

He urged the villagers to refuse to fetch water for the tax collector so long as he worked for the present government, and told laborers not to give him their services. He told his hearers that if sent to prison they should go piously, if assaulted they should bear it cheerfully, if shot they should die peacefully.

JAMBUSAR, Bombay, March 20.—(AP)—The River Mahi was in flooded condition when, in the dead of night, Mahatma Gandhi crossed to a point near here from Raas. He used a boat, from which he was lifted and carried ashore when it reached this bank. Other members of his party of seventy-eight devotees waded three miles through water and mud before halting on the river bank for the night.

Trotzky Has Heart Attack; Family Fears for His Life

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 20.—(AP)—The family of Leon Trotzky, exiled soviet leader, today expressed alarm at his condition, a serious heart attack having followed a recent attack of the grip. Several physicians and nurses are attending the former Russian war lord in his villa on Prinkipo, an island in the Sea of Marmora, but his family says he needs a different climate and special medical treatment unavailable here.

MEDICAL PAPER COMMENTS ON SCHIRESON CASE

The Journal of the American Medical Association, in its issue of March 22, comments on the revocation of the license of Dr. Henry J. Schireson, who advertised himself as one of the greatest plastic surgeons of the world. The Journal says:

"The Illinois license of Henry J. Schireson, whose disreputable professional career has been the subject of both editorial and other comment in the Journal, has finally been revoked. For some years this man has plied his trade with impunity, but the present attorney general of the state of Illinois, Oscar E. Carlstrom, some months ago directed First Assistant Attorney General Harry A. Ash to file charges against Schireson, being moved to do so by the numerous complaints he had received.

"Mr. Ash proceeded vigorously, with the result just stated. The preliminary investigation of the case is said to have convinced Mr. Ash, according to reports, that Schireson's apparent immunity in the past might well have been due to his relations with W. H. H. Miller, former director of the department of registration and education of the state, a man who was twice convicted of fraud in connection with the issuance of physicians' licenses."

HAYES URGES STATES MAKE TRAFFIC STUDY FOR WIDENING ROADS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—Recommendation that the highway departments of all states appoint traffic commissions to make traffic censuses and compile accident statistics in congested areas, with a view of planning highway widening operations more intelligently, was urged today at the secretaries' conference of the American Automobile association by Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club.

Mr. Hayes urged officials of motor clubs to contact the governor of their states and ask them to take action to appoint such a commission. At the present time, he declared, there are few or no sources of accurate information on which widening programs can be based.

"The highway departments of Illinois and Cook county already have embarked upon plans which are certain to result in large measures of relief, what is being done there can be accomplished in other congested communities," he said.

The attending delegates, numbering nearly 1,000, indicated unanimous accord with the recommendation.

The can of ordinary ground or bean coffee that you buy contains nine-tenths waste material, including grounds and mineral matter. G. Washington's coffee is purely the coffee part of the coffee bean.

AFTER a series of thorough tests, The Boston School of Cookery said, "The new G. Washington's coffee is certainly a labor saving product far more uniform in quality than the average 'Coffee-pot Coffee.' Everybody will appreciate the speed and ease with which it can be served, as well as the unvarying quality."

"The lasting freshness of this coffee was a revelation to us," reported the Home Making Center of the New York State Women's Clubs. "Experiments conducted by our own staff, with coffee made from one day to six months previously, showed that every cup was as fresh as though just roasted."

As for economy, Miss Farmer's School of Cookery found that "G. Washington's coffee especially considering the quality and service to the housewife is not expensive or out of line in price. It costs you less than the old-style coffee, considering time and labor saved the housewife."

G. Washington's is pure coffee, good coffee and nothing but coffee. It is the coffee part of the coffee bean, with the grounds and moisture removed before the coffee is packed. All you do is add hot water and serve; no percolator, no grounds or scouring. Sold at all good grocery and chain stores. Send 10c for a sample tin to the G. Washington Coffee Refining Company, 130 Hanover Avenue, Morris Plains, New Jersey.

Vegetarian BEANS

If you like good baked beans—but prefer them without pork or any other meat—here's a special dish for your delight. Especially prepared for vegetarians.

Real oven-baking in dry heat gives these beans the tender mealiness and flavor that only baking can give. And the racy zest of Heinz Tomato Sauce—red ripe tomatoes and delicate spices—adds a savory tang that can't be described.

Real baked beans—permeated through and through with irresistible tomato sauce!

ONE OF THE 57

Baked Beans with Pork and Tomato Sauce
Baked Red Kidney Beans

YOU CAN Taste THE DIFFERENCE

IT MAKES all the difference in the world whether you use real vanilla extract to flavor your desserts, or whether you use weak flavors or vanilla substitutes. When you use Dr. Price's true Vanilla Extract you can taste the difference. Stick to Price's Vanilla and you will always enjoy the exquisite bouquet, the mellow flavor of vanilla made from sun-cured vanilla beans—essence that has been properly aged in wooden casks. But be sure you get Price's. Your grocer sells it. The Price Flavoring Extract Co., Chicago, Ill.

Water Colors Show at the Art Institute Is Full of Bright Things

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The tenth international water color exhibition opened yesterday afternoon in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. It is a remarkably vivid exhibit. It sparkles with life and radiates color.

There are fascinating sketches from tropical countries; there are imaginative scenes from under the seas; there are portraits and there are still lifes; there are field lands and hills, backyards and gardens, fruit and flowers plucked and growing. There is a joyous riot of experiment and achievement and the hum of jovial banter that bears it up rises like a hymn to Pan, the little god of the unafraid.

Certain paintings stand out and certain names impress themselves upon one by the power that thrusts itself forward in their painting. John Whorf, for example, has made vast strides forward. He is virile, spectacular, and solid; where in former years perhaps he aped a bit the substance of Sargent, today he is entirely himself. Frederic Tellander is another painter, a Chicago man, who carries you away in enthusiasm for his remarkable use of color and broad passages. Robert Lee Eskridge is as delightfully whimsical and choppy as fantastically abrupt as other shows have given us cause to know he can be. Pop Harte swings into his own with two or more large scale paintings, deft and sure and extremely effective.

A room is given over to Charles S. Chapman, a colorist, and there the eye can enjoy a blend of rose, gold, blue, cream, a hundred tints as though an opal had been smashed to bits and left glinting in the bright rays of a full moon.

The prize awards were given to the following: The Watson F. Blair prize of $500 to "Winter Landscape," by Henry Keller (this will become the property of the museum); the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan medal and $500 to "Patricia," by Emil Halzhaner (to belong to the museum); the Watson F. Blair prize of $400 to "Fishing Boats, Rockport," by Gifford Beal (another museum acquisition); the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize of $250 to "On the Balcony," by Ethel Walker; the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize of $150 to "The Passing Crowd," by Charles S. Chapman; and the William H. Tuthill purchase prize of $100 to "The Artist," by Lloyd R. Jones.

Mere Sagging Chin No Cause for Death of Romantic Hopes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In a fiction story I read recently the leading woman character was caught red handed by her author in that depressing moment of staring hopelessly into a mirror and drawing the back of a hand out from under a chin that fell immediately into crêpey folds.

"No," the fiction character pondered, "I am too old for that."

THAT was the romance she still hoped in her heart she might catch up with some day. She missed it in the family made marriage which lasted twenty years. The husband had been gone two years now. The son married right out of school. The woman thought, maybe——

But that chin was the Waterloo of her hopes.

That's how it happens in fiction. In real life the romantic idea would have been propped up at least with a rush to the best beauty parlor, on massage treatments bent. The rush home would have been slightly retarded by the weight of lotion bottles and instructions for application.

Women with a little crêpe on their chins, or beneath them, to be more exact, do not give up as easily as that. They shouldn't, either. They can put a lot of romantic hope back under that chin even after an 18 year old son has eloped, or after a 19 year old daughter has gone and grandmother-ed them.

It is surprising how you can smooth out that underchin surface with the proper heart. But the heart has to be working every day; not in the work today and out of it tomorrow.

Pat along the underchin and whole jaw line with the back of the hand, greased with cream or nourishing food, or use a patter lightly, or just stroke easily along the crinkled surface. If it is badly crinkled or saggy, use a strong astringent, on the advice of your well informed cosmetician.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

S. K.: GIVING THE FACE AN ICE rub after the cleansing process has been completed is an excellent habit to acquire. It tones up the skin. If the pores are large it helps to reduce them.

R. T.: YOU SHOULD DRINK SIX to eight glasses of water daily. Water drinking does much toward keeping the skin clear and free from odor. Water is necessary to dissolve the food materials and wash away the waste.

Cancer Clinic Urged as Massachusett's Action Is Described

A clinic definitely known as such where Chicagoans will not fear to go for examination and early diagnosis was urged as one of the city's most important needs in the local fight on cancer. That policy was urged yesterday by Miss Edna L. Foley, superintendent of the Visiting Nurse association. Miss Foley was the guest speaker of the cancer research committee of the Chicago Woman's club at the headquarters, 72 East 11th street.

Miss Foley told how large sums of money are being given in New York and Boston toward cancer control. She described the work of the Pondville, Mass., cancer hospital, established four years ago and maintained by state appropriation.

Veterans of 122d F.A. Form Club at Meeting Tonight

Days and nights of shells, cooties, etc., will be recalled tonight at the armory of the 122d Field Artillery, Chicago avenue across from McKinlock campus. An organization meeting will be held for the 122d Field Artillery War Veterans club, to which all such members of the regiment will be entitled to belong.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Henry White Boyd of Highland Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Florence, to Gordon Taylor Beaham Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Taylor Beaham of Kansas City, Mo. Miss Boyd is a graduate of the Masters school at Dobbs Ferry and a member of the Junior league. Mr. Beaham attended Princeton.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Mary, 4, came into the room wheeling her doll. She motioned to her mother to be quiet as she said her baby was sick.

"I suppose she ate too much candy and ice cream," said her mother sympathetically.

My son, 3, who was playing in the room with a little ball, called to me:

"Mother, I des I'm getting in mistiff. I knocked something down."

Society Turns to Problems of Spring Frocks

BY THALIA

Ever since last fall when the long and short of the skirt problem began to be ironed, clothes have been one of the most interesting feminine topics of conversation.

The interest still is sustained, with small conjecture as to the spring fashions. Women who already have purchased new garments for spring are taking advantage of days like yesterday and last Sunday to wear them. Others who are waiting until all the spring showings have been made before selecting their wardrobes are regretting their delay when the sun shone.

Miss Barbara King, daughter of the Charles G. Kings, who is remaining in Chicago this time, while her parents are in California, wore a smart blue tweed cloth suit to church last Sunday. It is made with a chic little shoulder cape and worn with a charmeuse crêpe blouse and a close fitting black hat with a bow in the back. Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr. strolling down Astor street with her son, Bobby, bowling along on roller skates beside her, was seen the same morning, wearing an oxford blue coat, with a shoulder cape similar to Miss King's, and a navy blue silk beret with an agraffe clasped to one side. Agraffes are one of the latest jewelry wrinkles and are of diamonds or brilliants and are worn at the shoulder or at some effective point of the new spring bonnet.

One of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's new outfits, in which she appears on her morning walks down the drive, is of black. The coat is lavishly trimmed with bands of galyak, and the hat is of one of the new shiny black straws, panamalaque, I believe, back off the face, and down on the sides and back. Miss Jane Rowe was to be seen on the near north side yesterday, also, wearing a suit of some woolen material in rather a light shade of green, and a matching small hat of grosgrain ribbon.

All of these daytime costumes, as well as a stunning black ensemble being worn by Mrs. Francis J. Johnson, and a beige coat Mrs. John W. Root wears, are not of extreme length, but only a few inches longer than the ones worn a year or so ago.

Mrs. Murry Nelson and Mrs. Ernest L. Ballard presided at the tea tables following the lecture by Dr. Francis Bruno Averardi at the Evanston residence of Mrs. Hubert Burnham yesterday afternoon. Assisting at the tea were Miss Mary Dawes, Mrs. Harold Amberg, Miss Marcia Foss, and Mrs. Lloyda Smith Shaw. The lecture was one of a series being given by the Alliance Française. Dr. Averardi spoke on "Madame de Sevigne."

The Needlework and Textile guild of the Art institute announces an informal talk on "Applied Stitches" by Miss Winifred Mynors of the Royal School of Needlework of London tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, in the Allerton wing of the institute. Miss Mynors has been instructor for the guild this winter.

The Walter S. Brewsters have taken two boxes for the concert to be given by Serge Prokofieff and his wife, Lina Llubera, at Orchestra hall next Monday evening. Pro Musica is interested in the event, and many of its members are to attend also.

The League of Women Voters is to have a gala birthday luncheon next Wednesday at the Palmer house to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the founding of the league. Mrs. Ralph Winston has enlisted a group of young women to usher, including Miss Barbara King, Miss Mary Seaman, Mrs. Louis Sudler, and Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee Jr. Reservations for the luncheon have already been made by Mrs. Edward Ryerson, Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mrs. Eugene Wheeler, Mrs. Ralph C. Otis, Mrs. Charles Yeomans, and Mrs. William G. Hibbard.

George W. Dixon Jr. of 1250 Lake Shore drive, and his classmates at Northwestern university law school, Richard R. Parkin of Highland Park have departed for a week's vacation at French Lick Springs, Ind.

The Philip D. Armours and their son, David, have returned from a stay in Palm Beach.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Dean Bevan of 1550 State parkway are expected to return from Pasadena, Cal., where they go annually for the late winter, the early part of next week.

WILL LIVE IN EAST

MRS. JACK SCHWEIZER.

Miss Jean A. Lehmann, Milton I. Shubert to Wed

Miss Jean Affeld Lehmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto W. Lehmann of Chicago and Lake Villa, will be married in New York today to Milton I. Shubert, a nephew of Lee and J. J. Shubert. The ceremony will be performed in private by Dr. Nathan Krass.

The young couple following the ceremony, will go on a brief cruise, it was announced, and they will then go to St. Louis, where Mr. Shubert will direct the Municipal Opera company next summer.

Miss Lehmann often has ridden her family's thoroughbreds at horseshows. She forsook the tanbark rings for the stage in December, 1928, saying she had been studying for two years and intended to become a dancer.

Student Ratings Offer Puzzles to Educators

Science is hard, Spanish is harder, and mathematics are hardest of all the studies high school freshmen must hurdle for passing grades. That was the story told yesterday in extensive statistics compiled from records of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, as expounded at the conference at the Stevens hotel by Dean C. R. Maxwell of the University of Wyoming.

Latin was credited, in the welter of information gleaned from the report, with being relatively the easiest individual study in the freshman curricula, gauged by the number receiving passing grades in it. An increasingly large number of failures were registered as the measuring stick moved down the list from Latin to English, to history, French, science, Spanish, and finally mathematics.

Out of a total enrollment of 918,299 freshmen students in the year 1928 [that's the total on which the statistics are based] it was disclosed that 25.7 per cent failed in one or more subjects for which they were registered, in the search for semester hour credits. The range was from 19.6 per cent in South Dakota to 37.1 per cent in Wyoming. The range of failures in any particular subject, it was found, is very great.

It was noted that while Arizona, North Dakota, and Wyoming graduates from high schools have no failures in Latin, graduates of New Mexico high schools fail in 19.7 per cent of semester hours in the same subjects.

Further analysis of the figures showed that the percentage of freshman failures is highest in state universities and state colleges, and lowest among teacher training institutions. Ranked according to the percentage of students failing in one or more hours, state institutions rated 33.9 per cent; private colleges and universities, 24.2 per cent; junior colleges, 20.9 per cent, and teacher training institutions, 17 per cent.

"The success of a student in a higher institution," read one of the conclusions of the repart, "depends largely on the one he selects. Great differences are found in the percentages of failure among institutions of the same type, without any apparent cause."

Members of the faculty of Crane Junior college yesterday placed on the board of education the blame for the conditions there which led to the dropping of that school from membership in the association at Wednesday's sessions.

Dean George C. Heritage, acting president of Crane, pointed out that although the board of education demands classes of thirty-five to each teacher, the association feels there should be only twenty students to each instructor. He added that a Crane Junior graduate leads the entire student body at Northwestern Medical school, ranking first on the honor list, and others are respectively fourth and tenth. At Loyola last year four out of ten honor students were graduates of Crane pre-medical college.

A "probationary attitude" toward Butler college at Indianapolis was yesterday asked of the association by the board of directors of that college, who addressed a telegram to the conference, which on Wednesday dropped that school, also, from membership. Hilton U. Brown, chairman of the Butler board of directors, and Robert J. Allen, Butler president, were reported last night to be on their way to Chicago to demand a rehearing.

President Franklin L. McVey of the University of Kentucky last night, at the dinner meeting of the association, decried the subordination of educational policy to financial and administrative interests.

"It is a state of things that weighs heavily on the hopes and ambitions of the faculties," he said. "In our American system, the place and authority of the teaching group are much lower than that occupied by the staffs of European universities. The faculty should be something more than a traditional body engaged in routine educational policy if it is to have self-respect and a greater interest in the affairs of the institution.

"Without doubt, the American system of college administration has led to concrete results, but very much of it has been accomplished at the expense of the spirit of democracy."

At its final session yesterday at the Stevens hotel, the conference of liberal arts colleges adopted a resolution to form an organization to promote their mutual financial interests, to be known as the liberal arts college movement. A committee of fifteen will develop its program and report in January of 1931 at the meeting of the association at Indianapolis.

Parent Considers Sending Son, 13, to Reform School

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

The following booklets by Mrs. Bevans will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope: "Books to Be Read to Children or by Them," "Sex Education Booklet," and "Play Booklet." A book on the care of babies by Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom can be had at The Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 50 cents, or by mail for 65 cents.

A judge on the bench of a children's court will use only as a last resort the measure of sending a child to a reform school.

He will rebuke and advise parents, make use of altruistic groups of men or women who care about helping delinquent children, call on probation officers—resort to every expedient before he will send a child to a reform school.

Yet parents will—and have—seriously considered such a measure, as witness the following which is one of a number of similar letters I have received.

"I have been in a complicated situation for the last few years and have been unable to solve it, but I feel the time has come when all this must be put to an end.

"I have a son who has just passed his 13th birthday. He is a healthy, robust child and has been accustomed to all the luxuries of life. But he is a spoiled child. He is fond of all sorts of gambling and this is a serious thing for one of his age. He is very clever and if he tries he can be a good student, but he does not concentrate enough on his school work.

"Often he is a puzzle to others just as well as myself. My husband and I both go to business and thereafter are not with him for most of the day. It is only lately that I go to business. When I was home he acted the same way. I have a younger son who is just his opposite. He is loved and admired by all for his goodness.

"I believe that the time has come to teach my older son a lesson. The only way I can do this is by sending him to a reform school for a few months. Perhaps he would see the difference between a mother and a reform school."

If any other mother or father who reads this letter has ever made such a decision, or hesitated on the brink of it, let her, or him, put away the thought forever.

Reform schools are the last place in the world to which to send children to be reformed. Perhaps it is only ignorance that makes parents entertain such a thought. Perhaps, if they had even an inkling of the environment and associations into which their sons would be thrown they would not contemplate such an act. Contamination—not rehabilitation—would be the effect. Even hardened criminals—one was quoted in the paper recently—say, "It's all wrong to mix prisoners up together—it's ruination for the younger offenders."

That's what happens in reform schools. Let parents who are discouraged think of that—and perish the thought.

The Cape-Coat-Dress Enters Spring Parade

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Paris fashion battalions have recruited capes, cape-coats, and coat-dresses for 1930. The cape-coat-dress is the youngest street costume to join up, and the new recruit certainly looks smart stepping along in the spring parade. This three in one costume is eminently practical as well as supremely chic. It combines all the advantages of its three brothers in arms. It is dressy as a coat, slender as a frock, and graceful as a cape. Besides which it is easy to get into.

Premet makes this cape-coat-frock with a devious closing of tussor tweed in the new stone blue, a soft gray which seems to be enjoying a beautiful attack of southern blues. The skirt is cleverly cut so as to mold the hips and widen into low circular fullness. A diagonal inset mounts from the bottom at the left toward the right hip, whence it redescends in the same manner in the back. Its "uppercut" continues up the front of the waist toward the left shoulder, where it joins the edge of the little asymetrical cape. Belt, buttons placed in a double breasted effect, and the lining of the capelet are of plain blue tussor, a shade darker than the tussor tweed.

The new spring bonnet from Mado resembles the coiffure of an Egyptian goddess. Its cunning calotte is in a silky straw imitating the plain blue tussor trimming the cape-coat dress. It is fitted to the back of the head by a split oval inset which descends in two points on the nape. Straw tweed exactly matching the mixy surface of the dress forms the slightly draped wing brim and the center of the back inset. Mist gray gauntlets of doeskin cut with a little flared cuff and a throat-fitting necklace of silver filigree squares put the accessory touch to this costume.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

It is very convenient to have a supply of well prepared soil available at all times for the use in the hotbed or in flats or boxes in which plants are to be grown.

Then, too, most housewives have more or less difficulty in getting suitable soil in which to grow flowering plants either in pots in the house or in beds in the yard.

A compost heap will supply this need. It may be made by plowing or spading up a quantity of bluegrass or other good turfy sod and piling it grass side down with alternate layers of fresh stable manure. The proportion should be about one-third manure to two-thirds sod. If the soil from which the sod is taken is heavy, muck or sand should be added.

Such a heap should be allowed to stand for several months, preferably over the winter, before it is used. After the frost is out of the heap in the spring the soil should be cut down in thin layers with a sharp spade and repiled.

It should be shoveled over once or twice more before it is used. When it is well mixed it should be run over a wire screen if the soil is to be used in which to sow seed. For small seeds, such as many kinds of flower seeds, a second sifting through a finer meshed screen will be very desirable.

When the compost heap is not available a fairly satisfactory soil in which to grow plants can be made by mixing good garden loam with well rotted stable manure. Muck soil which has not been submerged under water for some time will be found very satisfactory in which to grow plants of most kinds, advises C. W. Ward, horticulturist at Michigan State college.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Night clubs seem to be playing a part in the lives of some of our otherwise agreeably disposed young couples. "Jean and Mac" offer the latest contribution on how night life may cast a shadow over two perfectly nice young people.

"Jean" married "Mac" some months ago. Before marriage their "date" programs usually ran a dinner, a show, and a dancing place after. "Jean" is pretty and dances extraordinarily well. "Mac," as a decoration and a dancing partner, is not far behind. But, as is sometimes the way with men, when they marry they nurse the delusion that wedlock is going to permit them to settle down. That is, it is a delusion when they marry a pretty, pleasure loving girl like Jean.

Jean doesn't want to settle—not for ten years yet, and maybe twenty. She wants to go where the bright lights are and there is no end of trouble already brewing in the "Mac" homestead.

It is a different matter paying couvert charges for your wife than for your sweetheart. It should be, too. Those home couvert charges aren't so easy for a young man, even with so good a salary as Mac earns. Not with a girl who never had to worry much about where the money came from for dancing slippers at twenty-five per pair—not including buckles, either—and other things proportionately high.

The moral is, if you want to settle down after you marry you must choose the settling kind of girl. Otherwise you're going to have to do your bit by the night clubs.

That's the case in which the night life figures. Another is "Betty's and Joe's." Betty never saw a night club. She reads about them in the papers. Joe says, "Nix on that stuff, honey. We stay right here by the little old fireside."

"If he'd only take me once and let me see what they are like," Betty cries, "maybe that'd be all I'd want."

And maybe, too, it wouldn't be a bad idea if Joe would dig up the money some place, and take Betty and let her see how much more alluring they are in the papers than in the flesh, so to speak.

Why not ask the mother to accompany you? In that way gain her confidence.

Sidewalk Prima Donna.

My sister and I had been walking along the street humming some of the songs which we were to sing in an amateur play. We disagreed on one tune and I stopped suddenly and began to sing it as I thought it should be sung. I had almost finished when I suddenly heard some one clapping loudly. Looking across the street, I saw the young man whom I had been trying to impress for weeks.

He had placed the large box he was carrying down on the sidewalk and was sitting upon it, leaning back as if entranced by the music and at the same time applauding with all the strength he could muster. I could not miss the grin on his face. M. S. A.

New Achievement in Face Powder

"The skin of youth lies in every box of new wonderful MELLO-GLO Face Powder," says lovely Mary Mulhern, beautiful actress. The purest powder made—its color is passed by the U. S. Government. No pastiness, flakiness or irritation. A new French process makes it spread more smoothly and prevents large pores. No more shiny noses—it stays on longer. Use MELLO-GLO.

If Baby has COLIC

A cry in the night may be the first warning that Baby has colic. No cause for alarm if Castoria is handy! This pure vegetable preparation brings quick comfort, and can never do the slightest harm. Always keep a bottle in the house. It is the safe and sensible thing when children are ailing. Whether it's the stomach, or the little bowels; colic or constipation; or diarrhea. When tiny tongues are coated, or the breath is bad. Whenever there's need of gentle regulation. Children love the taste of Castoria, and its mildness makes it suitable for the tiniest infant, and for frequent use.

And a more liberal dose of Castoria is always better for growing children than some needlessly strong medicine meant only for adult use. Genuine Castoria always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Prescribed by doctors!

New water-softening cleanser is almost magic in action—with local hard water and ¼ usual amount of soap. ½ the time.

A NEW discovery—not a soap, but a water-softening cleanser—makes any soap more effective by changing hard water to soft. It enables you to cut dish washing time in half. And you need use only one-fourth the usual amount of soap

Women now find that greasy film on dishes has been eliminated and greasy scum is no longer left in the dishpan—in spite of this city's hard water.

What It Is

It is a preparation called Climalene that you add to your washing water. Just a tablespoon or two.

Instantly, it takes all the harshness out of that water. Makes it soft as rain water.

At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all dirt, stains and grime.

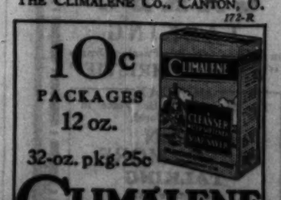
Use the soap or soap flakes you ordinarily do. Then see for yourself the amazing results. During 1929 women used over 24,000,000 packages of Climalene for washing, for cleaning and in the dishpan.

Laboratory Proved

To assure results to you, we buy fine things, lingerie and delicate fabrics, costly china. Then by repeated washings, try to spoil or fade them.

Consider, please, what those things mean to you. Consider, too, that the minute you put this creation into water, all harshness is taken away—your hands protected from roughness, made soft, smooth and white. Then try it.

Remember the name—Climalene. Your grocer has it in 10c and 25c packages. THE CLIMALENE CO., CANTON, O. 172-R.



HER DISCOVERY BROUGHT RICH REWARDS

"I am through switching tooth pastes," exclaimed the girl with such lovely teeth. "I've found PEBECO! Pebeco does everything that other tooth pastes do—and something more. My teeth have never been whiter, brighter. I've never had a more refreshed, exhilarated feeling in my mouth than after using Pebeco!"... Was she right in saying that Pebeco offers more for your money? Make your own answer—perhaps you have been missing something. Buy a tube of Pebeco today.—Advt.

BALFOUR TO GET PIPERS' DIRGE AT LAST RUSTIC RITE

As Scottish Laird Will Be Borne on Farm Cart.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 20.—Only the simplest rustic ceremonies will mark the funeral of Arthur James Balfour, first Earl of Balfour, the distinguished veteran of Great Britain's stormiest political battles of recent decades, when he is buried Saturday in the midst of a grove of beech trees in his native village of Whittingehame. His burial will be the traditional one accorded to Scottish lairds. The body will be borne to its resting place in an ordinary farm cart and as it is lowered into the ground kilted pipers will play a lament on the bagpipes. The remains of the late earl were sent to Scotland tonight.

The ceremonies will be as private as possible. The officiating minister will be the Rev. Marshall Lang, brother of the Archbishop of Canterbury. A simple stone will mark the earl of Balfour's grave beside those of his mother and brother.

York to Represent King.

Simultaneously with the burial there will also be funeral services in Westminster Abbey and St. Giles' cathedral in Edinburgh. More than 1,000 people are expected to attend the Westminster service. Among them will be members of the government and many old parliamentarians. The duke of York will represent King George.

Paying tribute to the departed political leader Prime Minister MacDonald today said in the house of commons:

"As befitting, while his voice was heard here and his hand was felt in office, he was the center of many a hot battle, both of gallant assault and cautious defense.

"Those who were in these battles and felt the hot spirit of the conflict never grudged any admiration for him as a leader who struck a deadly blow with disarming charm and who withered an opponent with more than graceful suavity."

Death Took His Only Love.

LONDON, March 21 [Friday].—(AP)—A statement in the daily Mail this morning says that the earl of Balfour's lifelong bachelorhood was due to the tragic death of the only woman he ever loved. When Mr. Balfour was about 37 he fell in love with Miss Lyttleton, sister of the late Viscount Cobham. She died suddenly while Mr. Balfour was on the way to give her the ring he had just bought, and he remained faithful to her memory throughout his life.

Ashley Sisters and Larson Top Radio Program

Alfred Lyman Flude Gives Travel Lecture.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Thursday evening radio programs at present are running so light that they could be weighted a lot and yet not give any one a headache. But, considering what they are, they are godd.

Larry Larson, organist, and the harmonious Ashley sisters were the featured talent on the W-G-N 8 to 8:30 program, Mr. Larson doing the Handel "Largo" superbly, and the sisters singing popular harmony songs attractively.

Incidentally, there are many radio organ programs from several stations during the day and evening, and all of them could be improved by minimizing the tremolo effects.

Alfred Lyman Flude's account of his trans-Siberian journey, W-G-N, 9:30 to 10, was as instructive as it was entertaining. It is certainly a great satisfaction to have Mr. Flude give this series of travel lectures.

One of the evening's most pretentious programs was an orchestral concert from New York in which Mme. Nina Koshetz, soprano, was featured as soloist, through KYW, 9 to 10. Music of the heavier type predominated.

The highlights of "Il Trovatore" were present by soloists, to piano accompaniment, from WCFL, 8 to 9. The performers did very well.

A trip over the lower dial markings brought in a program by the Moose-heart band, WJJD, 8 to 8:30. A woman with a voice of some range did the announcing.

Phonograph recordings showed up as the chief standby on WKBI's 8 to 9 hour. That's a pretty busy hour for phonograph discs to be the main attraction at a Chicago station.

NEW INDICTMENTS IN SANITARY QUIZ DUE THIS MONTH

First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup announced yesterday that the grand jury will return several new indictments this month in the sanitary district scandals. Northup said he would present some evidence to the grand jury next week and that indictments would be returned before the April primary. The bulk of the new evidence, supposedly gathered by the state in the year or more of investigation, will not be presented for grand jury action, however, until after the primary.

The state's attorney's office has had indictments pending against Timothy J. Crowe, former president of the sanitary district, and twelve other sanitary district employés since May, 1929. State's Attorney Swanson said he has turned the entire situation over to his first assistant and that he does not know when any of the pending cases will be brought before a criminal court jury.

Prosecutor Northup said he hopes to get some of the cases on the new indictments to trial before the summer vacation of the courts in July.

City officials were blocked for the time being yesterday in their program to raise $12,000,000 from the sale of certificates pledging the future revenues of the city from the sale of water. The appeal was taken by the law firm of Nash & Ahern on behalf of Frank J. Ward, 7856 Kingston avenue, who originally sued for an injunction to restrain the city from issuing the certificates. City Controller Schmidt previously refused to issue the certificates on the ground that they are invalid.

HOOVER CHEERED AS HAITI NAMES NEW PRESIDENT

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, March 20.—(AP)—Amid scenes of intense enthusiasm an assembly of people's delegates today approved the choice of Eugene Roy, wealthy business man and banker, as temporary president of Haiti. Roy, who has never held a public job, will take office May 15, when President Louis Borno's term expires. He will serve until legislative elections can be held next fall and the deputies and senators, in joint session, can elect a president.

After the vote was taken, with 34 ballots for Roy and one blank, the candidate was taken to the Parisiana theater for a speech.

Outside a crowd of several thousand cheered wildly, mingling shouts for Roy, for the republic, for President Hoover, and for the Hoover commission, which brought calm to Haiti's political situation.

After a brief talk, in which Roy pledged himself to carry out the plan of the Hoover commission and thanked President Borno for his cooperation, he was taken for a triumphal ride through the streets. Some 50,000 people shouted exuberantly and joined the parade, with bands playing, while shouts of "vive Roy" and "vive la republique" were heard on all sides.

Haitians considered that today brought a rebirth of freedom, and they were happy to see delegates from all parts of the country, approving the choice announced by the Hoover commission, which gave Haiti this new form of government and now has returned to the United States.

PLAN TO REDUCE RUNNING TIME OF TRAINS TO WEST

Reports of an impending "speed war" among western railroads evoked a chuckle last night from the passenger traffic managers of the Burlington, Milwaukee, North Western, Northern Pacific, and Great Northern roads. The traffic managers have been meeting for the last week, discussing the feasibility of reducing running schedules.

Already the Burlington and Milwaukee have agreed to cut one hour from the Chicago-St. Paul running time of their crack transcontinental trains. The new schedule, operative on March 31, affects the Olympian of the Milwaukee road and both the North Coast limited of the Northern Pacific and the Empire Builder of the Great Northern, which operate to St. Paul over the Burlington.

Managers of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, it was said, are now discussing the possibility of reducing schedules for the aforementioned trains from St. Paul to the coast. If they agree, the Portland limited of the North Western-Union Pacific system, will meet the new schedule, according to reports.

The Santa Fe announced a reduction yesterday of the running time of the Chief between Chicago and Los Angeles, effective on May 1. The Rock Island and the North Western are expected to follow suit on their crack California trains.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 20.—Despite an impressive splurge of home run hitting the Cubs were denied victory over the Portland Coast leaguers here this afternoon. At one point the boys from the major league were strutting under the protection of a 6 to 1 advantage, but the Beavers gnawed their way to a tie in the seventh and then won in the eleventh inning. The final count was 7 to 6.

The finishing blow to the day's proceedings happened in the presence of Malcolm Moss, the learned southpaw, who came into the affair after Lynn Nelson and Al Shealy had labored through nine sessions with more or less success, principally less. Moss completed the tenth, his first chapter, in dazzling fashion, but to start the eleventh he reverted to the fashion of left-handers. He walked Bob Johnson, brother of the Detroit star. Bob promptly stole and scored the winning tally on a single by Bates.

Homers Off Carl Mays.

The home run exhibition put on by the Cubs was at the expense of none other than that famous old disturber, Carl Mays, who is just down from the majors. All that happened to Carl's underhand delivery was four runs in the first round, three of which were due to circuit hits by Hornsby, Wilson, and Stephenson. In the next session English did the same. The early explosion, however, must have burned up all the Cubs' attacking energy. In the nine remaining innings they did nothing with their bats except to score their sixth and last tally in the seventh.

Bess McCarthy had an idea that Nelson, his prize rookie hurler, would be able to show a dazzling line of goods to the Beavers, but the idea didn't pan out. Nelson's reputed fast ball flashed only occasionally, and nine hits were collected off him in five innings. That he allowed only two runs was somewhat of a mystery. Nelson, however, was far better than his successor, Al Shealy, who was responsible for letting the decision get away. He permitted a flock of extra base hits which helped the Portland troops to a tie and four runs in the seventh.

Fireworks Start After 2 Out.

The first inning in which the Cubs gave Mays such a jousting didn't start impressively. English tapped only as far as the pitcher, and Grimm was fouled out by the catcher on a roller in front of the plate. Then the parade got under way. Hornsby hoisted his homer over the left field bricks, and Wilson sailed one into the seats in right. Cuyler survived when Mays made a wild throw to first base. Next came Stephenson's homer beyond the left field barrier, making the total four runs for the round.

The epidemic of Cub homers broke out again in the second frame, but it appeared in mild form. After two had been retired, English picked out one of Mays' choicest underhand pitches and hoisted it over the screen in right.

After the Cubs had picked up a run in the seventh on singles by Hornsby and Cuyler, the Beavers proceeded to tie the score and at the same time win Shealy in the home half.

English Breaks Ice.

From the time of scoring their lone run in the seventh the Cubs didn't come through with as much as a hit until after one out in the eleventh. Then English singled and Grimm banged on a pop behind third. This looked promising, but nothing happened. Hornsby produced nothing more violent than a pop to the catcher, and Wilson flied to center to end the inning. A moment later the Beavers ended the game in the fashion already mentioned.

The second and final of the series with Portland will be staged tomorrow, with a couple more of McCarthy's rookies in the rôle of trying to win.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

St. Stanislaus High school of Bay St. Louis sent another basketball team from the coastal plains of Mississippi to the national Catholic prep school tourney, and the fans who cheered them in the finals last year again made the rafters of Loyola university's gymnasium ring last night. Four players from last year's runner-up team were in the lineup, and they didn't disappoint the admirers they made last year, for they won a 39 to 24 victory over La Salle institute of Cumberland, Md., in the first round.

Saucier, Genard, Colotta and Toca were the four left of last year's team, and replacing the huge star Ladner was a stocky lad from Chicago's north side named John Hallisley. It was the thin faced and tiny George Toca who stole most of the cheers last night, for the little fellow set up a new mark for individual scoring in the tournament. He caged six baskets and seven free throws for 19 points.

Loyola Easy Victor.

While that game wasn't close, there were others that were in the eleven first round contests run off in this seventh annual tournament yesterday. Two last minute baskets won for St. Michael of Union City, N. J. Loyola academy, the second string to Chicago's bow in the championship, moved into the second round as easily as had De La Salle on the opening day. The north siders defeated Cathedral High of Denver, Colo., 21 to 12.

Something like a six day bicycle race in its continuous shifting scene of color, the tournament began at 9 in the morning with a game every hour until 10 o'clock in the evening. And today the program begins with the last two first round games at 9 and 10 o'clock, and then the second round starts, to be completed in the last game tonight.

Three outstanding games are on today's bill, St. Xavier of Louisville, Ky., against De La Salle, Chicago Catholic league champion, at 11 o'clock; Loyola academy against Columbia academy of Dubuque, Ia., at 4 o'clock, and St. Stanislaus against Rockhurst High school of Kansas City at 8 o'clock.

A dark horse appeared last night in Father Ryan High of Nashville, Tenn. Untouted, the southerners virtually assured themselves the trophy for the highest score in the first round by smothering St. Theresa of Hutchinson, Kas., 53 to 12. Curley, a floor guard, slipped nine baskets

BRUINS DEFEAT MAROONS, 2 TO 1, IN 3 OVERTIMES

MONTREAL, Que., March 20.—(AP)—The champion Boston Bruins won their first game of the National Hockey league playoffs from the Montreal Maroons, 2 to 1, in a gruelling overtime struggle tonight. Boston scored the winning goal early in the third overtime frame, after two extra periods had failed to break a 1 to 1 deadlock created in the second period. It was the longest game in the history of major league hockey.

The victory put the Bruins, present world champions, one up in the series of the best five games. The second will be played here Saturday night and the rest in Boston.

RANGERS, OTTAWA TIE.

Ottawa, Ont., March 20.—(AP)—The New York Rangers and Ottawa Senators played a 1 to 1 tie in the first game of their playoff series in the National Hockey league. There was no overtime, as the third place series is of two games with the total score deciding the issue. The second game will be played in New York Sunday night.

FRENCHMAN HURT BY SONNENBERG'S FLYING TACKLE

Boston, Mass., March 20.—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg threw Henri Digiane, French opponent here tonight so hard Digiane was unable to continue wrestling for the third fall. Digiane was taken to the city hospital suffering from what was believed to be a severe head injury.

Digiane had won the first fall and Sonnenberg the second, but in winning his fall Sonnenberg had caused both himself and Digiane to be carried out of the ring by the force of one of his tackles. Digiane landed under Sonnenberg and struck his head and chin. When the Frenchman was pushed back into the ring he was bleeding profusely from both ears and from a cut on his chin. Physicians described his injuries as concussion of the brain and fractured ribs.

Hidden Ball Trick Halts Texas Rally.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Austin, Tex., March 20.—Donie Bush, master of Mr. Comiskey's hirelings, this afternoon presented the 1930 training season's closest approximation to his opening day lineup, and with this select talent accomplished a neat victory over the snappiest of all collegian outfits of the south, the University of Texas Longhorns. The score was: Sox, 5; Longhorns, 1.

BUD CLANCY

Bill Kamm made his 1930 debut, and J. Smead Jolley his world premiere in a major league uniform. Bill made the first run of the game his first time at bat. It was a drive over the left field fence. Bill later drove in a run and scored another. In the field Mr. Kamm proved an old meany by working the hidden ball trick to blight the ecstasy of the Texas rooters during the course of the lone Longhorn rally, which came in the eighth inning.

Jolley Hits Double.

Jolley, recent rover of the western plains, contributed a two base hit to the Sox offensive and further pleased Manager Bush with the manner in which he is able to propel his ample person about the outfield.

Dutch Henry who, in the last week, has blossomed forth as a good bet to do a lot of left handed pitching for the Sox this summer, pitched the first five innings and shut out the Collegians with two hits, both singles.

Bud Clancy continued to make things more unhappy in the life of the Great Shires by driving out three hits in four times at bat, including a double. Cissell also continued to show to advantage. He played six innings, participated in two double plays, accepted eight chances, and made two hits in three times at bat.

There's not much use of going into detail in telling about the manner in which the Sox defeated the more or less Simon Pure Longhorns, but you ought to know more about Kamm's getting in shape for the hidden ball trick, which he has been working once a year in the American league for several seasons.

Lou Garland Stagestruck.

Lou Garland was sent in to finish the game, and was more affected by stage fright than any of the university fellows. With one out in the eighth, Peeples singled and Lamm walked. Carr struck out on a bad ball, but Capt. Frankie Higgins got hold of one and sent it to right center for a double, scoring Peeples and putting Lamm on third.

There was wild cheering among the 3,000 partisan customers and the base drummer of the U. of T. band was pounding his instrument like everything. Of course, both Capt. Higgins and Mr. Lamm were thrilled, Mr. Lamm as much as the youth who had doubled. But this pulsating moment was too much for the lad on third. His mind wandered while he thought of impending campus ovations. He strolled off third. It was an ornery thing to do, but Kamm pulled the ball from his left arm pit, Mr. Lamm was sunk, and the rally was dead. Bassett then walked, but the world was bleak, and Leach ended things with a tap to Kerr.

The Sox returned to San Antonio after the game, and will devote tomorrow to just frisking about. Saturday and Sunday the Giants will be encountered, and Monday the gang will start thinking about breaking camp, an event which will occur a week from tonight, with Waco the first stop on the gradual trip north.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY DON MAXWELL.

An hour after the final bout in the Intercity Golden Glove battle the 32 boxers and a score of substitutes were seated around a big horseshoe shaped table in the Medinah Athletic club, dining together as though they'd known and liked each other for years.

Each of the sixteen pairs of fighters sat together. Grant Fortney was telling Max Glickman that he didn't want to win on a foul, and Max was telling Grant he didn't see how any one could see a foul when there wasn't one. Karl Ogren, who is just about the sweetest fighter Sweden ever produced, and Walter Palm, the Esthonian masseur, told one another about their homes across the sea.

The boys polished off a course and then passed around the table getting one another's signatures on Intercity programs. They exchanged addresses and kidded about their bouts. Before the party broke up the Chicago boys gave a cheer for the New Yorkers and the New Yorkers echoed the cheer with one for the Chicagoans.

Several visitors tried to compliment the boys on their ring showing, but it wasn't compliments the boys wanted. It was plenty to eat and small talk between themselves.

The only announcement which made any impression at all was one by THE TRIBUNE that a watch, emblematic of first prize, would be sent to New York in the wake of Glickman. Grant Fortney was the first fellow to applaud the idea, and Glickman returned thanks by saying he hadn't meant to hit Fortney when he was down. The boys loudly agreed that Fortney and Glickman were swell fellows.

Most thanks, of course, for the success of the Intercity show are due the 32 boys. Did you ever consider just how much work it took for those boys to put themselves in shape for three fast rounds? How much stamina it took for those boys to give and take those punches? Ask yourself if you'd be willing to step under bright lights before the world's greatest indoor fight crowd and trade wallops for a gold watch and the honor of New York and Chicago.

It wasn't THE TRIBUNE or the New York Daily News that brought 23,000 to their feet cheering. It was kids under twenty who had run four or five miles a morning for weeks developing lung power, boxed every afternoon for months, eaten carefully, shunned late hours, quit smoking, and toughened every muscle in their bodies by rigorous exercise.

Thanks, too, are due the Chicago and the Medinah Athletic clubs. Their members had to be good sports to turn over those two fine clubs to the teams. The members gave up the use of the gymnasium for hours each day, broke a lot of precedents, forgot about a lot of rules to help the two teams get ready for the Intercity battle.

And don't forget the coaches. Benny Yanger, Doc Darwent, Johnny Behr, and Jabber Young will be paid for their services in training the Chicago team, but they won't be paid anything in proportion to the energy they expended, the trouble they went to, getting those boys in shape to beat New York.

And last, but not at all least responsible for the success of the greatest amateur boxing show ever held, were the fifty or sixty Chicago men who devoted hours and hours to the task of officiating at the Golden Glove preliminaries, the Golden Glove finals and the Intercity.

You liked the smoothness with which last night's bouts were run off. The reason the program went off like clockwork was that several score Chicago men were working without remuneration to promote amateur sport.

Carnera Knocks Out Man Named Zavita in 1st Round

Jacksonville, Fla., March 20.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, giant Italian, scored his eleventh knockout in the United States here tonight when he put Frank Zavita, Newark heavyweight, to sleep in the first round of their scheduled ten round bout. The fight lasted 1 minute 51 seconds.

NEW YORK'S GOLDEN GLOVERS LEAVE FOR HOME

Admit Better Team Won Annual Bouts.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

The New York Golden Gloves boxing team, which lost to Chicago at the Stadium Wednesday night, left for home yesterday. Members of the Chicago team went back to work and school. Most of them plan to compete in next year's match, which will be held in New York.

The intercity bouts broke at least two records. First, the crowd was the largest that ever has attended an indoor boxing show. Secondly, it was the general opinion that more fighting was seen at popular prices than in any show ever held anywhere.

Agree That Better Team Won.

Officials of the New York team agreed that the Chicago team deserved to win. Some of the fighters questioned the decision in the final bout which gave Grant Fortney victory over Max Glickman of New York on a foul. Those seated at the ringside were agreed that the New Yorker hit Fortney with two rights to the jaw when the Chicago fighter was down on one knee. Professional fighters and managers said Referee Phil Collins was correct in his decision which disqualified the New York fighter in the first round.

Although the decision in the Ed Steeve-Andy Mella bout was booed, the Chicago fighter was entitled to the decision. Steeve won the first two rounds by wide margins and the New York boxer won the third. Steeve tired in the final session, but the points he had scored in the first two rounds entitled him to the decision.

Fighters Well Coached.

Decisions rendered in other fights met with the approval of the spectators. The Chicago fighters were well coached by Jabber Young, Bennie Yanger, Johnny Behr, and S. H. Darwent. They were in condition and, with the exception of Steeve, all were in shape to go the three minute rounds at a fast clip.

Chicago lost three bouts which the coaches expected to win. Chancy Crain was stopped by Patsy Pasculli in the third round. Paul Leberto dropped a three round decision to Johnny Mauro and Benny Goldblatt lost the verdict to Joe Comforti. Other fighters on the Chicago team came through with flying colors.

CALUMET WINS LIGHTWEIGHT BASKET TITLE

Holding its opponents scoreless while counting five times in an overtime period, Calumet lightweights, undefeated quintet of the City league, ran its string of victories to twenty-four and won the championship by whipping Wendell Philips, 26 to 21, at Bartlett gym last night.

The losers, unbeaten in practice and league schedules, were expected to win, but they led only once. A basket by Calumet tied the score to end the regulation period.

Calumet led in the first quarter, 4 to 3, and at half time, 13 to 10. Baskets by Hunter and Ousley gave Philips an 18 to 16 edge in the third period. From then on each team led by a one point margin until the final minute of the regulation game, when Earl Keth, Calumet's lanky center, sank a free throw to make the score 21 all.

In the extra five minute stanza Commerford and Marpool each sank a basket. Capt. Schneider's free throw gave Calumet the five point winning margin, while Philips was held basketless. Lineup:

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: How many old timers remember when the clock factory in Austin was built and operated by Giles, the jeweler of Chicago, until destroyed by fire? Austin then was known as Austinville in honor of Henry W. Austin, one of the pioneer settlers of Oak Park, then known as Oak Ridge. The clock factory was located somewhere between the "4 Mile House" and "6 Mile House," taverns west of the Chicago city limits as the names indicate. The Minier family conducted one of these taverns. Frank Keefer.

In 1855 Charles Cleaver's soap, candle, lard oil, tallow, etc., factory was situated in Cleaverville, on the lake shore, about four miles south of the then city limits. The factory was laid out on a site of about twelve acres and had a pier extending into the lake where vessels could load and unload. The Illinois Central, Michigan Central, and Chicago, Alton and St. Louis railroads passed right in front of it. F. R.

The O'Learys of Chicago fire fame went to Masonville, Delta county, Mich., about a year after the fire and worked for the Mason Lumber company of that city. Later they took up some land about a mile west of Rapid River, Mich., and lived there a number of years. There were two boys and a girl. They came up on a lumber schooner owned by George Hammer. This is as my father tells me, although I remember the boys well. Tracy Moore.

But still I can't help that,
It's more or less in joke and fun
So here I come to bat:
Hurrah for "Rajah" Hornsby, our wizard strikeout king,
Hurrah for "Kiki" Cuyler, you ought to see him swing,
And then there's "Booty" English and little "Riggsy" too,
And Charley Grimm and Pat Malone and the rest of the hullabaloo,
And then there's one we can't forget, to the fans he does bring joy,
He's our own Hack Wilson, our only "Sunny Boy."
But in closing, let me write this
And I hope you'll understand,
No man is ever perfect——
James G. Williams.

Pie Traynor's Eyes Bench Him for Three Weeks

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—(AP)—Harold (Pie) Traynor, captain and star third baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be out of baseball play for three or four weeks as the result of an eye infection. What was thought to be an ordinary case of pinkeye turned out today to be iritis. Traynor had two teeth pulled, relieving the trouble somewhat, but one of his eyes is weak necessitating his wearing smoked glasses.

RESOLVE TO PROHIBIT U. S. TOURNAMENTS

Butler Pleads for Reinstatement.

BY ARCH WARD.

Chicago's two great basketball tournaments—the national interscholastic at the University of Chicago and the national Catholic at Loyola—were dealt a knockout wallop by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools yesterday.

The association's committee on institutions of higher education, at a meeting in the Stevens hotel, adopted a resolution which would threaten with expulsion any college or university promoting a national meet. The resolution, educational leaders said, is almost certain to become a rule.

Oppose National Tourneys.

This action concurred with that of the National Federation of State High School Associations, which for a year has been striving to eliminate national tournaments. A. A. Stagg, athletic director at the University of Chicago, whose school probably will be hardest hit by the resolution, was instrumental in the organization of the National Federation. It was a development of the national interscholastic tournament, Midway officials stated yesterday, to help standardize rules of competition throughout the country.

The executive board of the association was still in session late last night debating the appeal of Butler university of Indianapolis, Ind., from the sentence of expulsion pronounced against it Wednesday. The university asked that it be put on probation to allow it opportunity to correct the circumstances objected to by the association. Butler was ruled out along with Crane Junior college of Chicago and Iowa Wesleyan of Mount Pleasant, Ia.

C. W. Whitten, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation, addressed the North Central committee yesterday. While he made no direct charge that national tournaments encouraged proselyting of high school athletes, he urged "that high school athletes be let alone and be let free to choose the university they wish to attend."

Both the University of Chicago and Loyola university are members of the North Central Association of Colleges and leaders at both schools yesterday expressed doubt that they would jeopardize their school's standing by continuing national tournaments. In addition to the basketball meet the University of Chicago also conducts a national track meet which in recent years has attracted the outstanding prep athletes of the land.

"Inconsistent," Says Crisler.

Neither Chicago nor Loyola officials would admit that their tournaments were anything but a wholesome influence on athletics.

"The action of the North Central association will be given serious consideration and thought by the University of Chicago," said Vice President Frederic Woodward.

H. O. Crisler, newly appointed director of athletics and head football coach at the University of Minnesota, pointed out what he terms inconsistency in the association's resolution. Mr. Crisler for years has been manager of the national interscholastic basketball tournament.

"Approving state tournaments and discouraging national meets seems unreasonable," Crisler commented. "The federation has said there is evil in interscholastic tournaments, which I do not believe is true," he said. "But if there is evil in a meet held at a university, then there is equally as much evil in a state association meet. Any objection that can be made about a university interscholastic as to physical strain or loss of school work applies to an association meet.

Asks Athletic Expansion.

"The federation will not admit any educational value in a trip to Chicago for boys from Kentucky or Arizona or some other distant section, though for many of the lads it is their first and sometimes their last contact with metropolitan life. Certainly there is as much educational value to our meet as there is to a state tournament. A study of the Indiana state meet has shown there is no physical harm to the boys, but if there were, the strain would be no greater in national competition.

"The objection about loss of time hardly applies to our meet, as most of the schools are enjoying vacation that week.

"I cannot agree that athletics in this country needs curtailment; rather there is strong need for expansion."

Among the alleged evils of interscholastic sport reported to the committee on secondary schools yesterday were:

1. Many schools curtail instruction to permit time for athletic contests.

2. Nearly every high school basketball team occasionally plays games on nights other than Friday or Saturday.

3. More than half of the schools investigated were found to permit athletic rallies on school time.

St. Scholastica Girl Nets 120 Points in Cage Game

Fort Smith, Ark., March 20.—(AP)—Helen Fox scored 120 of her team's points today when St. Scholastica academy's basketball team defeated the Fort Smith High school sophomore team. The score was 140 to 2. Helen made sixty field goals, believed to be a record in basketball scoring. In a game last week she scored 86 points.

BROWN WISDOM LEADS HANDICAP STARS TO WIRE

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., March 20. — [Special.] — Brown Wisdom, the handicap star in the Reichert Brothers stable of Belleville, Ill., loomed up as a dangerous candidate for the $100,000 Agua Caliente handicap to be run here Sunday when he defeated six other contenders for the big race in the feature event this afternoon.

The race was at a mile and a sixteenth and after leading practically all the way Brown Wisdom won handily from the 3 year old Hatrick, with Scimitar third. Among the also rans were Naishapur, one of the future book favorites for Sunday's race, Uluniu, a recent arrival from New Orleans, Satin Spar and Gold Rush. Brown Wisdom was the top weight, carrying 120 pounds, and he ran the distance in 1:44 3-5, within fractions of a second of the track record.

Jockey C. E. Allen rode Brown Wisdom and had him away with the leaders. He rushed the Illinois horse into a commanding lead. Brown Wisdom easily held Hatrick and Scimitar safe in the final drive.

WATERMAN LOSES TO BEARDSTOWN IN 4 OVERTIMES

Olney, Bloomington Win Their Games.

Tourney Scores

Bloomington, 20; Abingdon, 19.
Olney, 21; Carbondale, 18.
Peoria Manual, 18; Atwood, 16.
Beardstown, 29; Waterman, 27.

Champaign, Ill., March 20.—[Special.]—Six thousand basketball fans tonight were treated to the most thrilling game ever staged in the state high school basketball tournament finals when Beardstown nosed out Waterman, 29 to 27, in four overtime periods. During the regular playing time, Beardstown never was in the lead, tying the score when Meyers caged a goal from mid-court in the final 20 seconds.

Myers also saved Beardstown in the first two overtime periods and supplied one of the three baskets that clinched the game in the fourth extra session. The score at the end of regulation time was 17 all.

In the first overtime, Swenson put Waterman ahead with an under the basket toss, but Myers knotted the count with a mid-floor shot. Both players repeated these shots in the second overtime, leaving the score 21 to 21.

Waterman Again Leads.

For the third time Waterman took the lead in the third extra period, but again Beardstown was equal to the task. Reingardt scored at the start of the session and Capt. Martin broke loose for a Beardstown basket.

The fourth session saw Beardstown step out with three baskets, Venters, Myers and Martin scoring before Waterman could gain possession of the ball. But Watertown wasn't through. Thompson and Swenson caged baskets, but the gun blasted Waterman's hopes.

Bloomington defeated Abingdon, 20 to 19, in the first game. Bloomington led at the third quarter, 20 to 10, but welcomed the round of the final gun which ended a brilliant Abingdon rally.

Olney Rallies to Win.

Olney came from behind to defeat Carbondale, 21 to 18, in a game that was decided in the last minute when Dale Funkhouser, Olney forward, caged a goal from under the basket to put his team in the lead by a point. Capt. John Lehwald clinched the victory with a long shot as the game ended. Carbondale led at half time, 10 to 8.

With two minutes remaining, Carbondale was one point behind, but Len Holder, who was the mainstay of the Carbondale five, sent his team into the lead with a shot from the center of the floor. On the next tip, Funkhouser took a long pass and dribbled under the basket to score the winning goal.

Bobby May Play at Chertsey 'Cause It's Not the Best

Atlanta, Ga., March 20.—(AP)—Bobby Jones may visit a golf course at Chertsey, near London, simply because it was not described to him as an unusually fine course, or perhaps the finest in the world.

O. B. Keeler, Atlanta golf writer, who has accompanied Jones on golfing expeditions to various parts of the United States and Europe, says Jones has received an invitation to visit the Chertsey course.

Jones is to sail for England April 30 to head the Walker cup team. Chertsey is said to be nineteen miles from London.

Prep Athletes Battle at N. U. in 3 Tourneys

High school athletes will battle in track, swimming and wrestling today and tomorrow in Northwestern university's eighteenth annual interscholastic meet. Preliminaries in all three sports will be held this afternoon, with finals scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

Seventy-two schools from eight states have sent 643 boys representing 103 schools to the meet. Track leads the entry list with 324. Swimming is second with 188 and wrestling next with 131. This exceeds last year's entry when 94 teams competed.

Illinois as usual has the largest number of schools with 45 entered. Twenty-four of these schools are from Cook county. Indiana and Iowa are represented by eight; Wisconsin six; Minnesota three, and Ohio, Michigan, and Oklahoma, one each.

Two of last year's three champions are back again to defend their titles. Froebel High school of Gary, winner of the track championship in 1929, has entered a large team of 24. Tulsa, Okla., is sending its wrestling team which won the tournament a year ago, with 11 entries, most of whom were on last year's team. Tulsa will also be represented in the swimming tournament with 14 boys. The entire group motored to Chicago, the wrestlers having arrived Wednesday and the swimmers yesterday.

The fight for first honors in all three sports is expected to be intense. Out of the 51 track teams at least twenty have entered squads sufficiently well balanced to carry off the championship. The same situation exists in swimming where 33 teams are entered.

CENTRALS BEAT ROSENBLOOMS IN PLAYOFF SERIES

Rochester, N. Y., March 20.—(AP)—Rochester won the first game in the playoff series for the American Basketball league championship here tonight, defeating the Cleveland Rosenblooms, 20 to 16.

The Centrals, winners of the league's second half race, led during the entire game, but were dangerously threatened several times. Cleveland's most serious threat came in the final minutes when the Rosies crept within two points of a tie. Score:

Becker Advises Early Start in War on Crows

BY BOB BECKER.

March is a good month to reduce the numbers of that notorious egg stealer, the common crow. A little later the black rascals will have altogether too many chances to raid the nests of our worthwhile song and game birds.

Martin Hogan, a resident of Barrington, Ill., who has had a wide experience in game breeding and vermin control, both in this country and Great Britain, recommends poison as the most effective agent to rid a community of the excess crow population. We have asked him to describe the method which he has used in the old country when he undertook a systematic vermin control campaign before launching extensive game breeding projects.

Here is his plan:

"Take about two dozen eggs and in each break a hole about the size of a dime. Remove the broken parts of the shell, hold the egg to one side and take out about one-fourth of the white. This gives room to mix the rest of the white and the yolk. Then insert a small quantity of powdered strychnine, with the blade of a pocket knife, and stir thoroughly with a small stick. A little of the yolk smeared on the shell, around the hole, is an added attraction to the crow.

"Some people cover the hole with stamp paper, but this is not necessary. A small box with about two inches of sawdust or bran in the bottom is a handy way to carry the eggs around. Remember that the strychnine must be in powder form. One poisoned egg to two china eggs placed in a roughly formed nest makes a tempting bait.

"Caution should be used, of course, in locating the nests with the poisoned eggs. Do not put them near a road or pathway where people would be likely to see them. Good places are around the edge of a lake or pond or in the fork of a tree. If there are a number of dogs near the place which might get into nests near a pond all sets should be placed in trees. Visit the poisoned eggs every day, and it is advisable to put out a lot of eggs at one time and get your neighbors to do likewise."

ST. MEL SCORES EASY VICTORY IN ACADEMY MEET

Morgan Park Five Beats Lake Geneva Team.

Madison, Wis., March 20.—[Special.]—Terrill Prep of Dallas, Tex., and Culver Military academy of Culver, Ind., became the favorites in the national academy basketball tournament here tonight by piling up topheavy scores to win their first round games.

Terrill, using every one of the ten men who made the trip, vanquished Chicago Central Y. M. C. A. college, 42-23, in the last game of the evening session. The Rangers, averaging more than 6 feet in height, were too powerful for the Chicago club, which, nevertheless, kept in the running through the phenomenal shooting of Rudy Duval, who was high scorer of the contest with seven field goals. Terrill blanked the Chicagoans, 14 to 0, in the first quarter, but thereafter it was a real ball game.

Culver Wins, 40-12.

Culver crushed Racine Junior college, 40 to 12, in a walkaway tilt in which Harrison, Hoosier forward, netted 23 points and Oliver, his running mate, starred with exceptional passing.

The other first round games resulted in St. Mel High school of Chicago defeating the Harvard School for Boys, Chicago, by a count of 21 to 10; Morgan Park [Ill.] Military academy nosed out Northwestern of Lake Geneva, Wis., 25 to 23, and St. Johns of Delafield, Wis., defeated Bethel institute, St. Paul, Minn., 28 to 18.

Vermont Plays Today.

Games tomorrow will feature the appearance of the New England champions, Vermont academy of Saxton River, Vt., who had a bye in the first round and may surprise the favorites. Vermont opposes Morgan Park tomorrow night. St. Mel will meet Terrill and St. Johns will take the floor against Culver.

Consolation games will bring together Racine and Bethel and Chicago Y. M. C. A. and Northwestern.

Those were the high scoring spots until Toca came through with 19 points in the second last game of the day. But earlier four other lads had scored 15 points or more. Gene Holland, lanky center of Chicago's Loyola, scored seven baskets and a free throw. Michel, floor guard of Bishop England, had 15 points, and Beringer of Duquesne, 16, both sinking six baskets. Quinlan, a tall center from Jasper, Ind., academy, who is somewhat like McCracken of Indiana, scored 16 points on five baskets and six free throws, five of them in succession.

In the final game of the eleven, Rockhurst High of Kansas City hung up some kind of a record by holding St. Mary of Ottumwa, Ia., without a field goal for a half. St. Mary was scoreless in the first quarter and got only two free throws in the second. With the score 14 to 2 at the half, Rockhurst let up to save energy for later games and won, 30 to 11.

Marquette Beats Damen; Mehalek Scores 17 Points

With Louis Mehalek on a shooting rampage that netted seventeen points, Marquett's veterans campaigners defeated Damen, 32 to 23, at the Chicago Stadium last night to enter the second round of the Knights of Columbus basketball league championship series. Mehalek accounted for three free throws and seven baskets, six of the latter in the second half, to turn a close game into a near runaway.

Damen, champion of the league two years ago, took an early lead and held a 12 to 10 advantage at the half, but the Marquette sharp shooting proved too much toward the middle of the second period and the north siders moved into the lead by half a dozen points. Damen fought hard to the finish, but close guarding by Wilfrid Smith, Hooker, and Donahue kept the west siders away from the basket.

Play Second Round Tomorrow.

Marquette's victory put three north side teams into the second round, which will be played tomorrow night at the Chicago Stadium, De Soto and O'Connor having previously qualified. The central division placed two teams, St. Patrick's and De La Salle; the south section, two, Dowling and Loyola-Hyde Park, and the west division, one, Hennepin-Shields, the league champion.

Despite Kurkal's six baskets, Lafayette of the southwest division was eliminated by Loyola-Hyde Park, south section champions, 25 to 23. The south siders led at the half, 13 to 8, but four baskets by Kurkal put Lafayette in front shortly after the second period began. From then on the lead alternated until the closing minutes, when Loyola-Hyde Park put on a spurt that provided the winning margin.

St. Patrick's Wins.

St. Patrick's proved too much for Washington, southwest section champions, and romped off to a 32 to 23 victory. Tommy Kane, Sticks Powers, and Franklin led the attack. At half time St. Patrick's had a 20 to 10 advantage. Lineups:

BILLY BURKE'S 68 LEADS 1ST ROUND OF $15,000 OPEN

Miami Beach, Fla., March 20.—[Special.]—A 68 by Billy Burke, holder of the New York state open golf championship, led a field of ninety-nine starters at the Lagorce Golf club today in the opening round of the Miami Beach-Lagorce $15,000 open, the largest money tournament held in the United States. Burke's card was the only one of the day under 70.

One other card under par of 71 was returned, a 70 by Craig Wood of the Forest Hill Field club near Newark, N. J. Three 71s followed, one by the defending titleholder, Horton Smith, and the others by Bill Mehlhorn, playing his first tournament as a representative of Pensacola, Fla., and Clarence Gamber of Detroit and Boca Raton, Fla.

Heinie Manush Signs with Browns for 1930 Season

St. Louis, Mo., March 20.—(AP)—Heinie Manush, slugging outfielder of the St. Louis Browns, who has been a stubborn holdout this spring, has signed a contract for 1930 and will go into training with the team at West Palm Beach, Fla., immediately.

1930 GRID CODE WILL HAVE ONLY SLIGHT CHANGES

New York, March 20.—(AP)—Football, 1930 model, will be much the same as the 1929 product with only a few minor and technical changes and no freak appurtenances whatsoever, E. K. Hall, chairman of the national rules committee, indicated today.

When Mr. Hall and his colleagues get together in their annual week-end session at Absecon, N. J., tomorrow, there is little chance of eliminating the point after touchdown, continuing first downs in the scoring, moving the goal posts back to their old position, outlawing the run back of an intercepted pass and altering the year old fumble rule. The majority is all in favor of letting the game alone, the rules head made it clear. In the meantime he and his fellow members of a recodification committee are bringing to a close two years of painstaking effort in rewriting the rules into logical form.

Begun back in 1928 on a ping pong table in the basement of Mr. Hall's Mont Clair, N. J., home, the new code has been drafted and redrafted five different times. The fifth proof which presents the laws of the game in simple straight forward style beginning logically with the field and the ball, and explaining the play from kickoff to final whistle, will be laid before the rules committee men at the seaside conclave for alterations, after which a sixth and final version will be given to the football world.

PESEK-LONDOS GO POSTPONED.

Columbus, O., March 20.—[Special.]—The world's heavyweight wrestling champion match between John Pesek and Jim Londos, St. Louis, scheduled to be held here April 9 was indefinitely postponed today.

FLEMING GAINS SECOND PLACE IN CUE TOURNEY

French Lick, Ind., March 20.—[Special.]—Frank I. Fleming of Champaign, former champion, moved into second place in the national amateur three-cushion billiard tournament today by defeating John Toledano of New Orleans, southwestern champion, 50 to 31, in 67 innings.

Max Shimon of Milwaukee, defending titleholder, dropped to third place in the standing when he lost to A. J. Harris of Chicago, a former national champion, by 60 to 47 in 71 innings.

Brokers' Loans Rise 121 Millions.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Add Old Man Money as another victim of unemployment and low wages. He was scurrying all over the world for a job yesterday and about the best he was offered was starvation wages.

First, the Bank of England reduced its discount rate from 4 to 3½ per cent, putting it on a par with the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve bank. This is the lowest English rate in seven years and it marked the sixth consecutive cut in the last six months. It resulted from the fact that open market money rates had dropped below the 4 per cent rate.

Plenty of 2 Per Cent Call Money.

At the same time and on this side of the Atlantic ocean there was plenty of money offered in the New York Stock exchange call loan market at 2 per cent, which was the lowest renewal rate in seven years, while in the "outside market" loans were made as low as 1½ per cent. And rates on bankers' acceptances were lowered again, ranging between 2⅛ to 2⅛ per cent, also the lowest level since 1924.

Still, bankers all over the world did not believe money rates have reached bottom. In London they predicted the Bank of England will establish a 2 per cent discount rate in the near future, both as an aid to trade and to assist in refinancing the war loans at lower interest. In New York they looked forward to the rediscount rate being dropped to 3 per cent, although the New York reserve bank made no change in its 3½ per cent rate yesterday. The San Francisco reserve bank reduced its rate from 4½ to 4 per cent.

Modification of Packers' 1920 Decree Is Discussed

BY SCRUTATOR.

Efforts are now being made on behalf of the four largest packing companies in the country to obtain a modification of the consent decree of 1920. The opposition which has developed to these efforts at once presents an interesting opportunity for comment.

The decree was signed by five packers. Four remain in business. In effect the signatories agreed to give up any interest they held other than the manufacture and distribution of meat and immediately related products. They also contracted not to go into the retail meat business, even to carrying canned fruit, etc., in their refrigerator meat cars.

Action Was Voluntary.

This act by the packers was voluntary. They had for a considerable time been under investigation by governmental bodies which believed it wise to curb them, because of a fear that they might achieve something like a monopoly of food distribution. An important factor in the determination to sign may have been found in the relatively small profits they had up until then made from their operations as distributors of products other than meat.

Whatever the reasons the signing has been followed by peculiar conditions. There are some 1,300 packing companies in the United States, of which 600 or more are of fairly considerable size. None of these are involved in the consent decree and some of them are freely engaging in retail operations. Armour & Co., taking the lead with Swift & Co., in the battle for modification have gathered figures showing that one packer in the northwest operates a chain of sixty-four retail markets; that another in Illinois has forty-six; that one in Pennsylvania has thirty; and a number of others from three to thirty.

Chain Stores Are Factor.

Moreover some of the chain store systems have become owners of packing plants and supply their stores from their own slaughter houses and sausage plants. In a few years the number of chain store owned meat packing plants for which government inspection was necessary rose from ten to forty-eight.

The big packers feel that the changes that have occurred in public sentiment about big business concerns and in the distributive system for foods as a whole justify them in asking for modification. They feel, also, that they are being unduly hampered by a legal restriction which permits all other packers to sell at retail and all chain stores to go into packing at will, while they are forbidden this privilege.

In their original brief for modification, filed in the Supreme court of the District of Columbia, they pointed to the facilities they have for distribution of foodstuffs besides meats, and claimed that it would be in the public interest for them to have the power to do so.

Want to Be Distributors.

This distributive function, seemingly, is the one that the big packers are most anxious to have. Some of the executives are opposed to getting into the retail field. Others foresee it as a necessity sometime in the future. But to permit them to deal in other foodstuffs on the wholesale basis would result in large economies, it is claimed. The packers even maintain that retail grocers would back their plea for modification if assured these packers would stay out of retailing.

The opposition to the modification comes most pointedly from wholesale grocers. Two of their large organizations have intervened in the litigation. On the other hand a large number of farm organizations favor modification. A smaller number of farmers oppose. Only yesterday the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association voted to intervene as friends of the packers, if necessary. The opposition to modification will be presented here tomorrow.

FLORSHEIM SHOE MAKES INITIAL STOCK PAYMENTS

Directors of the Florsheim Shoe company of Chicago yesterday placed the class A stock on a $3 annual dividend basis with the declaration of an initial quarterly payment of 75 cents a share, and an additional dividend of 27½ cents a share on the class B stock, placing that issue on a $1.50 annual basis.

Directors of the Consolidated Lead and Zinc company voted to omit payment of the quarterly dividend on the common stock, due at this time. A dividend of 12½ cents was paid last quarter, prior to which quarterly dividends of 25 cents a share were paid.

ROCK ISLAND ROAD'S NET IS $14,007,320; LARGEST IN HISTORY

A new high record in net earnings was achieved last year by the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, according to the annual report issued by Chairman Charles Hayden and President J. E. Gorman yesterday. Net income for 1929 was $14,007,320, equivalent after preferred dividends to $14.04 a share on the $74,877,200 common stock. Net income for 1928, which was the previous best year, was $13,167,696, or $12.91 a share on $75,000,000 common stock.

"Traffic conditions during 1929 were more favorable than during the preceding year," the report says. "The railway operating revenues, excluding back mail pay, increased $5,244,280. While operating expenses increased $5,289,044, the transportation ratio decreased despite substantial wage increases during the year."

The budget for this year calls for an expenditure of $19,600,000 for new equipment, including 5,000 freight cars and 41 locomotives. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1929, shows current assets of $20,608,008, current liabilities of $16,959,230, and surplus of $40,295,740. Total assets are $512,064,700.

Reveals N. Y. Reserve's Role in Stock Market Crash

New York, March 20.—(AP)—The annual report of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, reviewing credit conditions and reserve bank policy during 1929, reveals that at the peak of the stock market crisis last fall the bank aided its members in replacing $1,400,000,000 in called loans by buying $120,000,000 in government securities.

The report, made public tonight, refers to the extension last year of the practice by corporations and individuals of lending money to brokers through the agency of the banks, adding that "it was lending of this sort which provided the huge growth in loans to brokers during 1928 and 1929."

Affected Brokers' Loans.

"In some measure this large increase in loans by others than banks," says the report, "took control of brokers' loans away from the New York City banks and from the Federal Reserve bank. It was true, however, that the market was only able to secure these funds from other lenders by paying very high rates. It might be presumed, perhaps, that under more normal circumstances these high rates would have the effect of checking speculative enthusiasm, but the market of 1929, encouraged by business prosperity, large industrial profits and other evidences of economic progress, was not easily discouraged."

Reviewing the successive increases in the New York bank's rediscount rate, the report discussed the interval of stock inflation, and the calling of loans by lenders other than banks.

"Within a week," it says, "a total of $1,400,000,000 of these loans were withdrawn from the market. In addition, out of town banks called about $700,000,000 of such sums. This huge withdrawal was only prevented from adding a serious money shortage to a security panic by the willingness and capacity of the New York City banks to replace with their own funds the loans withdrawn, relying upon the assurance that they could depend upon the availability of federal reserve credit.

"In this way the New York banks were called upon in a single week to increase their loans and investments by $1,400,000,000. Since the deposits of these banks increased correspondingly, their required reserves with the Federal Reserve bank also increased proportionately and they were suddenly required to find more than $200,000,000 of additional funds.

How Reserve Bank Aided.

"It was at this point that the Federal Reserve bank aided its members in meeting this huge demand by purchasing $120,000,000 of government securities in two days when the situation was most critical. Thus the banks found it necessary to meet only a part of the increased demand for credit by additional borrowing and they were able to furnish the funds needed without any increase in the money rate. The emergency for funds passed without serious disturbance."

Recalling the successive decreases in the rediscount rate following the stock crash, the report mentions the decline in business activity toward the year end, and says this decline was an important consideration in the steps taken by the bank toward easier money.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 20.—The bears got another trimming on the stock exchange today. It was enough to show that constructive traders are still masters of the situation.

The main body of stocks advanced from one to three points on the day's operations, with the customary handful of volatiles shooting up much more sharply 8 to 10 points or more.

Another reduction of the Bank of England's discount rate and the continued ease in money rates here provided motive power for the fresh rally, the third successive one in as many days. Call money renewed at 2 per cent for the first time since November, 1924, and a new reduction of ¼ of 1 per cent in the rate of bankers' acceptances was announced. Later there was a slight firming in the call loan market, the rate being hoisted back to 2½ per cent but the change was not sufficient to have any material effect on stock trading activities.

Profit Taking Retards Advance.

However, the market had to plow through a tremendous lot of profit taking. This had the effect of slowing up the advance at different stages and

If you believe in the United States, take the World View

It is now recognized that the prosperity of the United States during the last ten years has been due in a large part to substantial increases in the purchasing power of the people of the United States generally. High wages for labor have broadened the market for products of industry.

In the same way, American industry has much to gain from an increase in the purchasing power of other countries. Our exports in 1929 were valued at over five billion dollars. While this large figure is relatively only a small part of our total trade, it represents the margin in many industries between a profit and a loss. The dependence of our prosperity on foreign markets is well known.

Productive loans to foreign countries play an important part in the extension of American markets and the growth of American industry by building up permanent purchasing power. The investor who believes in the future of the United States and its great industries must therefore appreciate the importance of sound investment abroad.

At the present time participation in such loans, particularly to Germany, is available on very attractive terms. In our opinion, the income yields obtainable at the present time present a passing opportunity. Within the past week, substantial appreciation in German bond prices has taken place. We believe that this movement will continue and we therefore recommend carefully selected issues for immediate investment. The following are representative:

UNTERELBE POWER & LIGHT CO. Mortgage 6s, due 1953, priced to yield 6.80%. FREE STATE OF ANHALT EXTERNAL 7s, due serially 1934 to 1946, priced to yield 7%. Swift Int'l Report Shows Gain in Earnings.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

An irregular session on the Chicago exchange yesterday was featured by a number of substantial gains by issues which are not commonly regarded as market leaders. Among the customarily active shares, gains were conspicuously small and losses not uncommon.

Reports that its parent company, Parmelee Transportation, is to acquire control of a taxicab business in an eastern city stirred activity in Yellow Cab, which jumped over two to close at 29¼. It is understood that official announcement is being withheld until definite terms are agreed upon.

A. M. Castle ran up nearly six points for the most spectacular gain of the day. Gains of a point or more were also made by Bendix, and Lincoln Printing.

Swift International Reports.

Swift International was in good demand at moderately higher prices. The annual report issued last night by President Edward F. Swift shows a substantial gain in 1929 earnings over the previous year's. Net last year was $5,560,088, which was equivalent to $3.70 a share on the capital stock, compared with $4,605,021, or $3.07 a share in 1928. After payment of dividends, $2,349,588 was transferred to surplus which now stands at $16,585,856.

"There have been no outstanding difficulties during the year," President Swift reported. "Live stock supplies have been adequate at remunerative prices to producers, and selling prices of manufactured products have been generally satisfactory. We look forward to 1930 with confidence."

On the weak side of the market, Kalamazoo Stove, which lost 3¼, Keystone Steel, off 1⅞, and Jefferson Electric, down 1¼, were representative. Many of the popular stocks showed little change. Middle West was up a fraction, as was Central and Southwest, following its favorable earnings report. Borg was unchanged while the Houdaille issues eased slightly.

Binks Stock Advances.

Binks Manufacturing advanced about two on fairly active trade. Neil C. Hurley, president, states that March business indicates that first quarter earnings and volume will compare favorably with a year ago. January and February business was off about 9 per cent, but March is making up for the recession, he said. "Reductions in production and distributing expenses are making possible a wider margin of profit," Mr. Hurley declared.

Foote Brothers, selling ex rights and ex dividends, declined to 16¼. Common stock holders have been offered the privilege to subscribe to 60,000 shares of common in the ratio of one share for each four held. The rights, which expire April 4, sold yesterday at ¼.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Fresh Pool Indications.

Kelvinator has not been a popular stock in recent years. The failure of the pool interested in the issue to give it any kind of support when the going was rough cost the stock many friends. Of late there has been fresh indications of pool accumulations. This year the company is expected to earn a net of approximately $1,000,000.

Low Priced Oils.

Although most of the oils are reflecting natural betterment, pools have resumed operations in the lower priced issues, especially those of the non-dividend class. Growing volume is apparent in a number of these stocks.

Airplane Transportation.

That the operation of airplane transportation companies is not yet on a profitable basis is substantiated by the recent statement of the Aviation Corporation of the Americas, a holding company. Its operating units hold a number of contracts for transportation of air mail from the Atlantic coast to various countries in Central and South America. A net loss of $317,412 was reported for the year ended Dec. 31, or a deficit of ninety-eight cents a share.

WHEAT MAKES A TAME START; FINISHES WILDLY

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat made a tame start yesterday and a rather wild finish, a wave of short covering sweeping over the market toward the close as the result of strength in Winnipeg and buying by the northwest, and the close was at the top with net gains of 1⅛@2¼c with May finishing at $1.09@1.09¾, and July $1.08⅛@1.08¾.

There was nothing in the news to account for the sharp upturn at the last. Winnipeg buying orders coming in the last 15 minutes of trading caught the local element short, and a general rush to buy followed which found offerings small, and sellers of offers were forced to protect themselves on the way up. Winnipeg was strong the greater part of the day, and finished 1⅞c higher. Houses with eastern and foreign connections were buyers in the latter market, although the export demand for cash grain was not aggressive, with the day's business finally estimated at 400,000 bu, largely Manitobas, at the Pacific coast.

Speculative Trade Light.

Speculative interest in the wheat market is relatively light and prices are easily affected by any good buying or selling, and it took rather limited buying to start prices upward. There was a little buying early on the forecast for the cold wave working down into the southwest, and also on the relative strength shown in Liverpool. The latter market closed ¾@1d higher, while Buenos Aires was 3⅝c higher, the latter as compared with Tuesday.

There has been considerable change in sentiment both at home and abroad regarding the trend of the wheat market, with the price level a factor. Foreigners are not as confident now as they were a short while ago that the American government will dump its grain at any price in order to get rid of it.

The decided strength in Buenos Aires and Rosario wheat, the latter market gaining 3⅞c, was regarded as a reflection of the upturn in North America, and of less favorable developments in the railroad strike situation.

Corn Dull but Firm.

Profit taking was on in corn early, and the market eased slightly with some of the recent buyers on the bear side for a turn, but when wheat turned strong corn followed, and the finish was at the top with net gains of 1@1½c with September leading. May finished at 85⅝@85½c and July 86⅛c.

Oats held within a range of ⅛@⅜c with cash and commission houses fair buyers. The finish was at the top with net gains of ⅛@⅜c, May being 44⅜c and July 43⅞@44c.

Longs sold March and May rye freely after an early advance, while shorts were aggressive buyers of the July. The market eased on the liquidation by longs, only to turn strong toward the last with wheat and close ⅞@2c higher with May 66⅝c and July 71¼c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Sentiment in wheat is more diversified and there is less disposition to press the short side, owing to uncertainty as to what the farm board may do, and the effect of the cold snap on the winter wheat in the southwest. Prices are at a level where those who have pressed the short side on breaks have been unsuccessful in securing profits, while purchases on every downturn have shown profits of late.

The market gave a good demonstration of its ability to advance sharply in the last 10 minutes of yesterday's trading when the pit operators were caught short. At the last there was buying of offers for today.

Traders who are working for a better market in corn are encouraged over the action of the market. They say there is more disposition on the part of pit traders to follow any leader on the buying side. They believe that the situation is such that an advance of 3@5c on top of the recent bulge would not be out of line, as the market is a domestic affair. Farmers in Illinois are selling a little corn at 58@60c for No. 4 at loading stations, which is a relatively low price.

Royal Dutch Company

for the Working of Petroleum Wells in the Netherlands-Indies
(N. V. Koninklijke Nederlandsche Maatschappij tot Exploitatie van Petroleumbronnen in Nederlandsch-Indië)

4% Debentures, Series A

To be dated April 1, 1930 — To mature April 1, 1945

Each debenture now offered is to carry a non-detachable warrant entitling the holder thereof to purchase, on or before April 1, 1936 (or in event of redemption of such debenture prior thereto, on or before the redemption date), 15 New York shares representing common stock of the Royal Dutch company, at $66⅔ per New York share on or before April 1, 1933, and thereafter, on or before April 1, 1936, at $70 per New York share.

The following information is contained in a letter, dated The Hague, March 13, 1930, from Sir Henri W. A. Deterding, K. B. E., General Managing Director of Royal Dutch Company for the Working of Petroleum Wells in the Netherlands-Indies:

BUSINESS

Royal Dutch Company for the Working of Petroleum Wells in the Netherlands-Indies, through its controlled companies, constitutes the world's leading enterprise engaged in the production and distribution of petroleum and its products. The Royal Dutch company, incorporated in the Netherlands in 1890, owns 60% of the outstanding common stocks of The Batavian Petroleum Company, The Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Company, Limited and The Asiatic Petroleum Company, Limited, the remaining 40% in each case being owned by The "Shell" Transport and Trading Company, Limited. The Batavian Petroleum Company owns approximately 64% of the outstanding common stock of Shell Union Oil Corporation. The gross production of the group of companies controlled, directly or indirectly, by the Royal Dutch company amounted in 1929 to an aggregate of approximately 163,000,000 barrels of crude oil, constituting more than one-tenth of the estimated world production for that year. Production of the group in 1929 was principally from oil lands in Venezuela, United States and Netherlands-Indies. Physical properties of the group include 30 oil refineries with an aggregate daily capacity of approximately 635,000 barrels, storage facilities with a capacity totaling approximately 70,000,000 barrels, and a fleet of tankers, including chartered vessels, with an aggregate dead-weight tonnage of approximately 1,600,000 tons. The marketing organizations of the group distribute its products in nearly every country in the world.

CAPITALIZATION

The capitalization of the Royal Dutch company, adjusted to give effect to the issuance of these Series A debentures, and to the issuance of 5% guilder debentures in exchange for 4½% priority stock as set forth below, is as follows:

	Authorized	Outstanding
Dollar Debentures
4%, Series A (this issue)		$40,000,000
Fifty-Year 5% Guilder Debentures	$11,457,000	11,457,000
Preferred Stocks—cumulative
4½% Priority Stock	11,457,000	**
4% Preference Stock	603,000	603,000
Common Stock	389,940,000	202,456,848

*The indenture under which the Series A debentures are to be issued is to provide for the issuance of $50,000,000 of additional dollar debentures of other series with such terms and provisions as the company may determine. The indenture further is to provide that the company shall not create any secured indebtedness maturing more than one year from the date thereof (except purchase money mortgages on and assumed indebtedness secured by property hereafter acquired, and renewals thereof) without securing the Series A debentures equally and ratably therewith.
$11,457,000 principal amount of Fifty-Year 5% Guilder Debentures are presently to be offered in exchange for $11,457,000 par value of priority stock now outstanding.
$8,040,000 par value of common stock to be reserved for issuance upon exercise of share purchase warrants carried by these Series A debentures. The agreement under which such warrants are to be issued is to contain provisions designed to protect the purchase privilege against the effects of dilution.

INCOME

Income of the Royal Dutch company is derived largely from dividends from investments in controlled companies. Such dividends are taken up in the company's accounts in the year with respect to which the same were paid, that is, for the most part, in the year prior to the year in which received. Net income of the company after all charges including taxes and payments to managers and directors, for the period of five years ended December 31, 1928, was as follows:

1926	39,837,246
1927	39,995,518
1928	40,537,200

Although final figures for the year 1929 will not be available for several months, the management believes that net earnings of controlled companies for 1929 were at least as satisfactory as for 1928.
The annual interest requirement on the $51,457,000 principal amount of debentures shown above as outstanding is $2,172,850.

NEW YORK SHARES

The New York shares issuable upon the exercise of the share purchase warrants described above are to represent common stock of the Royal Dutch company in the ratio of three such New York shares for each 100 guilders ($40.20) par value of such common stock, and are to be issued by The Equitable Trust Company of New York under an agreement dated September 10, 1918. The outstanding New York shares (approximately 955,000 outstanding as at March 13, 1930) are listed on the New York Stock Exchange and are currently quoted at approximately $50 per share.

DIVIDENDS

Dividends have been paid on the common stock of the Royal Dutch company with respect to each year since 1902, such dividends in recent years having been paid in the form of an interim dividend in January, and a final dividend in July. The amount of such dividends paid in 1929 (with respect to the year 1928) totaled 24% of par value, equivalent to approximately $3.20 per New York share. An interim dividend of 10% was paid in January, 1930, and the management expects that a final dividend of 14% will be paid in July, 1930.

MARKET EQUITY

The indicated aggregate market value of the outstanding common stock of the Royal Dutch company, based on current market quotations, is approximately $750,000,000. The company's common stock or certificates representing such common stock are listed on the New York, London, Paris, Amsterdam, Brussels, Zurich and Batavia (Netherlands-Indies) stock exchanges.

Brokers' Loans Increase 121 Millions.

put pep into both the English and American securities markets. In Wall and La Salle streets another increase was expected in the weekly report on brokers' loans, but nobody cared much when the reserve board's figures showed a further increase of $121,000,000.

The total of brokers' loans now stands at $3,841,000,000, which, however, is $1,952,000,000 below a year ago. The comment on the increase was that the banks appeared anxious to lend money and that "the public" again is in the stock market. The New York banks increased their own loans by $120,000,000 and now are lending $175,000,000 more than a year ago.

Interior banks furnished an additional $92,000,000 but still are $597,000,000 under a year ago. Other lenders, including corporations, reduced their loans by $91,000,000, probably as the result of federal tax payments, and are lending $1,530,000,000 less than a year ago.

Loans of Members.

The New York Stock exchange reported that loans of its members on March 1 totaled $4,167,538,352, an increase of $182,820,287 over Feb. 1. But during February the total market value of all listed shares rose to $70,806,703,327, an appreciation of $1,797,866,798. Therefore, the members' borrowings amounted to only 5.89 per cent of market value, compared with 5.77 per cent on Feb. 1 and 9.29 per cent on March 1, 1929.

Finally, the weekly statement of the federal reserve system, issued last night, showed the strongest reserve position in many months. This also indicated that the reserve authorities are able to provide abundant and cheap credit for all purposes for some time to come, even though demand should expand.

Ratio Advances.

The system's ratio of reserves to liabilities rose to 82.5 per cent, compared with 80.8 per cent last week. Borrowings of the member banks dropped $60,704,000 and now total $205,634,000. The reserve banks reduced bankers' acceptances by $71,521,000, but increased government securities by $47,326,000. Deposits fell $61,943,000 and note circulation receded $25,303,000. Gold and total reserves declined $3,123,000 and $1,767,000, respectively.

The report of the New York federal reserve banks shows that member bank borrowings receded $2,338,000 to a total of $30,810,000. Bankers' acceptances dropped $53,127,000 and deposits fell $38,977,000. Reserves declined $5,830,000, but the reserve ratio rose to 82.2 per cent, compared with 79.6 per cent last week.

The report of the Chicago Reserve bank shows a decline of $14,178,000 in member bank borrowings, which now total $24,179,000. Bankers' acceptances receded $3,434,000 and deposits dropped $12,899,000. Reserves declined $8,990,000, but the reserve ratio rose to 85.7 per cent, compared with 84.3 per cent a week ago.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 20.—New records for the year were established in the listed bond market today. Transactions on the stock exchange reached a total of $28,276,000, compared with the previous high of $28,519,000 on Oct. 29, 1929, and with Wednesday's turnover of $23,426,000, which was the greatest for the year to date. Of today's aggregate, $22,034,000 consisted of domestic bonds, heaviest trading on record for this group.

The averages for domestic bonds reached a new high for the year today at 89.97, up nearly ½ a point from the previous day. The entire list of United States government bonds traded in on the stock exchange went to new highs for the year today, advancing 1 32d to 11-32ds for the active issues. Although many foreign loans reached new peaks for 1930, the average for the group was off slightly for the day.

Many domestic issues, including railroad, public utility, and industrial bonds, made new highs for the year to date, and in most instances the final prices were at or very close to the day's best levels. American Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s of 1939 was by far the most active issue of the entire list, reaching a new high at 165 and closing at 164¼, up 2¾ points.

Security-First National Bank of Los Angeles, Trustee

BUSINESS AND PROPERTIES

Union Oil Company of California, incorporated under the laws of California in 1890, is engaged, directly and through subsidiaries, in the production, refining and distribution of petroleum and its products. The company and its subsidiaries own in fee (or mineral rights in fee) 194,600 acres and hold under lease 60,849 acres—all in the United States. Additional acreage includes approximately 400,000 acres owned in fee in Colombia, South America, and a half interest in concessions to approximately 880,000 acres in Venezuela.

The company's production of crude oil and natural gasoline, subject to royalties, amounted in 1929 to approximately 22,600,000 barrels, and total receipts (including crude oil and oil products purchased) to approximately 50,700,000 barrels. Present production of crude oil and natural gasoline, from 605 wells in California, is at the daily rate of approximately 55,000 barrels, and in addition the company is purchasing about 53,000 barrels per day. The company also has 273 wells shut in capable of a daily production of about 55,000 barrels.

CAPITALIZATION

Funded indebtedness of the company, additional to these $15,000,000 debentures, was outstanding as at December 31, 1929 in the total amount of $21,544,500, comprised of $1,103,000 First Mortgage 5% Bonds, due 1931; $8,934,500 6% Gold Bonds, Series A (secured), due 1942; $8,300,000 5% Bonds, Series C, due 1935; $2,000,000 Union Atlantic Company 4½% Gold Bonds, due 1937 (representing one-half of a total issue of $4,000,000 guaranteed jointly and severally by the company and The Atlantic Refining Company), and $1,207,000 Purchase Obligations.

Capital stock (par value of $25 a share) was, as at December 31, 1929, authorized in the amount of 5,000,000 shares, of which 4,215,953 shares were outstanding. Of the authorized but unissued shares of capital stock, 150,000 shares are to be reserved for issuance upon the exercise of stock subscription warrants accompanying these debentures.

Proceeds from the sale of these debentures are to be used in the expansion of the company's business, and for other corporate purposes.

RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

Operations have resulted in a net profit in each year since 1896. Results of operations of the company and its subsidiary and controlled companies (including 50% interest in Union Atlantic Company, since formation of that company in 1927), during the six-year period ended December 31, 1929, were as follows:

Years Ended December 31:	Sales	Net earnings after all charges including depreciation and depletion, but before interest and Federal income taxes
1925	74,378,772	12,456,110
1926	79,943,751	14,856,576
1927	80,273,327	12,200,870
1928	85,367,771	12,724,918*
1929	88,864,519	16,743,397

*Includes profit arising from the sale of certain oil properties, which profit however was almost completely offset by reducing the inventory value of fuel oil stocks.

The maximum annual interest requirement on all funded indebtedness of the company outstanding as at December 31, 1929 as shown above, plus annual interest on these debentures, is $1,908,640.

Net earnings for the year 1929, after deduction of all expenses including interest and Federal income taxes as actually paid and/or charged, amounted to $15,019,635, equivalent to $3.56 a share on the 4,215,953 shares of capital stock outstanding at the end of such year.

ASSETS

The consolidated balance sheet of the company and its subsidiaries, as at December 31, 1929, without adjustment for this financing, shows total assets (including $40,878,559 of recorded appreciation in value of certain proven oil properties), after deducting reserves and all liabilities except funded debt of approximately $200,000,000. ELI BATES HOUSE ACQUIRES SITE FOR NEW HOME

Buys Corner at Sedgwick and Oak Streets.

BY AL CHASE.

Eli Bates House—a social settlement whose work is mostly among the Italians of the near north side—has acquired a site at the northwest corner of Sedgwick and Oak streets on which it proposes to build a home at some future date. The present building of the organization is located at 606-21 West Elm street, in a district which is fast becoming a manufacturing center.

The ground acquired by the Eli Bates House fronts 120 feet on Sedgwick and 130 feet on Oak street. It was assembled by Harry W. Delano, real estate broker, in conjunction with Vincent E. Ferrara, chairman of the property acquisition committee of the Eli Bates House.

Organized in 1876.

Eli Bates House was organized in 1876 by the Woman's society of the Unity church. Its first home was located in a cottage on Larrabee street in which it conducted a sewing class for girls of the neighborhood and a nursery. In 1884 Eli Bates, a wealthy Chicago pioneer, gave enough money to construct the present Elm street establishment.

Benjamin W. Voorhies has sold the property at 5210-14 South Ashland avenue, lot 75x115 feet, to William Silberman for a reported $63,000, subject to $32,000. The property is improved with a three story brick building occupied by the Sherman Motor Car company, a Ford agency. The sale was made subject to a lease held by the automobile company which has six years yet to run. A. M. Langert & Co. were brokers.

New Chain Store for Uptown.

The Lady Nelson Shops company, sellers of beauty shop products, has leased the store at 5122 Sheridan road, for ten years at a reported total rental of $27,000. Frank C. Wells & Co. were brokers, with B. C. Rose associated. This is said to be the first of a chain of stores to be opened in Chicago.

Dr. Frank E. Deadman has purchased the property at 3928-32 Prairie avenue, 75x166, with old improvements, from the estate of Joseph C. Braden. William C. Regelin was broker.

WABASH SEEKS $15,000,000 BOND ISSUE PERMIT

Washington, D. C., March 20.—(AP)—Authority to issue $15,000,000 in 5 per cent gold bonds to be sold to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of New York, was sought today by the Wabash railway in an application to the interstate commerce commission.

The fifty year refunding and general mortgage bonds would be dated April 1, 1930, and sold at 98 per cent of par and accrued interest. Funds derived from the securities will be used to reimburse the road for expenditures made to improve its own lines and that of the Ann Arbor railroad, a subsidiary.

At the same time the Ann Arbor asked permission to issue $3,670,000 of its improvement and extension mortgage bonds, which would be pledged to the Wabash.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 1,500 cattle, 12,000 hogs and 11,000 sheep.

Cattle and lambs scored a "comeback" on yesterday's market, while the trend of the hog market was reversed again, the top going down 15c at $10.65, while the general average showed 5c loss at $9.90. The market for hogs was a repetition of preceding sessions this week, the trade being a "catch as catch can" affair.

Lightweights showed most weakness, selling steady to 25c lower, with some sales of medium and weighty butchers were slightly stronger. Receipts continue below normal, the five markets estimating only 36,000 for today, against 57,900 the previous Friday. The week's total at Chicago is expected to drop short of 100,000, smallest in more than a year and 80,000 below the average weekly total during the last two months. The five year average of corresponding weeks stands at 156,800.

Hog Futures Dull.

Trading on the hog futures market was extremely dull and mostly 15c lower than yesterday, due largely to the unsettled condition of the cash trade lately. Offers were plentiful, but bids were few and too low for trading in most cases. April light were sold at $10.60 near the close.

About a dozen carloads of light were offered at $10.65@11.00, for April and May delivery, and carried bids of $10.25@10.55 most of the day. September light were offered at $10.85@11.00 and bid $10.35. On the "to arrive" market light hogs for today's delivery were bid $10.50. Medium grades for all week were bid $10.00 and heavy $9.75.

Better grades of steers and yearlings were easier to sell at stronger prices yesterday, and in spots the market showed as much as 15@25c gain. Activity was lacking on other grades, however, and some plain kinds were barely steady at the finish. Prime 1,436 lb steers held the peak price at $14.25, while $13.60 obtained good 969 lb yearlings and bulk of steers brought $10.75@12.75.

Lambs Bring $10.50.

Mostly 15@25c of the recent decline in the lamb market was recovered in midseason and later yesterday, although a big share of the supply had changed hands earlier in the day on a generally steady basis.

Best grades at the finish reached $10.50, while bulk of wool stock sold at $9.75@10.25. Choice light shorn lambs sold at $9.50 and 105 lb averages at $8.75. Aged sheep and yearlings were stronger. Feeding lambs were scarce and unchanged.
